INTRODUCTION.

After a series of tribulations rarely paralleled, we imagine, in the preparation of a history, the History of Pembroke is given to the public. We are confident, however, that the long delay in its appearance has resulted in a better work. It has given opportunity for more extended researches, and a more careful sifting of facts, as well as a better comprehension of the needs. The design has been to make it as complete a treasury as possible, of the successive events attending the grant by Massachusetts Bay of the "Plantation of Suncook," in 1728, to the survivors and heirs of Captain Lovewell's company, as a reward for their valuable service in permanently breaking up the encampment of the Indians at Pigwacket, the early settlement of the township, and its subsequent growth and changes to the present time, without attempt to amplify, or philosophise, only so far as deemed necessary for a clear understanding of the facts presented. This accounts for the general structure of the work, largely in the form of annals.

As a matter of interest in furnishing opportunity for the comparison of the educational facilities of past and present, we have given the early proprietary records verbatim, et literatim, et punctuatim. With the same early advantages would the men of to-day be likely to do better? We need certain assurance before criticising too severely.

The loss of the town's records for the first eight years after the incorporation renders the account of those years necessarily incomplete. Other circumstances also increase the incompleteness. It is greatly to be regretted that we have so little information of many of the men who played a prominent part in the early history of the town.

For the chapter on Pembroke in the Revolution, besides the town records, we have gleaned from the Revolutionary Rolls of the New Hampshire State Papers, and all other known accessible sources.

The details of service of Pembroke soldiers in the Rebellion have been verified from the records in the adjutant-general's office in Concord, and are supposed to be accurate and complete.

Not all the Important Events pertain directly to Pembroke, but as items of general interest, they have a permanent value, and might not otherwise be easily obtainable by many.

We are confident that the history has valuable features, and chronicles many facts that would be irrevocably lost to the future historian, but for this timely publication. To the indefatigable labors of Hon. Trueworthy L. Fowler, more than of any other one, the credit is due. A native of the town, a life-long resident, deeply interested in everything pertaining to its prosperity, honored with its most responsible offices of trust, and withal possessed of an excellent memory and sound judgment, he has spared neither pains, nor expense in the way of research, to give full and accurate information on many points, which, but for him, would never have been embodied in the work. No known accessible old deed of land conveyance has evaded his scrutiny. The Explanations of the Map of Pembroke are in testimony. The chapters on the Bow Controversy, Masonian Claim, Roads, Bridges and Ferries before Incorporation, Roads after Incorporation, Bridges after Incorporation, Mills and Mill Privileges, Merchants or Traders, Ambrose Meeting house, Explanations of the Maps of Pembroke, and Suncook, and many of the Dates of Important Events, have been prepared by him.

For that portion of the chapter on Higher Education, relating to Pembroke Academy, we are indebted to Prof. Isaac Walker, principal of the academy; and to Gen. A. D. Ayling, of Concord, for valuable courtesies in making more complete and accurate the record of Pembroke in the Rebellion; also to C. C. Lord, Esq., of Hopkinton, for certain facts gathered by him, concerning secret organizations.

The Pembroke Town History Company who have persevered in the face of many obstacles, and given the work to the public, are certainly worthy of great praise, and deserve the gratitude of all interested in the town, which has reared so many who have honored their several professions, and occupied so prominent a place in the history of the state and nation.

In this connection we wish to express deep regret at the seemingly untimely death of one of its members, the late Dr. John R. Kimball, who was the worthy coadjutor of Mr. Fowler in pushing forward the preparation of this history for publication. If living to-day, no one would rejoice more heartily in its completion. It is proper to add here, that, as far as known, the earliest suggestion in reference to the publication of a history of Pembroke, was made by him, resulting in the speedy choice of a committee to take the matter into consideration.

To all who have in any way aided in the work by encouraging words or valuable help, we would tender sincere and hearty thanks.

HISTORY OF PEMBROKE.

CHAPTER I.

PEMBROKE—SITUATION—PHYSICAL FEATURES—SOIL—PRODUCTIONS.

On looking at the map of New Hampshire, it will be seen that the state, in general outline, resembles a right-angled triangle, the base resting on Massachusetts, its perpendicular on the right running north to Canada, its irregular hypotenuse following the south-westerly course of the Connecticut river, and at its right angle pushing out to the Atlantic ocean between the Piscataqua and Merrimack rivers, the southern line running parallel with the bank of the Merrimack about three miles north.

Merrimack county occupies a central position a little below the middle, through which flows in a south-easterly direction the river of the same name.

In the south-eastern part of this county, on the eastern bank of the river, lies the town of Pembroke, in latitude  $43^{\circ} 8' 54.8''$  north, and longitude west from Greenwich,  $71^{\circ} 27' 34.6''$  as computed by the United States Coast Survey at the site of the Congregational church. Its altitude there above mean high water at Portsmouth is about 400 feet. Its area is 10,240 acres.

The Soucook river bounds it on the north-west, the Suncook river, flowing down from the Belknap mountains, on the south-east, and the Merrimack upon the south-west. On the north-east, and east, lie the towns of Loudon adjoining 145 rods, Chichester 1,470 rods, and Epsom 910 rods, completing its boundary.

As three sides of the town are defined by the course of rivers, and the towns on the remaining side thrust sharp corners against it out of line, its contour is necessarily very irregular. The general outline, however, is a rectangle stretching from the south-west to the north-east. Just across the Soucook lies Concord, the capital of the state, across the Suncook, Allenstown, and across the Merrimack, Bow.

From the valleys of the three rivers, there is a gradual rise of the land towards the centre and easterly portion of the town, though often broken by extensive tracts comparatively level. Mount Plausawa, named for an Indian who, tradition says, had his camp there, in the north-east part of the town, on the line between Pembroke and Chichester, attains an elevation of more than 1,000 feet above the Merrimack. Garvin's hill, lying near by in Chichester, a little to the south-east, rises nearly to the same elevation. From these eminences the Uncannoonac, Monadnoc, Kearsarge, Ragged, Sunapee, Belknap, Moosilauke, Franconia, and White mountains can be seen. From some of the lower elevations the view is extensive and picturesque.

Its varying succession of hill and dale ensures excellent drainage. Of the smaller streams, French's brook feeds the Soucook, McDaniels, Hampshire (or Richardson's), and Great (or Ames's) brooks, flow into the Suncook, and Camp (or Meeting-House) brook flows into the Merrimack. It has no pond within its limits.

The Suncook, where it touches Pembroke, is generally sluggish, but has excellent water privileges at Buck street, and especially at Suncook, near its junction with the Merrimack. The flourishing village of Suncook largely owes its existence and prosperity to the power thus furnished.

A noticeable feature near the mouth of the Soucook is the grouping of dunes, or sand hills, blown up by mighty winds to a considerable elevation, presumably from the drift deposits of melting glaciers, before sufficient time had elapsed to cover them with vegetation. Pembroke is one of the few towns of the state having such formations.<sup>1</sup>

Another remarkable and important characteristic is the thick bed of clay, covered with a few feet of sand, in the side hill which was in ages past, without doubt, the eastern bank of the Merrimack river, when a vastly greater volume of water swept down through the valley to the sea. This clay-bed runs south, down through Pembroke, Allenstown, and Hooksett, a distance of four miles or more, and is largely worked for brick-making, and has long yielded a handsome revenue. It extends easterly to an unknown distance, and has been supposed to be practically inexhaustible.

The soil of the town is generally of excellent quality, strong, and well adapted to the growing of the staple products of New England, and, as well, for grazing. For more than a century and a half it has abundantly rewarded the thrifty labors of the husbandman. With proper care and feeding it will, doubtless, continue to do so for centuries to come. The same enterprise, patient and persevering industry, in the long run, will, presumably, net as rich returns, with ampler privileges meanwhile, as the farms of the far west. The competence gained by so many in the past, is in testimony. Processes may change with changing years and changing needs, but we are sure the farms of Pembroke will long prove the fruitful source of wealth to the skilled worker.

The trees and shrubs of the town are the varieties common to the central and southern portions of the state, the different species being distributed largely according to the soil best adapted to their peculiar needs. On the lower elevations, the evergreens; hemlock, white and yellow pine, predominate, and on the higher, the harder woods, oaks, birches, maples, beech, and chestnut. The primitive forests have long since passed away before the merciless axe of the woodman; so later, in the interest of larger revenues, much of the wood and timber remaining. The growing use of coal in the homes tends to lessen the demands made on the forests, but the brick-yards will continue to be great consumers.

CHAPTER II.

PERILS OF THE EARLY SETTLERS FROM THE INDIANS—CAUSES—LOVEWELL'S EXPEDITIONS—FIGHT AT PIGWACKET.

The early settlers of Pembroke, in common with those of Dover, Oyster River,<sup>1</sup> Exeter, and other places, encountered many perils from the Indians. They were compelled to build garrison houses for their mutual protection, and be constantly on the lookout to guard against surprise. Perpetual vigilance was the price of safety and life.

The incursions of the Indians on the settlements of New England for nearly a hundred years were many and destructive. They were not solely the outcome of native hostility. Though different tribes varied in the degree of their savage ferocity, and were vindictive and implacable as enemies, they were far from being insensible to friendly treatment. Had there been no outside incitement, and only honorable dealing on the part of white men in their intercourse with them, massacres and pillage would have been rarer. William Penn had little trouble with them. Samosett, sole survivor of his tribe after the ravages of a fell disease, welcomed the pilgrims to the land they had formerly occupied. Synonto, introduced to them by Samosett at Plymouth, lived with them, taught them how to raise corn, and became their interpreter and peace-maker while dealing with the native tribes. For fifty years or more they were friendly and peaceful. Many are the recorded instances going to show how ready they were to appreciate and reward any act of kindness done them in time of need.

Nor was their hostility due so much to the encroachments made upon their lands, as to crafty instigations, on the one side, and unprovoked acts of hostility, on the other. The Indians were not the only aggressors.

It is also to be remembered, that during these troublous times the French and English were rival competitors for the possession of New England. The English had planted themselves on the shores of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, and were pushing inland to make for themselves homes in the choicest portions of the wilderness. The French were in possession of Acadia, including Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and a large part of Maine. But the lands further south seemed more valuable, the climate was milder, and they formed the purpose, if possible, to drive out the English and take possession. Stirring up the Indians to take the war-path, sweep down upon the settlements, and wipe them out, if possible, was a cardinal feature of their plan. The religious differences of the two peoples furnished an additional incentive. Jesuit priests were employed as the active emissaries. Bigot and Thury were the earlier leading instigators. "They preached and practised the red religion of rapine and carnage, and to their baneful influence may be traced the atrocities of the irregular but devastating war."<sup>1</sup> They "insinuated" that the land was theirs, and the English had invaded their properties, though conveyances had been given by their Sagamores seventy years before.<sup>2</sup> They tempted their cupidity with the prospect of money to be paid for their captives when ransomed, or sold as slaves. Having trained them for the purpose, they appealed to their religious instincts to inspire them with relentless hatred of the heretics across the border.

A few years later, Sebastian Ralle,<sup>3</sup> a Jesuit priest who had charge of a mission at Norridgewock, on the Kennebec river, under instructions from the governor of Canada, as letters afterwards found made certain,<sup>4</sup> preached the doctrine of meriting salvation by the destruction of heretics, and was largely instrumental in instigating the many incursions made from 1703 to 1725. Their frequency and ravages at last fully aroused the English to do their utmost to stay them. An expedition of 200 men in seventeen whale boats, under Captains Harmon, Moulton, Brown, and Bean, moved on Norridgewock with such celerity as to surprise the Indians and prevent any vigorous defence. A great victory was the result. Eighty are supposed to have been killed, or drowned in their attempt at flight. Among the slain was Ralle. The mission chapel, cottages, and canoes were burned and destroyed. Four Indians were taken alive, and three captives rescued.

Shortly after, seventy French Mohawks made a descent on the frontiers, scattering here and there, killing many cattle, and killing, or taking captive, men, women, and children, falling in their way. On the evening of Sept. 4, 1725, two were taken in Dunstable. The next morning fourteen men under Lieutenant French went in pursuit, but were waylaid, and French and half his men were destroyed. Another fresh company engaging them were overpowered by the superior numbers of the enemy, with the loss of one killed and four wounded.<sup>1</sup>

Thoroughly aroused by such depredations, John Lovewell, Josiah Farwell, and Jonathan Robbins petitioned the general assembly of Massachusetts for leave to raise a company, and scout the Indians. The original petition, with their signatures, is still on file in the office of the secretary of state in Boston, and is as follows<sup>2</sup>:

The Humble memorial of John Lovel, Josiah Farwell, Jonathan Robbins, all of Dunstable, sheweth;—

That your petitioners, with near forty or fifty others, are inclinable to range and keep out in the woods for several months together, in order to kill and destroy their enemy Indians, provided they can meet with Incouragement suitable: And your Petitioners are Employed and desired by many others, Humbly to propose and submit to your Honors' consideration, that if such soldiers may be allowed five shillongs per day, in case they kill any enemy Indians and possess their scalp, they will Employ themselves in Indian hunting one whole year; and if within that time they do not kill any, they are content to be allowed nothing for their wages, time and trouble.

JOHN LOVEWELL.

JOSIAH FARWELL.

JONATHAN ROBBINS.

Dunstable, Nov., 1724.

The general court acted upon the memorial as follows:

Novr 17, 1724. On the petition of John Lovewell Josiah Farwell and Jonathan Robbins of Dunstable and others who are desirous of going out in quest of the Indians—

It was Voted That his Honor the L<sup>t</sup> Governor be desired to commission proper & suitable officers for this service (the number of men not to exceed fifty) and that they keep an exact Journal of accounts of the time they are in the woods & where they go, as well as the time they may be at home or in any towns fitting to go out again, And that they may be allowed two shillings and sixpence per diem each, for the time they are actually out in the service & the time of fitting out as aforesaid, they subsisting themselves, Provided that the time of their being out in this service shall be until the session of this Court in May next—And for their further encouragement they shall be entitled over and above the two shillings and sixpence per diem, the sum of one hundred pounds for each male scalp and the other premiums established by law to Volunteers without pay or subsistance, And that commission officers have the loan of a sufficient number of arms for the use of the Maquas [Mohawks], and other Indians who may be willing to enter and engage with them in the service, the officers to be accountable for the arms they receive.

Receiving such authority and encouragement, the company was raised, and a commission of captain given to Lovewell. Josiah Farwell was made lieutenant, and Jonathan Robbins ensign. The company became greatly distinguished, first by their successes and afterwards by their misfortunes.<sup>1</sup>

The various earlier expeditions that had gone from Dunstable and the surrounding towns had met such poor success, returning after long and fatiguing marches without seeing any trace of the enemy, and so discouraged were the men, that Lovewell could only raise thirty instead of the "near forty or fifty others" as anticipated. One with less energy would hardly have done as well. It took him some days, as the necessity of sending to Haverhill for supplies makes manifest. We append the document:<sup>2</sup>

Pursuant to an order from his honor ye Lieut Governor to John White of Haverhill to supply Capt John Lovewell with bread of the Province stores, & now ye s<sup>d</sup> Lovewell being marching out with a company of Volunteers against ye Indian enemy he has appointed me Josiah Farwell of dunstable who am his Leut to receive ye s<sup>d</sup> bread & to meet him at Kingstown in order to march, I acknowledge I this day received of s<sup>d</sup> White four hundred & eighty-seven pound & one half of good bread for which I promise to be accountable for to Jeremiah Allen Esqr province treasurer and to pay for ye same as witness my hand

JOSIAH FARWELL Leut

Lovewell was then in his prime, and fired with zeal to perform some valiant exploit against the Indian enemies. With his picked men he started on an excursion to the northward of Lake Winnipiseogee. On Dec. 10, 1724, the party came upon a wigwam occupied by two Indians, a man and a boy. They killed and scalped the one, and took the other alive to Boston, and received the promised bounty and daily wages.<sup>3</sup>

This success was so encouraging, the company was speedily increased from thirty to eighty-seven, or, as others say, to eighty-eight, and on Jan. 27, 1725, they started on a second expedition. Following along the east shore of the Merrimack river they reached the north-west point of Lake Winnipiseogee on Feb. 9. Here four days later, thirty of the company, chosen by lot, were sent home on account of failing provisions. The rest pushing on, probably, as far as Tamworth, discovered Indian tracks, and following them in a south-easterly direction, a little before sunset on the 20th, they "saw smokes" indicating the encampment of the enemy for the night. Concealing themselves till after midnight, they silently went forward and found ten Indians asleep round a fire near the frozen pond. To make sure work, Lovewell placed his men conveniently, and ordered them to fire, five at a time, as rapidly as possible after each other, and others to reserve their fire. He fired first as a signal, killing two; the five firing after him killed five more; the reserve shot two more, as the remaining three started up from sleep, and the third, attempting to escape, was seized by a dog and held till killed. Thus the ten in a brief time were destroyed, and the frontier of New Hampshire was saved from their ravages. These Indians were well furnished with new guns, plenty of ammunition, spare blankets, moccasins, and snow-shoes for the prisoners they expected to take, and were within two days' march of the frontier. The pond which was the scene of this exploit is in Wakefield, at the head of a branch of the Salmon Falls river, and has ever since been known as Lovewell's pond. As a reward for this signal success the company received in Boston the bounty of one thousand pounds from the public treasury. We give names of those engaged:<sup>1</sup>

After this the intrepid Captain Lovewell proceeded to plan an attack on the village of Pigwacket, now Fryeburg, Me., on the upper part of the Saco river. Here Paugus, a noted warrior and the terror of the frontier settlements, was in command of the Indian forces.

The day before starting on this daring expedition, Lovewell addressed the following letter to the governor, which was probably his last communication to any one, as nothing more is heard from him or of his company till the sad news of the battle reached Dunstable:

Dunstable April ye 15, 1725.

Sir This is to inform you that I march from Dunstable with between forty or fifty men on the day above mentioned & I should have marched sooner if the weather had not prevented me. No more at present but I remain your humble serv<sup>t</sup>.

As the story of this expedition is so intimately related to the first settlement of Pembroke, we insert here a detailed account of

As will be seen by the above letter, on the 16th of April, 1725, the brave and daring Captain Lovewell, with forty-six men under his command, began the arduous and perilous undertaking of marching from Dunstable to Pigwacket.<sup>2</sup> They had not travelled far before Toby, an Indian, falling sick, was obliged very reluctantly to return. When they reached Contoocook,<sup>3</sup> William Cummings, of Dunstable, became so disabled by a wound received from the enemy some time before, that the captain dismissed him, with a kinsman to accompany him back.

Pushing on to Ossapy, Benjamin Kidder of Nutfield<sup>4</sup> fell sick and the captain made a halt, and tarried while they built a small fortification<sup>5</sup> for a place of refuge to resort to if there should be occasion. Here he left his doctor, a sergeant, and seven other men to take care of Kidder. They left also a considerable quantity of their provisions, to lighten the loads of the men and facilitate their march, and which they intended should serve as a recruit on their return.

Captain Lovewell, not at all disheartened by his misfortunes, with his company now reduced to only thirty-three besides himself, again took up his march from his fortification at Ossapy for Pigwacket, about forty miles distant through a rough wilderness.

With the exception of Benjamin Hassell, who at the beginning of the engagement coward-like sneaked back to the fort and on to Dunstable, making the distance of 118 miles in three days, the following are the names of the brave fellows who boldly and successfully contended with Paugus and his band of about eighty Indians :

<sup>5</sup> This fort was situated near the west shore of Ossipee lake in a meadow of about 200 acres. North of the fort is Lovewell's river emptying into the lake. The fort was probably palisaded, or a stockade, situated on a ridge running southward from the river, with its eastern face fronting the lake. Cellar-like excavations marked the north and south ends of the fort, the largest at the north and almost reaching the river, whence probably came their supply of water. The ditch in which the palisades were set can be traced around the whole tract occupied by the fort.

About fifty rods west of the fort, near the centre of the meadow, stands a mound of earth nearly fifty feet in diameter and about ten feet high. Though no extensive excavations have been made in it by digging from the top, three entire skeletons have been taken from it. Two tomahawks and many pieces of coarse earthen-ware have been found in the surrounding meadow; and, when the land was first cleared on the northern side of the river, hills where corn grew were distinctly visible. This marks the region as the former residence of a formidable tribe. Farmer and Moore's Hist. Coll. Vol. II, p. 45.

Thursday, May 6, the company became apprehensive of being discovered and pursued by the enemy. The next night the watch heard the Indians about the camp, and alarmed the company, but the darkness prevented further discovery.

On Saturday, May 8, very early in the morning while at their customary devotions they heard a gun, and a little time after espied an Indian on a point running into Saco pond more than a mile distant.

Concluding that the design of the gun and the Indian discovering himself was to draw them that way, and expecting certainly to be attacked, they held a hasty consultation as to the prudence of venturing an engagement with the enemy who were now seen to be sufficiently alarmed, or endeavor a speedy retreat. The men generally and boldly answered, "We came to see the enemy; we have all along prayed God we might find them; and we had rather trust Providence with our lives, yea, die for our country, than try to return without seeing them, if we might, and be called cowards for our pains."

Captain Lovewell readily assented to lead them on, though manifesting some apprehensions, and supposing the enemy were in front of

<sup>1</sup> Noah Johnson of Dunstable had been an old Indian fighter before he joined Lovewell in his last expedition. In 1725 he was wounded in the battle of Pigwacket, and petitioned for aid, as the following extracts from the Journals of the General Court of Massachusetts in 1725 and 1726 show:

"The petition of Noah and Josiah Johnson shewing they were so disabled by their wounds received by the Indian enemy at Pigwacket that they fear they may not be able to get their living by their labor, Praying some relief from this Court that the amount of charges occasioned by their wounds as hereunto annexed may be allowed & paid to them out of the public treasury

"Resolved that the sum of Twenty one pounds and Seventeen shillings be allowed and paid out of the public treasury to Noah Johnson And that the sum of thirty two pounds two shillings be paid out of the public treasury to Josiah Johnson' in full discharge for their losses & suffering as set forth in their petitions"—In June 1726 Noah Johnson again petitioned saying he has lost the use of his hands—allowed £13.15—for his Expenses and Doctor's bill—In Dec 1726 he petitioned again and received ten pounds."

In 1730, he petitioned for three pounds as a compensation "for a gun of his that was lost in the fight that Captain French had with the Indians." Allowed. In 1737, while living on his grant at Suncook, he asked and obtained "a further pension of fifteen pounds, on account of wounds he received in the fight with the Indians at Pigwacket."

"He was one of the first settlers of Pembroke, and a deacon of the church there. He died at Pembroke, Aug. 13, 1798, in the one hundredth year of his age, the last survivor of the little company engaging in Lovewell's fight."—Kidder's Expeditions of Captain Lovewell, p. 100. Fox's Hist. of Dunstable, p. 246.

The absence of his name from the records after 1748 renders it very doubtful about his dying in Pembroke.

them, instead of in the rear, as they were, ordered the men to lay down their packs, and march with the greatest caution, and in the utmost readiness.

After marching a mile and a half or two miles, Ensign Wyman espied an Indian coming towards them, and giving a signal, they all concealed themselves and let the Indian come on. Soon several guns were fired at him. Upon this the Indian fired upon Captain Lovewell with beaver-shot, wounding him mortally, as is supposed,<sup>1</sup> and also wounding Samuel Whiting. Ensign Wyman immediately fired and killed the Indian,<sup>2</sup> and Mr. Frye and another scalped him.

Then marching back towards their packs,—which the enemy had found in the mean time, counted, learning thereby their own superiority of numbers, and seized,—at about ten of the clock, when they came pretty near to the place where they had laid them, at the north-east shore of Saco pond<sup>3</sup> on a plain place, where there were few trees and but little brush, the Indians rose up from their ambush in front and rear, in two parties, commanded respectively by Paugus and Wawha, and ran towards the English, three or four deep, with their guns presented. The English also instantly presented their guns, and rushed on to meet them.

When they had advanced within a few yards of each other they fired on both sides, and the Indians fell in considerable numbers; but the English, most, if not all of them, escaped the first shot, and drove the Indians several rods. Three or four rounds were fired on both sides; but as the Indians outnumbered our men more than two to one, and had already killed Captain Lovewell, Jacob Fullam, only son of Major Fullam of Weston, Ensign Harwood, John Teffts, Jonathan Kittredge, Daniel Woods, Ichabod Johnson, Thomas Woods, and Josiah Davis, and wounded Lieutenants Farwell and Robbins, and Robert Usher in the place where the fight began, and were striving to surround the rest, the word was given to retreat to the pond. This was done with a great deal of good conduct, and proved of great service to the English, as the pond covered their rear. The Indians, however, got the ground where the dead of our party lay.

The fight continued very furious and obstinate for ten hours. The Indians made all sorts of hideous noises, roaring, yelling, howling like wolves, and barking like dogs. The English also often shouted and <sup>1</sup> Hutchinson, in his History of Massachusetts, says this Indian has been ranked as a hero, with the Roman Curtius who devoted himself to death to save his country. But investigation convinces that there is no foundation for the idea that he was placed there as a decoy, and therefore had no claim to the character of a hero. The point on which he stood was a noted fishing place; the gun which alarmed Lovewell's company was fired at a flock of ducks, and when they met him he was returning with his game and two fowling pieces.—Penhallow, note, p. 110.

<sup>2</sup> Penhallow, p. 110. Fox in his history of Dunstable says he was killed after the general firing began, p. 117.

huzzaed, as they did after the first round. At one time Captain Wyman, confident that the Indians were diverting themselves in pow-wowing, by their striking on the ground, and other odd motions, crept up and shot the chief actor, breaking up their meeting.

Some of the Indians, holding up ropes, asked the English if they would take quarter, but were briskly answered, that they would take no quarter but at the muzzles of their guns.

Jonathan Frye,<sup>1</sup> only son of Capt. James Frye of Andover, Mass., a graduate of Harvard college, 1723, a very worthy and promising young man, chaplain to the company, and greatly beloved by them for his excellent performances and good behaviour, and fighting with undaunted courage, about the middle of the afternoon was mortally wounded. When he could fight no longer, he prayed audibly several times for the preservation and success of the residue of the company. After languishing three days in the woods for want of dressing his wounds, he died.<sup>2</sup>

Sometime after sunset, the enemy drew off and left the field to our men. Afterwards it was learned that forty were killed on the spot, and eighteen more died of their wounds, leaving a remnant of about twenty.<sup>3</sup>

About midnight, the English assembled themselves, and upon examining into their situation, found Jacob Farrar just expiring by the pond, and Lieutenant Robbins and Robert Usher unable to travel.

Lieutenant Robbins desired his companions to charge his gun and leave it with him, declaring that, "As the Indians will come in the morning to scalp me, I will kill one more of them if I can."

Eleven more of the English were badly wounded. These were Lieutenant Farwell, Chaplain Frye, Sergeant Johnson, Timothy Richardson, Josiah Johnson, Samuel Whiting, Elias Barron, John Chamberlain, Isaac Lakin, Eleazer Davis, and Josiah Jones. Nine others, Ensign Wyman, Edward Lingfield, Thomas Richardson, David Melvin, Eleazer Melvin, Ebenezer Alger, Abiel Asten, Joseph Farrar, and Joseph Gilson, were less seriously wounded. These all marched off the ground, and proceeded on their return to the fort, not perceiving that they were way-laid, or pursued by the enemy, who well knew our men had no provision, and must therefore be very faint. Besides Chaplain Frye, whose case has been mentioned, three others of the wounded men, Farwell, Davis, and Jones, after travelling about a mile and a half, found themselves unable to go further, and the rest, with their free consent, kept on their march, hoping to find a recruit at the fort, and return with fresh hands to relieve them.

As they proceeded, one morning in passing a thick wood, they divided into three companies for fear of making a track by which the enemy might follow them. One of the companies came upon three Indians, who pursued them some time. Meanwhile Elias Barron, one of this party, strayed from the others, and crossing Ossapy river, was not heard of afterwards. His gun case was found by the side of the river. Eleven, in another party, reached the fort at Ossapy, but to their great surprise found it deserted. The coward Hassell, who fled in the beginning of the battle, ran directly to the fort, and gave the men posted there such a frightful account of what had happened, they all fled and made the best of their way home.

Solomon Keyes also came to the fort. After fighting till he had received three wounds, and become so weak from the loss of blood that he could not stand, he crawled up to Ensign Wyman, in the heat of battle, and told him he was a dead man, but said he, "If it be possible, I will get out of the way of the Indians, that they may not get my scalp." He then crept off by the side of the pond, and providentially finding a canoe, rolled himself into it, and was driven by the wind several miles towards the fort. He gained strength fast, and reached the fort as soon as the eleven before mentioned; and all arrived at Dunstable at night on the 13th of May.

Two days after, Ensign Wyman and three others arrived at Dunstable.<sup>1</sup> They suffered greatly for want of provisions, saying they were wholly destitute of all kinds of food from Saturday night till the following Wednesday, when they caught two mouse-squirrels, which they roasted whole, and found to be a sweet morsel. They afterwards killed some partridges and other game, and were comfortably supplied till they reached home.

Eleazer Davis arrived at Berwick, and reported that he and the other three left with him, waited some days for the return of the men from the fort, and at length despairing of their return, though their wounds were putrified and they were almost dead with famine, yet they all travelled on several miles together, till Mr. Frye desired Davis and Farwell not to delay any longer on his account, for he found himself dying, and laying himself down, told them he should never rise more, and charged Davis, if it should please God to bring him home, to go to his father, and tell him that he expected in a few hours to be in eternity, and that he was not afraid to die. They left him, and this amiable and promising young man, who had the journal of the march in his pocket, was not heard of again.

Lieutenant Farwell, who was greatly, and, no doubt, deservedly, applauded and lamented, was also left by Davis within a few miles of the fort and not afterwards heard of. But Davis getting to the fort and finding provisions there, tarried and refreshed himself, and recovered strength to travel to Berwick.

Josiah Jones, another of the four wounded who were left the day after the fight but a short distance from the scene of action, crossed Saco river, and after a fatiguing ramble, arrived at Saco—now Biddeford—emaciated, and almost dead from loss of blood, the putrefaction of his wounds, and the want of food. He had subsisted on the spontaneous vegetables of the forest, and cranberries and other things he had eaten came out at a wound he had received in his body. He was kindly treated by the people of Saco, and recovered of his wounds.

Several of the Indians, particularly Paugus, their chief, were well-known to Lovewell's men, and frequently conversed with each other during the engagement. In the course of the battle, Paugus and Chamberlain discoursed familiarly with each other. Their guns having become foul from frequent firing, they both, at the same time, chanced to seek the brook to cleanse them, and stood face to face on opposite sides, before either was aware of the presence of the other. Paugus was the first to speak, saying "a truce till we wash our guns, and then the best man kills."<sup>1</sup>

While so doing, they continued to discourse familiarly, each claiming he would kill the other. When they had prepared their guns, they loaded and discharged them, and Paugus fell.<sup>2</sup>

A son of Paugus, after it had become a time of peace, went to Dunstable to revenge his father's death. He did not go directly to Chamberlain's, but to the house of a neighbor, where he tarried several days on some pretended business, that his design might not be discovered. His errand, however, was suspected, and a hint given to Chamberlain. He cut a port-hole above his door, through which, very early one morning, he discovered an Indian behind his woodpile, lying with his gun pointing directly to the door, and it was supposed that the same musket which had carried death to the bosom of the great Paugus, also proved fatal to his son, as he was not afterwards heard of.

Chamberlain, who was a stout, courageous man, and accustomed to say he was not to be killed by an Indian, is reported to have said, he was once fired at by an Indian, as he was at work at night in a saw-mill. He was in a stooping position and did not discover the Indian till he fired, but was so near him that he immediately knocked him down with a crowbar, with which he was setting his log.

<sup>1</sup> Tradition says, that after preparing their guns, Paugus said to Chamberlain, "It is you or I." Paugus had nearly finished loading and was priming his piece, when Chamberlain struck the breech of his gun violently on the ground, causing it to prime itself, and shot Paugus through the heart, the bullet of Paugus the next instant grazing the head of Chamberlain. Fox's History of Dunstable, p. 127.

After the return of the English from their fight, Colonel Tyng, with a company, went to the place of action, where he found and buried the following men: Capt. John Lovewell, Ensign Jonathan Woods, Ensign John Harwood, and Robert Usher, of Dunstable; Jacob Fullam of Weston; Jacob Farrar and Josiah Davis, of Concord; Thomas Woods, Daniel Woods, and John Teffts, of Groton; Ichabod Johnson of Woburn; and Jonathan Kittredge of Billerica. Lieutenant Josiah Farwell of Dunstable, Chaplain Frye of Andover, and Elias Barron of Groton were wounded, and died by the way in attempting to return home.

Colonel Tyng found where the Indians had buried three of their men, and one of them was known to be the bold Paugus, who had been a great scourge to Dunstable.

Ensign Wyman, after his return, was rewarded with a captain's commission, and every man crowned with the grateful thanks of their countrymen, for this heavy blow given to a plundering savage foe, the common enemy of their country.

Seth Wyman, Ebenezer Alger, and Abiel Asten attested to the general truths of this history.

Published accounts of the fight at Pigwacket, represent it as a defeat. But this is hardly true, for though Captain Lovewell's decimated forces retreated to a more advantageous place on the shore of the pond, for their better protection, the enemy, who had lost in killed and wounded nearly twice the number of the English forces, left the field in their possession without scalping a single one of the dead. It was a disaster, however, severely felt in all the communities sending them forth on this daring expedition, and might have been an overwhelming defeat if the Indians had followed up their advantage of numbers. It is certainly true, that after the expedition against and the fight at Pigwacket, the forces of the Indians in these two places were broken up, and the remnants driven to seek other settlements, thus largely destroying their power to do harm. Captain Heath, visiting Norridgewock afterwards, found only a few empty wigwams.<sup>1</sup> After Lovewell's fight, the Indians resided no longer at Pigwacket, till the peace.<sup>2</sup>

Save the attempt of the son of Paugus to avenge the death of his father, it is not known that these tribes afterwards ever did damage to the settlers.

Other tribes, however, after this made occasional raids upon the settlements, often at unexpected times, obliging the early settlers to be constantly in readiness to repel any attack that might be made. Not till the English conquered the Canadas in 1759, was there permanent peace.

NOTE.—Captain Lovewell was born in Dunstable Oct. 14, 1691. His father was John Lovewell, an ensign in the army of Oliver Cromwell about 1653, who died about 1754 at the great age of 120 years or more. He married Hannah ——— and had three children,—John, born June 30, 1718, and died July 2, 1763; Hannah, born July 24, 1721, who married Capt. Joseph Baker, and settled in Pembroke; and Nehemiah, born Jan. 9, 1726, and marrying Rachel, daughter of Jonathan Farwell, went to Corinth, Vt., where he died, leaving a numerous family. Captain Lovewell's widow married for a second husband a man by the name of Smith, and died Jan. 5, 1754.

<sup>1</sup> The name Suncook, originally applied to the township and river, is of Indian origin, and is defined by Rev. Dr. Edward Ballard as meaning "the place of the goose." Frederick Kidder, who is also learned in Indian antiquities, thinks the word derived from hasan or asan, a rock, or rocky, and auke, a place. The only definition of Soucook is, "the place of the wild cat ;" of Merrimack, "the place of swift water."

This was approved in council July 9, 1729.

Later it was amended, as shown by the following action :

Lovewell in ye Engagem<sup>t</sup> when he killed the Ten Indians]

As thus amended it was approved Sept. 23, 1729.

While these petitions were being presented to the general court of Massachusetts Bay, and action thereon taken, granting the privileges asked, the authorities of the province of New Hampshire were closely and jealously watching the proceedings of the people of Massachusetts Bay. The township of Bow, which was granted May 20, 1727, conflicted with the grants of Penacook and Suncook. It was laid out Jan. 28, 1728-9, as shown by the following document.

Showing the comparative size, shape, and relative position of Penacock and Suncook as granted by Massachusetts, and Bow as granted by New Hampshire.
Also the shape and position of Pembroke as incorporated in 1759.

By referring to the Map No. 1, the plan of the three grants of the townships of Rumford, Suncook, and Bow, it will be seen that the first two named form a rectangle running due north and south, and the latter two rectangles, one jutting by the other on opposite sides to keep the nine-mile distance from the line of the adjoining towns on the north-east, and running diagonally across from south-west to north-east, including a large part of the grants of Penacook and Suncook. This overlapping of proprietary grants occasioned a confusion of titles, and, as might be expected, gave rise to a long controversy, as recited in another chapter.

CHAPTER IV.

SETTLEMENT BEGUN—DRAWING LOTS—PROPRIETORS' MEETINGS, 1729-1739.

It is to be remembered that the province of Massachusetts Bay, from 1641 to 1679, assumed jurisdiction over the territory of New Hampshire; and later, by her charter, claimed for her northern boundary a line three miles north of the Merrimack river from its mouth to its source. New Hampshire claimed as her southern boundary a line from a point three miles north of the mouth of the same river, running due west. Thus the greater part of the township of Suncook was claimed by both provinces. The grant, however, under which the early proprietors acted, was given on petition, as has already been shown, by Massachusetts, as a deserved reward to the heroic Captain Lovewell and his company, for their invaluable services at Pigwacket in completely shattering the forces of the hostile Indians located there, and checking their disastrous ravages through the settlements of New Hampshire.

The meetings of the proprietors to take action, looking to the laying out and distribution of the lots, were held in Chelmsford, Mass. Most of the proprietors at the time were citizens of Massachusetts towns, and naturally looked to the government of Massachusetts for authority and protection.

As the township was not divided into lots till 1730, it is not probable that a permanent settlement began before that time. It is a tradition that Francis Doyen, one of Captain Lovewell's soldiers, and his wife, coming from Penacook, were the first white inhabitants to winter there, and probably were the first permanent settlers. Their log hut is said to have been located just north of the road leading to Garvin's Falls, near the middle of the field west of Pembroke street, now owned by Isaac W. Hobbs. During their first winter, after a severe snowstorm, they were visited by a party from Penacook who were anxious for their safety, and were found in their rude cabin, well protected, comfortable, and contented.

It is certain that grantees and others visited the township during the summer of 1729, with reference to future settlement. On November 24 of that year, Joseph Farrar, of Concord, one of the grantees, deeded to James Moor, for twenty-four pounds, lawful money, all his right, title, and interest to land in Suncook, or Lovewell's township. This deed is recorded in the office of the registrar of deeds for Middlesex county, Mass. The price surely was not unreasonable, as it secured 365 acres, possibly of the best land in the township.

It is not known that many Indians had a permanent habitation in the township. Plausawa is the only one said to have had his wigwam within its limits. It was in North Pembroke, near Plausawa hill, named in his honor. He had for comrades Sabatis and Christi, who were frequent visitors in the neighborhood, for hunting and fishing purposes. The three are charged with leading, or instigating, the attack on Suncook and Epsom in later years. In 1753, during the cessation of hostilities, Plausawa and Sabatis were killed while on a friendly visit to Boscawen.<sup>1</sup>

The few Indians remaining in the vicinity were friendly, or indifferent, occasionally calling on the white settlers, and sometimes helping them. When James Moore, who is said to have erected the first framed building in the township, had the raising, he was assisted by a few Indians, as well as neighbors, from Concord. According to tradition, one of them was worsted in a friendly trial of strength, and became very angry, threatening vengeance, but was pacified by the contents of a "little brown jug," which had thus early come into use. Moore gained the friendship of the Indians by his considerate treatment of them, and during the hostilities of after years, though fortified to repel attack, was unmolested.

We have no authentic record of the rapidity of the early settlement of the town. Without doubt there was a gradual growth, but the fact that there were less than forty families in town in 1748 indicates slow progress in occupancy rather than otherwise. The fertility of the soil was a perpetual invitation. Ample harvests were in testimony. They could not well be overlooked by those who were seeking to make for themselves life-long homes. In fact, the apparent value of the lands was the deciding influence leading to the petition for this particular grant. The thrift of the industrious tillers of the soil since has been a witness to the inhering wisdom of their early choice.

In addition to the products of the farm, the river abounded in shad, salmon, and trout. Deer, also, and other wild game, were plenty in the forests. With the simple fare to which these pioneers were accustomed it was comparatively easy for them to provide abundantly for themselves and families for the long winters. Though their log houses were anything but assuring in comparison with our modern homes, with their fulness of conveniences and comforts, with the abundance of fuel ever at hand, they were made very comfortable and abodes of happiness, doubtless as satisfying as the more sumptuous homes of the present.

The hardships and perils inevitable to these early settlers gave them not only an experience very different from that now known by any save on our western frontiers, but also a discipline favorable to the development of strong muscle and strong characters. The very positiveness of these inevitable experiences made them equally positive in their convictions and opinions. This accounts largely for their seeming obstinacy in their persistence in carrying out the ends grounded in their convictions of right. It made them steadfast and reliable when giving in their adherence to the right, and often bitter opposers when for any reason they had allied themselves to any wrong. Their nurture made them industrious, persevering, and hardy. It saved them from any milk-and-water looseness in their religious beliefs. In these respects they stand forth in strong contrast to many in these later times. As luxury and its inviting vices ate out the best life of Rome and took from her forever the supremacy of the world, so are there elements of danger in the multiplying comforts and easing of industrial burdens of to-day. Many are making wreck on this stone of stumbling. Surely "it is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth."

Before the occupation of Suncook was fully completed the proprietors held several meetings.<sup>1</sup>

most convenient, or the public exigency seemed to demand. Sometimes only a single one for the year; in other years. three or four.

This petition was favorably received, and an act passed December 15, 1739, "that all the votes passed by s<sup>d</sup>. proprietors at their meetings held September 19th 1733 and since as also all the Records of their second Division and all their orders agreements and Contracts as they stand Entred in the present Record Book be Ratified and Confirmed as good and valid to all Intents and purposes."

CHAPTER V.

THE BOW CONTROVERSY.

As the controversy between the proprietors of Suncook and the proprietors of Bow, in relation to the ownership of their lands, had much to do with the settlement of the township and the subsequent history of both, as well as the history of Pembroke, which is, in part, made up of territory claimed by both, it is proper to explain the origin and progress of these conflicting claims.

The controversy grew out of a dispute between the provinces of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, in relation to the boundary line between them. Both claimed the land in question. In 1725-6 Massachusetts granted the township of "Penny Cook."<sup>1</sup> Soon after the grant was made, in May, 1726, the proprietors, or grantees, accompanied by a committee of the General Court of Massachusetts, proceeded to run the boundary of the township, and divide a portion of the same into lots for settlement. While they were so engaged, New Hampshire sent a committee to remonstrate, and notify them that New Hampshire owned or claimed the land, and intended to hold it. Notwithstanding this notice, the Massachusetts committee, with the grantees, continued the work, and the settlement of the township was commenced the same year. During the following March, 1727, New Hampshire granted to 100 or more persons, residing mostly in Stratham and adjoining towns, the township of Bow, containing eighty-one square miles, or a tract nine miles square, which included the greater part of Penny Cook granted by Massachusetts the year before. August 6, 1728, Massachusetts granted the township of Suncook, adjoining Penny Cook, paying no regard to Bow, which New Hampshire had granted in 1727.

By referring to map No. 1,<sup>2</sup> the relative size, shape, and position of the townships will be seen, and that Bow included the larger part of both Penny Cook and Suncook. November 1, 1728, less than three months after the grant was made, the grantees of Suncook finished running the bounds of their township, while the grantees of Bow did not complete theirs till February 28, 1729. In October, 1730, the grantees, or proprietors of Suncook, divided a portion of their township, principally on the easterly side of the Merrimack, into lots. December 9, 1730, the proprietors of Suncook drew for their lots, and it is very probable that the settlement of the town commenced the next year, 1731.

The proprietors of Bow, notwithstanding, proceeded in 1732 to lay out into lots the same, and other adjoining, territory, paying no regard to the division already made by the Suncook proprietors, the lots lapping and overlapping each other. Under such circumstances, is there any wonder there was a controversy? Both parties believed their titles were valid, and that their mother governments would support them in their claim. We have not been able to learn that the Bow proprietors themselves made any settlements within their territory for several years, or that any were made there, except those made by Penny Cook and Suncook proprietors.

The same year that the Bow proprietors made the division into lots, July 31, 1732, the Suncook proprietors held a legal meeting and chose Benjamin Parker, William Lovejoy, and Josiah Chandler a committee, and "fully empowered them jointly or severally in the name and behalf of the proprietors, to sue and prosecute any person or persons that have or shall trespass, or make any improvement on any of the undivided lands within the township of Suncook, without leave or consent of y<sup>e</sup> proprietors afores<sup>d</sup>, and defend any suit commenced or that shall be commenced against them and pursue the same to final judgment, and to join with or assist any particular proprietor, disposed to sue or prosecute any person for any trespass done, or that shall be done, on his particular interest, or defend and secure him against any suits, or arrests, against him or his interest &c. till the proprietors shall otherwise order."

This meeting was held about the same time the Bow proprietors were trespassing, as the Suncook proprietors believed, on the lands of the latter. The vote passed appears to have been intended as a notice that these proprietors were in possession, and meant to hold and maintain their rights. As no other mention of the controversy is made in the records till after the line between the provinces was established, in 1740, we judge little was done in relation to the matter by either party during the interim. Neither province was disposed to yield. An appeal was made to the king, and a commission agreed upon, consisting of councillors from the provinces, Nova Scotia, New York, New Jersey, and Rhode Island, with power to establish the line between the provinces of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. These commissioners met at Hampton, August 1, 1737. The assembly of New Hampshire also met at the same place, and that of Massachusetts in the adjoining town of Salisbury. The occasion was one of great interest to both provinces, and both parties made the best showing possible. New Hampshire claimed that the southern boundary line of said province "should begin at the end of three miles north from the middle of the channel of Merrimack river where it runs into the Atlantic ocean, and from thence should run on a straight line west, up into the main land (toward the south sea) until it meets his majesty's other governments." Massachusetts claimed the southern boundary line of New Hampshire "should begin at the sea three English miles north of the Black Rocks, so called, at the mouth of the river Merrimack as it emptied itself into the sea sixty years ago, thence running parallel with the river as far northward as the crotch or parting of the river; thence due north as far as a certain tree, commonly known for more than seventy years past by the name of Endicott's tree, standing three miles northward of said crotch or parting of Merrimack river, and thence due west to the South Sea." On the northerly side of New Hampshire, Massachusetts claimed a line "beginning at the entrance of Pascataqua Harbor passing up the same to the river Newichwannock through that to the farthest head thereof, and from thence a due northwest line till one hundred and twenty miles from the mouth of Pascataqua harbor be finished."

The reader will remember that at that time Massachusetts owned, or claimed, what is now the state of Maine. New Hampshire claimed for her northerly, or easterly, boundary, a line which should "begin at the entrance of Pascataqua harbor and so pass up the same into the river Newichwannock and through the same into the farthest head thereof and from thence northwestward (that is north less than a quarter of a point westwardly) as far as the British dominion extends, and New Hampshire should include the westerly half of the Isle of Shoals."

The court, as the commissioners styled themselves, fixed the northerly, or easterly, boundary line of New Hampshire as follows: "The dividing line shall pass through the mouth of Pascataqua harbor and up the middle of the river Newichwannock (part of which is now called Salmon Falls) and through the middle of the same to the farthest head thereof, and from thence north two degrees westerly until one hundred and twenty miles be finished from the mouth of Pascataqua harbor afores<sup>d</sup> or until it meets with his majesty's governments."

With regard to the southerly line of New Hampshire, the commissioners described two lines, a choice between which was left dependent upon the decision of a question of fact, which they said was in doubt, and which they referred to "his most sacred majesty, in his privy council, to be determined according to his royal will and pleasure." This part of the decision was of no benefit to either party, and both made an appeal to the king, giving their reasons for their action. The question came before the king and council March 5, 1740. That part of the commissioners' report establishing the northerly, or easterly, boundary line of New Hampshire, was affirmed, while that part which related to the southerly line was entirely set aside, and the southerly line of New Hampshire, or northerly line of Massachusetts, was determined as follows: "That the northerly boundary of the province of Massachusetts be a similar curve line, pursuing the course of Merrimack river, at three miles distance on the north side thereof, beginning at the Atlantic ocean, and ending at a point due north of Pawtucket falls; and a straight line drawn from thence due west, till it meets with his majesty's other governments." This last described line is the present line between the states of New Hampshire and Massachusetts, so far as has been ascertained. By this decision New Hampshire acquired a strip of land fourteen miles wide and about fifty miles long more than she had claimed.

We do not propose to give the reasons for the claims made by the provinces, nor the arguments used by the counsel on either side in support of their claims. New Hampshire was very fortunate in the selection of an agent to manage the case, and for her good fortune and increase of territory she was greatly indebted to the superior intelligence and activity of her agent, Mr. Thomlinson, and the ingenuity and eloquence of his solicitor, Mr. Parris. He represented Massachusetts "as a vast, opulent, overgrown province, and New Hampshire as the poor, little, loyal, distressed province, ready to be devoured, and the king's own property and possessions, swallowed up by the boundless rapacity of the charter government."

After this discussion by the king and council, there was no further question within which province the townships of Suncook and Bow were. The Bow proprietors were jubilant over their good fortune, while the Suncook proprietors were dejected, though not, as would appear, entirely discouraged. A special meeting of the proprietors was called for October 6, 1740, probably soon after learning the decision. The meeting was held at the meeting-house in Suncook, and the following preamble and votes are recorded:

The proprietors of this township being informed that by the determination of his majesty in council, respecting the controverted bounds between the province of Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire, they are excluded from the Massachusetts Bay to which they always supposed themselves to belong, therefore, unanimously voted that a petition be preferred to the king's most excellent Majesty setting forth our distressed estate & praying that we may be annexed to the said Massachusetts province, Voted that Thomas Hutchinson Esq<sup>r</sup>, be empowered to present the s<sup>d</sup> petition to his majesty & to appear & fully to act for & in behalf of the above s<sup>d</sup> Proprietors respecting the subject matter of s<sup>d</sup> petition according to his best discretion. Voted that Mr James Burbeen be desired and empowered in the name and behalf of the proprietors afores<sup>d</sup>, to sign said petition. Voted that Mr James Burbeen be desired and empowered in case said Thomas Hutchinson Esq<sup>r</sup> refuse to serve as afores<sup>d</sup>, to make choice of any other person according to his best discretion to prefer said petition as afores<sup>d</sup>. Voted that Mr James Burbeen be empowered to go into the province of New Hampshire and take out such coppies of grants of lands or townships as he shall think proper and further to act or transact at the best of his discretion in the behalf of the proprietors afores<sup>d</sup>, and to make return of his doings.

Although Mr. Burbeen was instructed to make returns of his doings, no such return was ever made, or, if made, was ever recorded, hence we are left in ignorance of the result of his action. Nor do we know what were the views of the proprietors in relation to their status. When calling their meetings they claim to be in the county of Middlesex. In the call for a meeting April 26, 1742, they claim to be a township in the province of New Hampshire. In the call for a meeting August 25, 1742, they claim to be a township in the county of Middlesex "Alias" Province of New Hampshire. At the last mentioned meeting the proprietors Voted to choose and empower three men to act and do anything as they shall think proper in defending their properties against the claims of the inhabitants of the province of New Hampshire. Voted and chose Joseph Blanchard Esqr Benjamin Rolf Esqr and Noah Johnson, to have full power to act or transact in behalf of said proprietors anything or use such means which may be thought to be for the best advantage of s<sup>d</sup> proprietors and to use such ways and means as they shall think best to defend the proprietors rights and properties against the claims of any of the inhabitants of the province of New Hampshire in New England either in the courts of s<sup>d</sup> province or in the courts of Great Britain. Voted to raise three pounds old tenor upon Each proprietyship in s<sup>d</sup> Township & a List of the s<sup>d</sup> assessment be comited to the Collector for to Colect s<sup>d</sup> money for the use of aboves<sup>d</sup> spedily. Voted that s<sup>d</sup> Joseph Blanchard Esqr, Benjamin Rolf Esqr and Noah Johnson aboves<sup>d</sup> they or either of them shall have full power to empower and authorize any person or persons under them to act or do anything in behalf of s<sup>d</sup> proprietors afores<sup>d</sup> as they may act or do themselves as afores<sup>d</sup>.

In November following another meeting was held, in the call for which the place is named "a township in the province of New Hampshire 'alias' county of Middlesex named Suncook or Lovewell's Township." At the meeting they "Voted and chose Richard Waldron Esqr and John Vassel Esqr to proceed to Great Britain to Join with and in Concert with Eliakim Palmer Esqr in behalf of said proprietors apply to his Majesty in Council to obtain his majesty's Royal Order for the quieting the said proprietors possessions of and Just Rights in their said properties against all attempts that have been or may be made against them by any of the inhabitants of the province of New Hampshire by Reason of His Majesty's Determination." They also chose a committee to sell undivided lands to raise money to defray the expense they had been at in defending these lands. At a subsequent meeting the committee reported that they had sold 120 acres of land to Ephraim Blunt for 120 pounds, the required sum. After this date, November 23, 1742, when meetings were called, the township is represented as being in his majesty's province of New Hampshire, leaving off the term "County of Middlesex."

January 3, 1743-4, a meeting was held, and a committee chosen to sell "so much of the undivided land as will amount to the sum of one hundred and twenty pounds and the money kept in bank for the uses hereafter mentioned viz The execution that now lyeth against Mr Andrew M<sup>c</sup> Farland and also to carry on a review for the s<sup>d</sup> M<sup>c</sup> Farland to defend his properties against Thomas Brier of Stratham &c and the charges that may arise from the same &c.” A report recorded, is as follows: “Upon a public Vendue at the house of Mr Stephen Holt Inholder, Mr Ephraim Blunt bid one pound sixteen shillings per acre old tenor for common lands in Suncook. Also s<sup>d</sup> Blunt paid down to the Com<sup>tee</sup> viz Noah Johnson Joseph Baker & Richard Easman the sum of one hundred and twenty pounds old tenor and the s<sup>d</sup> Ephraim Blunt is to take up s<sup>d</sup> land in the bounds of Suncook where he seeth cause to to the value of 120£ at one pound and sixteen shillings p<sup>r</sup> acre &c, January 30 1743-4.” Although the proprietors of Suncook had voted to petition the king in council, and had chosen committees and agents to act in their behalf in defending their rights and properties, this is the first mention in the records of any suit, or action that had been commenced, either by any of the Suncook or Bow proprietors. It is not known how long this suit, Brier v. McFarland, had been pending, as the record states that the “execution now lyeth against Mr Andrew M<sup>c</sup>Farland &c.” However, it would appear that the proprietors were in great trouble, for at the next meeting, held March 21, 1743-4, they chose “Collonol Benjamin Rolf Esqr and Mr Andrew M<sup>c</sup>Farland and Dea. Noah Johnson to be a committee to go and treat with the proprietors of the town of Bow at their annual meeting and to see upon what terms or agreement they will come into with us concerning our lands which they have in dispute with us and see if s<sup>d</sup> proprietors will take up with such offers or proposals as the province or provinces shall make unto them or some other way so that all controversies or Law suits may be ended for the future that so it may be for theirs and our peace and benefit &c.” This vote certainly was a very peaceful one. It is not known how the committee were met by the proprietors of Bow at their annual meeting, but we judge they were kindly received, because a meeting of the Suncook proprietors was called for May 3, 1744, probably as soon as convenient after the annual meeting of the Bow proprietors, at which the following action was taken: “Chose Collonol Joseph Blanchard Esqr, Noah Johnson, Timothy Knox Joseph Baker and Samuel Goatt to be a committee vested with full power to make a full agreement with s<sup>d</sup> proprietors of the town of Bow concerning our lands which they have in dispute, viz or with the committee that they shall choose to treat with us viz for the whole of said lands contained in our township if such an agreement can be reasonably obtained, Otherwise to make up a full and absolute agreement with us who are in possession even us who shall subscribe hereto ”

Also voted "that s<sup>d</sup> committee have power to choose a committee or referees to make said controversie or agreement as fully as they might do, in case the aforesaid committee cannot or do not obtain it." This vote seems very comprehensive and amicable in its language, and acting under it, we can hardly imagine how the parties could fail of making a satisfactory settlement. Four of the committee were resident proprietors, and owned land which was in dispute, hence it is reasonable to suppose that they were anxious for a just settlement. As we do not find the controversy with Bow mentioned again in the records till a meeting was held May 23, 1750, almost six years after, we are quite sure that an arrangement was made which was satisfactory for several years.

The records make no mention of the terms of this agreement, or settlement, which was probably only verbal, but from another source we learn that the Suncook proprietors were to pay a certain fixed price per acre for the land in dispute, though we are unable to state the amount. In a few years, probably, some of these lands fell into other hands and this agreement failed to be satisfactory, and disputes and lawsuits were again in order. The petition from the committee of the Bow proprietors to the General Court, in 1757, given in the latter part of this chapter, fully explains the difficulties under which these proprietors labored, and the causes that led to the law-suits. We give an extract from the petition here, that the reader may understand the matter more fully. "The home lots or first division in said township of Bow which were laid out for forty acres each, by some mistake fall short as to some of them which contain not much more than half that quantity and the lots laid out by the proprietors of Suncook run across those obliquely so that one of those interferes with several of these in many places. That by this means one person has to agree with several for his particular lot and some of those are minors with whom no valid agreement can be made." The reader will readily see the difficulty there would be in settling with several men for land which could with great difficulty be surveyed to ascertain the contents, and after it was surveyed, it might be found to belong to several heirs, and they perhaps minors. No wonder there were law-suits!

At a meeting of the proprietors of Suncook, held May 23, 1750, voted, "that Lieut Benjamin Holt of Suncook, Capt Peter Ayer and Benjamin Gale of Haverhill be a committee to take bonds of such as shall oblige themselves to defend their lands in Suncook and also for the approbation of the sale of their lands in Suncook. Voted that said committee shall deliver up the bonds which shall be given to them on said terms upon the obligees demand if the bonds given Contain not the value of thirty original Rights. Voted that Benjamin Johnson be and hereby is Empowered to carry on the Law suit already commenced against Benjamin Holt and any other that may arise in said Suncook by virtue of any claim under the government of the province of New Hampshire. ”

At a meeting of the proprietors held October 11, 1752, “ Voted that so much of the common and undivided lands in Suncook be sold as may be necessary to pay the charge of the former law suits arising by any grants of land made by the government of New Hampshire for the future ” and “ voted that Joseph Baker, Robert White and David Abbott be a committee to make such sale and also to prosecute any person who shall trespass upon said common land and so from court to to court till final judgment.” It was also “ voted that Dea. Johnson Dea Easman and Joseph Baker pay the money in their hands belonging to the proprietors, to such persons as need it to defray the charge of the law suits made by any of the proprietors of Bow.” This was the last meeting held by the proprietors of which we have any record, till a meeting was called in 1774 for another purpose. From the votes passed at the meetings, May 23, 1750, and October 11, 1752, we judge there had been several suits commenced against the Suncook proprietors with decisions against them, in the courts of New Hampshire. Although the proprietors had several times voted to carry these cases to the courts of Great Britain, it is not probable that any were so carried, on account of the great inconvenience and expense which would attend a trial there. The reader will remember that Bow included a large part of Penny Cook (Rumford) as well as Suncook ; for this reason there was the same controversy with Rumford as Suncook. Dr. Bouton, in his “History of Concord” says,—“ In defending the titles of their lands the proprietors of Rumford had to contend, not so much with the individual inhabitants of Bow as with the government of New Hampshire, for most of the proprietors of Bow had forfeited their rights, by non-fulfilment of the conditions, and the township had fallen into the hands of the associates who, as before observed, constituted the civil authorities of the Province. Hence it was, that an impartial trial seemed impossible, for the government was itself, for the most part, the tribunal before which the case was tried. Judges, jurors, counsellors, and all were in the New Hampshire interest.” The Suncook proprietors had to contend with the same difficulty. In 1750 a suit and writ of ejectment was brought against John Merrill, who lived in Rumford, to recover eight acres of land. The case was tried in the courts of New Hampshire, and decided against Merrill. An appeal was taken, and the Rev. Timothy Walker was sent to England as agent for the people of Rumford, to defend the case, the decision of which would decide all similar cases. Mr. Walker made three journeys to England before the case was finally decided in Merrill's favor in 1762, about twelve years after the suit had been commenced, and three years after the incorporation of Pembroke.

Up to 1753 there had never been a town-meeting held within the township of Bow as such, the proprietors' meeting having been held in Stratham. In June, 1753, a special act of the legislature was passed, appointing Daniel Pierce, Esq., to warn a town meeting of the inhabitants of Bow. It was warned for July 25, 1753. At the meeting Moses Foster, John Coffin, Richard Eastman, David Abbott, and William Moore were chosen selectmen. They were all Suncook men, living within the limits of Bow. It is probable that Rumford people did not attend the meeting. These selectmen received two warrants from the province treasurer, to assess taxes upon the inhabitants of Bow. They declined assessing the taxes, giving their reasons for their action. Among these reasons were the following: That they did not know who were inhabitants of Bow; that the boundaries of the town had never been properly run out according to the charter; that the inhabitants of Rumford asserted that they did not live in Bow, and refused to give an inventory of their estates; that if they should proceed to tax such as in their judgment were inhabitants of Bow, many would refuse to pay, and consequently they would be thrown into law-suits which would probably ruin them.

In 1755 Jonathan Lovewell was appointed by the General Court to call a town meeting in Bow for April 22, for the choice of officers. He called the meeting and made a return, "that he warned the meeting and attended as moderator, but only one inhabitant of Bow attended." From the result of these two meetings, it is apparent that the inhabitants of Suncook, as well as those of Rumford, were determined that they would not acknowledge themselves citizens of Bow. The government seemed to resent this apparent disregard of its authority, for the next year, 1756, it passed what was called the "Bow Act" for assessing and collecting taxes in Bow. In this act Ezra Carter and John Chandler of Rumford, and Moses Foster of Suncook, all represented as of Bow, were appointed to assess polls and estate in said town of Bow in the sum of 580 pounds and 16 shillings. They were required to give ten days' notice, that all might have time to give a list of their polls and ratable estates. Those who refused to do so, were to be doomed to pay an additional sum to pay costs. Timothy Walker of Rumford and John Noyes of Suncook, both represented as of Bow, were appointed to collect and pay the sums on their respective lists, on penalty of forfeiting said sums themselves. If the assessors failed, or refused, to do their duty, the province treasurer was authorized and required to levy said 580 pounds and 16 shillings upon their estates, and for want of such estates, upon their bodies. Neither the inhabitants of Rumford or Suncook were satisfied with such treatment. The inhabitants of Rumford petitioned for forbearance and redress of their grievances, but we are unable to tell what action the inhabitants of Suncook took.

It will be remembered that the suit commenced against John Merrill of Rumford, by the proprietors of Bow in 1750, was as yet unsettled, and was still in the courts of Great Britain, with at least a doubt as to the result. This, with the tumult and strong feeling created by the outrageous and arbitrary "Act" referred to above, undoubtedly had a tendency to open the eyes of the Bow proprietors, and prompt them to more mild and friendly measures, for during that same year, 1756, a movement was made for an amicable adjustment of the difficulty, as the following petition, from a committee of the Bow proprietors to the General Court, would seem to indicate :

Wherefore your Petitioners Humbly pray that the laying out of the said Lots the Return & Record thereof as done by y<sup>e</sup> said Proprietors of Bow (or so many of them as may be necessary for y<sup>e</sup> ends aforesaid) may be entirely annulled & vacated that your Petitioners or some others may be enabled to lay out other unimproved Lands in said Township sufficient to be a just equivalent to the owners of s<sup>d</sup> Home Lots under the said proprietors That the Land so laid out for said Home Lots may be taken, deemed & adjudged as common Land so far as relates to them or those claiming under them that they may be authorized to dispose thereof as they might have done if it had not been by them laid out as aforesaid in order for the proposed accommodation & agreement or so far as is Necessary to answer y<sup>e</sup> desirable Ends proposed and that your Petitioners may have Liberty to bring in a Bill accordingly and they shall as in duty bound ever pray &c<sup>1</sup>

This petition was presented to the General Court at its session in January, 1757, and favorably received. The petitioners were given leave to bring in a bill, which they did, but the bill for some reason was laid over till the next session. In 1758 the bill was again before the General Court, but only reached its second reading, as we learn from the Journal of the House of that date. We have no means of knowing what the provisions of the bill were, only as we judge from the language and apparent spirit of the petition, nor is it essential that we should know, as it did not become a law.

The reason for this action of the House is evident, for at this same session John Noyes, who resided in that part of Bow which had been a part of Suncook, had presented a petition, as agent for sundry persons, inhabitants of said place, and of Bow and places adjoining, asking for the incorporation of a township, or parish, including that part of Bow east of the Merrimack river and south of Soucook river, and also a place called Suncook, and a place called Buckstreet. A copy of this petition, with the act incorporating the town of Pembroke, will be given hereafter in the annals. It is worthy of notice that in this petition it is said "that it is not proposed, by erecting such a township, the property of the lands should be affected." Hence the same controversy continued in relation to the ownership of the land as before. As previously stated, the suit against John Merrill was decided in Merrill's favor in 1762, and was the only suit, so far as we know, that was carried to England for trial. The people of Rumford had employed Benjamin Rolfe, Esq., and Rev. Timothy Walker to defend the suit, as upon its decision depended similar cases. We find no evidence that Suncook proprietors employed Mr. Walker to act in their behalf. Mr. Walker made his third and last journey to England on account of this suit in the fall of 1762. In a letter to friends at home, dated December 23, 1762, he writes, "Last Friday ye 17 inst we had our tryal; have obtained judgment in our favor." Again he says, "What is done, and what was said, in the case, if truly represented by any body whom Bow will believe, will, I am persuaded, effectually discourage them from any further attempts, even against Suncook—much more against Rumford; yet I suspect their lawyers will urge them on to further tryals, with what success time must discover." The grounds of defence made by Mr. Walker's counsel were, first, the declaration made by the king when he appointed the commission to fix the boundary between Massachusetts and New Hampshire, that their decision should not affect the ownership of lands; and the second was, ownership by occupation, which was claimed. The king's counsel, after hearing the case, in the report to the king, gave the circumstances of the grant of Rumford and the settlement thereof, and also the same in the case of Suncook, after which is the following: "That notwithstanding his Majesty has been pleased, at the time of issuing the said commission to fix said boundary, to declare the same was not to affect private property, yet certain persons in New Hampshire, desirous to make the labors of others an advantage to themselves, and to possess themselves of the towns of Pennicook, otherwise Rumford, and Suncook as now improved by the industry of the appellants and the said first settlers thereof, whom they seek to despoil of the benefit of all their labors," etc. This short extract from the report of the king's counsel, and the king's decision in Merrill's case, is sufficient to show the reader the state of feeling in relation to the claim of the Bow proprietors upon the lands of the Suncook proprietors, and sufficient to cause the Bow proprietors to abandon their claim upon the Suncook lands in Pembroke, as well as those in Rumford. From this date we hear of no more suits having been commenced to recover such lands.

CHAPTER VI.

PROPRIETARY ANNALS, 1740-1749.

As will be seen by consulting the plan of the township, Suncook at this time included a part of the present towns of Pembroke, Bow, Hooksett, and Allentown. North Pembroke and Buck street were not included, as they were not settled till ten or more years after. The north and east parts of the town were an unbroken wilderness. The settlers, for the most part, were scattered over the town, and not, as might be inferred, on lots bordering on what is now Pembroke Street, as in 1748 there were only seven or eight families there. The meadow lots on the rivers were valuable for the wild grass growing there, and reached by paths through the forest. The interval lots along the Merrimack are supposed to have been the cornfields of the Indians, and for this reason were open and ready for cultivation at the first settlement.

A trustworthy tradition has it, that the early settlers sought the high lands for homes, not so much for the fertility of the soil, as to protect themselves more easily from the Indians, whose trails were usually along the river banks, and who rarely turned out of them to do injury save when on the war path. Besides a smaller clearing sufficed to give them a broader outlook.

Of the settlers of this period, who early disappeared from the records, we may name Dudley Bradstreet, David and Benjamin Chandler, Andrew McFarland, William McLaughlin, and Abner Gordon. The reason of their leaving is not certainly known, but possibly because of Indian troubles. Others have descendants still living in town.

The war between France and England, which had long threatened, was declared early this year, and in consequence the settlements of New England were exposed to the attacks of the Indians on the whole frontier. The French officials in Canada incited, armed, and rewarded them. Conscious of their danger, the inhabitants took speedy means for their protection. Tradition says four block houses<sup>1</sup> were constructed in town, of green logs, two stories in height, the upper one projecting, and affording port-holes, enabling the occupants the better to protect the sides of the structure. One of these stood where Moody K. Wilson now lives, one where the late John Ham lived, one on the Vose place near the cemetery, once occupied by Rev. Aaron Whittemore, and the other where the late Samuel E. Moore lived. These were places of refuge in case of an attack. The last mentioned was protected by a stockade. Arms were carried on every occasion, as well when going to meeting on the Sabbath, as elsewhere. They were stacked during service, but ready for use at a moment's warning in case of need.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> It is not certainly known how many resident land owners there were in Suncook at this time (1744) but the assessors in 1748 give a list of twenty-three, counting the heirs of Timothy Knox one, and including Rev. Aaron Whittemore and John Cochran, and also John McNeill, whose residence the assessors give as Amoskeag, though he appears to have been in town years before. From tradition and other sources of information, we are able to fix with reasonable certainty their places of residence.

Rev. Aaron Whittemore lived on lot No. 3, now known as the Vose place ; John Cochran on lot No. 1, probably a little south-east of the present Methodist church in Suncook village, and near where the old Osgood house stood ; Moses Foster on lot No. 62, in the west near where Moody K. Wilson lives ; Benjamin Holt, probably on the north side of the lot No. 38, on which David Dodge now lives, opposite the late John Ham's house ; heirs of Timothy Knox, on lot No. 7, where Henry T. Simpson lives ; Richard Eastman owned and probably lived on lot No. 8, the next north of Simpson, who now owns the land ; Francis Doyen lived on lot No. 11, on the west side of Main street, now owned by Isaac W. Hobbs ; John McNeill owned lot No. 44, and if in town, probably lived there, near where James Dodge now lives. James Moore owned, and probably lived on lot No. 13, where his great grandson, Samuel E. Moore, lived. James Mann owned, and probably lived, on the east end of lot No. 48, of which Jabez Chickering's home place forms a part. Thomas McConnell lived on lot No. 53, where his son, Major Samuel McConnell, afterwards lived—no buildings there now, but the land is owned by Crosby Knox ; Ephraim Blunt, on lot No. 51, where Lieut. Samuel McConnell afterwards lived—the buildings now gone ; Robert and James White, on lot No. 54, next north of G. W. Stone's home farm, about mid-way of the lot now owned in part by Henry C. Morrison—buildings now gone ;

So great did the people deem the emergency, the following petition was sent to the New Hampshire assembly for a garrison of soldiers to prevent the breaking up of their settlement, and their financial ruin.

To His Excellency Benning Wentworth Esqr. Captain General and Governor in chief in and over his Majestys Province of New Hampshire in New England the Honourable the Council and House of Representatives in General Court Convened.

The memorial and Petition of Moses Foster in the Name and Behalf of the Inhabitants of the Plantation of Suncook in Said Province,

Humbly Sheweth,

That the Said Plantation has been Settled by His Majestys Subjects about Eleven years and a Gospel minister ordained there Several years.

That the Settlers had an eye at enlarging His Majestys Dominions by going into the Wilderness as well as at their own Interest

That several Thousand Pounds have been spent in clearing and cultivating the lands there and erecting Houses, Barns, and Fences; besides a large additional Sum in Fortifications, lately made by His Excellency the Govenours Order.

That the breaking up of the Settlement will not only ruin the Memorialists, but in their Humble Opinion greatly disserve His Majestys Interest by encouraging his Enemies to encroach on His derelict Dominions and be also hurtful to the Province by contracting its Borders and by drawing the War nearer to the capital.

That it was by a long and importunate Intercession of this Province (and not of the Memorialists seeking ) that they are put under the immediate care of this Government which they apprehend gives them so much the better Right to its Protection.

That as War is already declared against France and a Rupture with the Indians hourly expected your memorialists unless they have Speedy help will be soon obliged to dissent their Settlements how disserviceable so ever it may be to the Crown, and this Province and ruinous to themselves

Wherefore your Memorialists most humbly Supplicate your Excellency the Honourable Council and House of Representatives to take the Premises into Joseph Baker, on lot No. 55, where George W. Stone lives. Moses Tyler owned, and probably lived on lot No. 56, where William Stone now lives, though he afterwards lived on the easterly end of lot No. 43. Deacon Elias Whittemore owned one half of lot No. 47, first division, and half of lot No. 18, second division. It is not certain where he lived at this time—1747 or 1748—but afterwards he lived on lot No. 18, second division, where Augustus T. Robinson lives. David Abbot lived on lot No. 60, lately occupied by David L. Holt; Thomas Cunningham, on lot No. 59, the lot next north of Mr. Holt's farm, now without buildings. Thomas Russ owned lot No. 21; William Knox, lot No. 23; Samuel Gault, lots Nos. 24 and 25; and Andrew Otterson, lot No. 26. All probably lived on their land, but it is not known where their buildings were situated, as the first road through the lots was much farther east than the present one.

In 1747 the inhabitants of Suncook petitioned the governor and council for protection against the Indians. The last petition had 34 signers—all those named above, except Rev. Aaron Whittemore, Thomas McConnell, and Ephraim Blunt, and fourteen others. Of these fourteen, seven probably had families, and were land-owners, though it is somewhat uncertain whence they derived titles to their lands, nor are we able to fix their places of residence with as much certainty as the above, as we must rely entirely upon traditionary evidence.

Caleb Lovejoy lived on lot No. 37, a few rods north of Charles Whittemore's house; David Lovejoy, farther south on the east side of Main street. Afterwards both moved farther back, Caleb on the fourth range, and David on the third. John Noyes lived on lot No. 34, north of the Congregational church; John Fife, on lot No. 13, second division, now known as the Dolby, or Garvin farm. John Knox was probably son and one of the heirs of Timothy Knox, and lived on the old homestead. Samuel Smith lived somewhere near where Solomon Whitehouse lives, on lot No. 61, in the west; Joseph Brown, in the south part of Suncook, south of William F. Head's, perhaps on lot No. 17, second division.

The other seven who signed the petition were John Mann, Patrick Gault, Andrew Gault, James Otterson, James Rogers, William Moore, and William Knox, with one exception, probably sons of older settlers. By referring to Map No. 2, the reader can locate by the number of the lots the residences of the thirty families then supposed to be residing in town. They were somewhat scattered, occupying a territory some six miles in length. It is worthy of note, that we have no knowledge that more than two of the original grantees—Francis Doyen and Noah Johnson—ever settled in town.

your wise and mature Consideration and to grant them such Seasonable Relief as may enable them to maintain His Majesty's Dominions in so ancient and well regulated a Settlement as well as to secure their own Lives and Fortunes against the Ravage and Devastations of a Blood-thirsty and Mercy-less Enemy and your Memorialists as in Duty bound will ever Pray.<sup>1</sup>

During the whole year the province was in arms. The settlers of Suncook, however, were not molested.

1745. It would seem that the above petition failed to secure the desired relief, or if so, merely temporarily, for in June of this year another, in view of the existing emergency, was sent, a copy of which we give :

To His Excellency Benning Wentworth Esqr. Capt. General, Commander & Gov in chief in & over his Majesties Province of New Hampshire in New England, the Honourable his Majesties Council & House of Representatives in General Court convened.

The Memorial & Petition of Benjamin Holt in the name and behalf of a major part of the inhabitants of the New plantation commonly known by the name of Suncook or Lovewells Town in said Province Humbly Sheweth,

That the said plantation has been settled By his Majesties Subjects about fourteen years, and a Gosple Minister upwards of seven, that the settlers had an eye at enlarging his Majesties Dominions by going into the Wilderness, as well as at their own Interest

That many thousand pounds have been spent in clearing & cultivating the Lands there, and many more in erecting Houses Fortifications, Barns and Fenses.

That the Buildings are properly formed for defence, and Well scituated for a Barrier being on Merrimack River about a Days march below the Confluence of Winnipishoky and Pemissawasset Rivers Both of which are gang ways of the Canadians to the Frontiers of this province and within a Weeks March at farthest from a very Strong Fort Built within these few years by the French at Crown point, which will be a Place of constant Retreat and Resort for the French and Indians in all their Expeditions against English Settlements.

That the Breaking up of the Settlements will not only Ruin the memorialists, But in their humble opinion greatly disserve his Majesties interest by encouraging his Enemies to Enroach on his derelict Dominions and be also hurtful to the Province by contracting its Borders and drawing the War nearer the capital.

That it was by a long and importunate intercession of this Province (and not of the memorialists seeking) that they are cast under the immediate care of this government which they apprehend gives them so much Better Right to its protection.

That as War has been declared against France for some time and a Rupture with the Indians has benn hourly Expected many of the inhabitants of said Plantation by Reason of their being so exposed to Eminent danger from their Enemies have already moved from said Plantation The Season of the year being such as to give the Indians an opportunity of Disturbing the Frontiers.

And your memorialists unless they have sufficient & speedy help will be soon obliged to Evacuate said Plantation how disserviceable soever it may be to ( the ) crown Dishonourable to the government Hurtful to the Province and Ruinous to themselves

Wherefore your Memorialists most Humbly supplicate your Excellency the Honourable Council & House of Representatives to take the Premises into your wise and mature Consideration and to grant them thirty or forty soldiers to be posted at said Plantation for scouting Watching, Warding & guarding, with Sufficient Military Stores or otherwise to grant them such aids Both with Respect to men & military stores as your Excellency & Honours shall think sufficient to secure your Memorialists Lives & Fortunes against the Ravage and Hostilities of our said Enemies. And your memorialists as in duty Bound Shall ever pray.<sup>1</sup> 1746. It has been said that during this year the citizens of Suncook replaced the old log meeting-house with a substantial frame structure, more suitable to their purpose, and that so great was the interest in the movement, that the whole town turned out to the raising, and many from surrounding townships came to their assistance, among them, as tradition affirms, the Bradleys of Rumford, who soon after perished by the hands of the Indians. But this lacks confirmation, and Indian disturbances render it improbable. One was built, however, in due time, and served the purpose of a meeting-house and town-house for forty or more years. It stood at the north-east corner of the cemetery till the beginning of the present century, when it was moved to the present Whittemore homestead and converted into a barn which is still standing.

An attack of Indians in Rumford, in August, resulting in the killing of five, and carrying captive to Canada of two, naturally alarmed the people of Suncook, and led them to be on the alert to guard against surprise. The rapid firing of the three guns was the signal for the hastening of men, women, and children to the garrison-houses for safety. Commissioned officers, among them Rev. Aaron Whittemore, were stationed in command. Great danger attended all farming operations, as there was necessarily exposure, but every risk was taken rather than leave their homes. Worthy to be allies of the heroes of Pigwacket, they inspired their foes with a wholesome terror of unerring guns, and kept them at bay.

The following familiar names of Suncook men were on the roll of Capt. Daniel Ladd's scouting party, who did service in the neighborhood during the summer :

Petition for a Guard.

The Humble Petition of Sundry Persons Inhabitants of a Place called Suncook in said Province

Shews

That your Petitioners live very much Exposed to the Indian Enemy & may with truth & Propriety Say they get their bred at the Peril of their lives by Reason of the Sword of the Wilderness—there being no place within 18 or 20 Miles from them, from whence they could Expect any help in Case of an Attack from the Enemy—Whereby their Husbandry is greatly Impeded & not only So but they must be Obliged to Quit their Plantations & Come in to Some place or places of Greater Safety unless Supported where they are

That the breaking up of the frontier Settlement is a thing of a bad Tendency & Consequency many ways, which is too obvious to need particular mention as also that it is much better for the Public Safety to keep the Enemy at as Great Distance as possible, and Your Petitioners having at great Expence (to them) bro't their Settlements to a good Degree of Improvement are the more unwilling to Quit them wherefore they Humbly Pray that a number of Soldiers May be Sent to Guard & Defend them while they are Cultivating & Improving their Lands and doing their necessary Labours of the Summer Season & be otherways aiding & assisting to them in the usual & Customary way & manner, & they shall as in duty bound Ever Pray

Sebatis, Christi, and Plausawa, who were acquainted with the neighborhood, were supposed to be the Indians leading the attack.<sup>1</sup>

In answer to these petitions the assembly ordered that "eight good effective men" be impressed, and posted at Suncook, to be changed once a month, until the 20th of October, if need be.

These were times that tried men's souls, calling for great precaution, alertness, heroism, and endurance. Their homes, harvests, and lives were in constant peril. Perpetual vigilance was the only assurance of safety. As they valued all that was dear to them, they were led to develop those strong and sterling qualities of character, which made conspicuous the nobility of their manhood and patriotism.

Nor were the women far behind the men in the display of qualities demanded by the exigency of the times. We give a couple of illustrations of their spirit.

It is said that Hannah, daughter of the brave Capt. John Lovewell, and wife of Joseph Baker, was washing by a spring, or stream, when an alarm was given of the presence of Indians in the neighborhood, which was a signal for all to betake themselves to some garrison-house. John Fife, and her husband, on their way to a place of safety, found her at her work, and urged her to flee for shelter. But she was resolute and persistent. Having work on hand, she would not move till mouth of the Suncook river. While at work they were surprised by the Indians, and Mr. Carr, in an endeavor to escape, was shot and killed. The other two, not offering resistance, were hastened, unharmed, into captivity. After traversing the wilderness to Canada, they were sold to a French trader in Montreal, and, after remaining there about eleven months, escaped, and reached home in safety. The Indians afterwards plundered several houses not far from the meeting-house, and then withdrew without further damage. As a natural consequence, tidings of the attack led the inhabitants to the shelter of the garrison-houses.

she had finished, Indian or no Indian. The men, in their hurry to reach the fort, left her. Telling there the story, a rescuing party was sent after her, and found her leisurely coming to the garrison with her basket of clean clothes.

Mrs. Whittemore, wife of the first pastor of Suncook, also displayed great coolness and courage in the face of the enemy. During an Indian raid, when the women and children in the vicinity were safely within the garrison, and the men were away at work in field or forest, by a thoughtful ruse, displaying rare and heroic daring, she speedily delivered the community of its eminent peril. Donning her husband's clothes and taking a sword, she appeared at the window, and with a stentorian voice, gave a series of seeming orders, as to men ready for the fight. Thus, giving the Indians the impression it would not be safe for them to make an attack, they beat a hasty retreat, and left the intrepid woman and those with her, to enjoy with satisfaction the safety so cleverly secured.

It will be remembered that Suncook was granted by the Province of Massachusetts Bay, but afterwards fell to the Province of New Hampshire. This sometimes occasioned doubts as to the authority in conducting the business of the plantation. This is shown by the following petition :

The Petition of the subscribers in behalf of themselves and sundry others being Proprietors of a Tract of Land called Suncook

Most Humbly Shews

That whereas the Great and General Court of this Province in their bounty was pleased formerly to Grant a Certain Tract of Land at a place Called Suncook to a Company of Volunteers under the Command of Cap<sup>t</sup> John Lovewell &c: the Said Proprietors did proceed to Erect a meeting-house for the public worship of God, and also have ben at the Great Cost and Charge, to settle a Gospel minister viz: one m<sup>r</sup> Aaron Whittemore, all this being done while we were under the Jurisdiction of this Province; the said plantation now falling within the Province of New Hampshire, has caused Great Difficulties to arise Respecting the Support of the Rev<sup>d</sup> m<sup>r</sup> Whittemore, which hath Necessitated the said m<sup>r</sup> Whittemore to bring his action against the Said proprietors, for the arrear of his salery and accordingly Recovered a Judgment at the Last Inferior Court holden at Charlestown within and for the County of middlesex, for nine hundred and Twelve Pounds one shilling old tenor, accordingly Execution Issued, the said m<sup>r</sup> Whittemore upon Payment Discharged the Said Proprietors of about Two hundred, Eighty six Pounds fifteen shillings old tenor,—and the Remaining Sum of six hundred and Twenty five Pounds five shillings and Eight pence, old tenor, one of the Proprietors viz: m<sup>r</sup> Jeremiah Swain was Compelled to Pay, with the officers fees being about fifteen Pounds fourteen shillings old tenor, and although there is many of the Proprietors redy and willing to Pay their Just Proportion of Said Execution, yet there are Sundry others who obscond and will not Pay, there being no authority in the ordinary Course of Law to Compell them there to, and the Same uncommon Difficulties will Still Continue for the future—

Therefore we Pray that your Excellency and Hon<sup>rs</sup> would take our Case into your wise Consideration so far as to make Some Special act to Enable and furnish the Said Proprietors with authority to Compell Every member there of to Pay his Particular Quota not only to the above Said sums, and all Charges occasioned thereby; but that the Rev<sup>d</sup> m<sup>r</sup> Whittemore, for the future may have his Sallery Seasonably without any Law Suit as your Petitioners by Duty Bound Shall Ever Pray

The petition was favorably received, and September 5, 1747, the following act was passed for their relief :

In obedience to such notice, the proprietors held a meeting at the place designated on October 20, and after choosing the required officers the following business was transacted:

Voted and agreed to Raise the Sum of Eleven Hundred Pounds old tenor, to be Proportioned on the Proprietors of Suncook, and to be Dispos'd of, to Defray the Charge of the Law Suit which y<sup>e</sup> Rev'd m<sup>r</sup> Aaron Whittemore has already brought against the Said Proprietors, and other Charges occasioned thereby, also for the Charge of assessing and Collecting the Same.

Voted and agreed to raise the Sum of Two Hundred and Twenty Pounds old tenor, to be Proportioned on the Proprietors of Suncook, and to be Dispos'd of to Fulfill the Contract, between the Rev'd m<sup>r</sup> Aaron Whittemore and said Proprietors, and to Defray the Charge of assessing, and Collecting the Same.

The officers chosen were duly sworn to the faithful discharge of the duties of their respective offices, before John Osgood, justice of the peace.

1748. The committee appointed for the purpose, fixed on March 31 as the date of the first annual meeting after the passage of the foregoing act. Accordingly on that day it was held, and the board of officers of October 1747 were re-elected. The following votes were passed:

Voted and agreed to Raise the Sum of one Thousand Pounds old Tenor, to be Proportioned upon the Proprietors of Suncook, and to be Dispos'd of for the Payment of the Law Suit which y<sup>e</sup> Rev'd m<sup>r</sup> Aaron Whittemore has already brought against the Proprietors, and the Charge of assessing and Collecting the Same.

Voted and agreed that Benjamin Johnson is hereby authorized and Impowered, to appear as agent for Said Proprietors, at the Great and General Court of the Province of New Hampshire, to Pray them to afford Some Suitable aid or Relief, Respecting the assessing, and Collecting the Rev' m<sup>r</sup> Aaron Whittemores Salery, or any other matters Relating to Said Plantation at Suncook.

Voted and agreed that Benjamin Johnson is hereby authorized and Impowered, to appear as agent For Said Proprietors, at the Great and General Court of the Province of the massachusetts Bay, in any matter or things Relating to the Plantation at Suncook.

This appointment of Benjamin Johnson as agent of the proprietors, to appear before the General Courts of New Hampshire and Massachusetts Bay, as there might be need, seems to indicate that at this time there was still some doubt as to the proper source of authority, to enable them legally to raise money for the minister's salary, and other necessary expenses in the management of the plantation. The assessors, however, according to the act passed by the General Court of Massachusetts Bay, in September, 1747, made an assessment of twenty-two pounds on each proprietor, to raise the thirteen hundred and twenty pounds voted at their October meeting, furnishing the list January 30, 1748.

On April 5, 1748, they also assessed on each proprietor sixteen pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence, to raise the thousand pounds voted at the annual meeting March 31, 1748.

As a matter of interest to those who would know the tax-payers of that early day we subjoin the list, adding also the original grantees.

After the passage of the act relating to the raising of the minister's salary, and appointment of a committee to make the necessary arrangements for the carrying out of its provisions, the committee held regular meetings for this purpose, and had their action duly recorded. A meeting was always held previous to the calling of any meeting of the proprietors.

1749. The annual meeting of the proprietors was held at the house of Henry Abbot, innholder, Andover, March 28. Benjamin Hall, Moses Tyler, Benjamin Johnson, Ensign Stephen Holt were chosen a committee to settle accounts with Rev. Aaron Whittemore "Respecting his Salery," and the meeting was adjourned, to meet at the same place, at one o'clock, May 16.

This sum of £1,200 was duly assessed upon the proprietors, but the list was delivered directly to the collectors, and never recorded.

At a meeting of the proprietors of Suncook, held at the house of Henry Abbot in Andover, September 13, Benjamin Johnson, Ephraim Blunt, Stephen Holt, Ebenezer Ayer, Moses Tyler, Noah Johnson, and Benjamin Holt were chosen a committee to lay out the common and undivided lands "as soon as may be," and draw the expense from the treasury.

CHAPTER VII.

PROPRIETARY ANNALS, 1750-1759.

1750. Agreeable to notice inserted in the Boston Weekly Gazette, the proprietors held their annual meeting March 23, 1750, at the house of Henry Abbot in Andover. The usual parish officers were chosen.<sup>1</sup>

1751. The meeting of the proprietors was held at the house of Henry Abbot, Andover. After choosing officers, adjourned to May 15. At the May meeting again adjourned to June 12. No meeting was held in June, and "therefore fell through."

1752. Notice of the annual meeting was "posted up at the several towns where the proprietors principally resided." It was held at the house of Henry Abbot, Andover, March 31. After electing the old board of officers, the meeting was adjourned to June 24. Non-attendance prevented the adjourned meeting.

The special act of the General Court of Massachusetts to enable the proprietors to raise money to pay their minister, which was to continue in force five years, expired September 5.

On September 13, 1749, it will be remembered, a committee was appointed to lay out the common and undivided lands of the township. Repairing to Suncook to make investigation, they found a large quantity of such land on the west side of the Merrimack, and laid out sixty-six lots, the best containing "one Hundred acres and they <sup>1</sup> Other business transacted will be found summarized in the chapter on the Bow Controversy, pp. 45, 46.

Qualified the other Lots which by Reson of Badness of Land & Situation were not so valuable with the addition of more Land and made them Equal to the Least Lots, according to their best Skill & Judgment." In this report, dated September 23, 1752, they give a detailed description of their action.

On October 11 a meeting of the proprietors, duly notified, was held at the meeting-house in Suncook.

A vote was passed granting to Benjamin Johnson, Ephraim Blunt, Stephen Holt, Ebenezer Ayer, Moses Tyler, Noah Johnson, and Benjamin Holt, the committee laying out the lots, and Lieut. Benjamin Rolfe, assisting, lots Nos. 1, 2, and 3, next to Rumford line, containing 400 acres, more or less, "in full Satisfaction for their service in laying out Said Division," to be divided according to the money due each.

A vote was then taken to proceed immediately to the drawing of lots on the west side of the Merrimack, which was done according to a list taken in the "Names and Rights of the original Grantees."

It was also voted that any person "that has Drawn his lot and Dont like it may have liberty to Release the Lot he has already Drawn and take up another Lot in Lieu thereof upon his own charge in the undivided Land on the west side of the merrimack river and to be laid out in the same form as the other Lots." Two or more of the committee first laying out the land were to give their approbation.

A vote was also passed granting to Dea. Richard Eastman, "and his heirs and assigns forever," 32 acres of land on the north side of Suncook river, between lot No. 1, first division, and No. 60, second division, bordering on the river, reserving six rods through the same for a road.<sup>1</sup>

1753. At this time, it appears, a portion of ancient Suncook was not included in any township, and persons inhabiting it were not liable to taxation. This naturally was not pleasing to tax-payers in surrounding townships and led, by petition probably, to the passage, January 31, 1753, of an act by the General Court of New Hampshire, joining them with a part of Penny Cook, in one district, and compelling them to pay their proportion of the province tax.

During this year, Robert Cochran<sup>2</sup> of Londonderry was thrown from his horse in town and killed. Accordingly a coroner's inquest was <sup>1</sup>By an act of Parliament in 1751, Old Style (O. S.) was changed to New Style (N. S.) by dropping eleven days from the calendar after September 3, 1752, making the next day September 14, 1752. This was rendered necessary because of the gradual changing of the time of the solstices, resulting from the fact the earth requires 365 days and 6 hours nearly to complete her revolution around the sun, and reckoning only 365, she was gradually falling behind in her path at any given date, which, at the time of the change, amounted to 11 days. To prevent future error, one day was to be added to February every year thereafter divisible by 4, except years divisible by 100 and not by 400. Such are called leap-years.

1754. As no meetings were held, we have no records covering this and several following years, rendering any extended account of the transactions of public interest impossible.

During this year, however, war with France was again declared, involving conflicts with the Canadians and their Indian allies. This, as a natural consequence, filled the public mind with apprehension and fear, as they became conscious of their perpetual exposure to peril from sudden raids of the enemy. Yet the memory of earlier experiences led them to exercise greater watchfulness, and not to be content simply to defend themselves when assailed, but to plan an aggressive warfare into the enemy's country. Such action, in a successful issue, furnished the only ground of assurance for a final and permanent peace. Suncook was always ready to do her part in all these efforts to accomplish an end so desirable.

1755. By appointment of the General Court of New Hampshire, Jonathan Lovewell warned a town-meeting in Bow, April 22, for the choice of officers, and the transaction of such other business as might legally come before it. He was present at the time and place appointed to serve as moderator, but, in his return, was under the necessity of reporting "that there was but one inhabitant of the town of said Bow that attended."

During this year, several from town joined in the expedition against forts DuQuesne, Niagara, and Crown Point, as will be seen elsewhere.

1756. During this year, a committee of the proprietors of Bow, which had previously been appointed to obtain, if possible, a peaceful and satisfactory settlement with the proprietors of Suncook, finished their labors, and the result of their action, as far as known, will be found in the chapter on the Bow Controversy.

1757. The time had now come for the people of Suncook to take action in the matter of seeking for the incorporation of the town.

It is to be remembered that nearly a score of years before, the inhabitants of Suncook had entertained the idea of asking for incorporation. In the warrant for their annual meeting, as early as 1742, an article was inserted to see what action the proprietors would take in the matter. At the meeting held on April 28 of that year for some reason it was "Agreed to Let that article Drap Concerning petitioning for town privileges for the present."

1758. At this later date, the petition for such purpose was not sent in without remonstrance. The proprietors of Bow, for good reason, as they thought, doubtless from the fact that their claim embraced a large portion of Suncook, were not pleased with the idea. Accordingly on April 6, 1758, through their selectmen, they spoke of the proposition as follows: "If they should be favored with their request, it would strengthen them in their error, and weaken our just right, and prevent the proposed agreement from being vigorously pursued. We humbly conceive that they ought not to be so fully disunited from the town of Bow, and exempted from subjection to it as they ask, but they be a Parish in the town of Bow; for we cannot conceive what end it can answer to make a township and grant privileges to a society to regulate themselves according to the laws of the land, when we are putting the same laws in execution to dispossess them."

We can well understand the nature of their grievance in seeing a portion of their territory likely to slip away from them. Their remonstrance, however, did not prevent the favorable entertainment of the petition by the General Assembly.

The petition was as follows:

The Humble Petition of John Noyce of a Place called Suncook as Agent of Sundry of the inhabitants of said Place & of Bow & Places adjoining.

Shews—

That there are near Sixty Families Inhabiting within the Boundaries of the Township of Bow of the Said Place Called Suncook & a Place called Buck Street which are Situated So near one another as to be Convenient for a Township but Some of them are upon Lands not within any Township & others within Said Township of Bow by Reason whereof they cannot all join and Act as a Place Incorporated—That they have a Minister of the Gospel Settled among them who has been for a Considerable time Supported by Voluntary Contribution which fall heavy on a few of them while others go free and as they have thots of Building a Meeting House which is now Necessary it will be Still a Greater Burthen on those who are Willing to do all they can to advance the Settlement of the Lands there than if they had Authority to Lay a Just & Proportional Tax on all who may Enjoy the Benefit of it—

That the Bounds they Propose for a Township are as follows viz on the West by Merrimack River on the North by SouCook River on the East by the Townships of Chichester & Ipsom & on the South by Sun-Cook River within which Limits is Contain'd about the Quantity of Six Miles Square and they are Natural and Suitable Boundaries for a Township—

That it is not Proposed that by Erecting Such a Township the Property of the Lands should be Affected—But as part of Said Lands fall within the Bounds of Bow which is a Township already Incorporated it is necessary the Proposed Incorporation Should be made by a Special Act to Disunite & Exonerate the Said Inhabitants from the Duties of the former Incorporation

Wherefore your Petitioner in behalf of his Constituents Humbly Prays That a Township may be made by the Boundaries aforesaid & Infranchised with the usual Liberties Powers & Privileges of Corporate Towns in Said Province & Exempted from Subjection to any other Town and that he may have Leave to bring in a Bill Accordingly And he Will Ever Pray<sup>1</sup>

1759. The foregoing petition of John Noyes, in behalf of the inhabitants of Bow living on the east side of the Merrimack, was received with favor, and liberty was given to bring in a bill to that effect April 25, 1758. This was accordingly done.

Decisive action on the petition, however, not having been taken previously, in October the following address was sent to the Governor to influence such decision, by a committee of the proprietors of Bow, who for some reason seem to have been led to change their opinion, and favor, rather than longer remonstrate against, the granting such petition :

Whether or not this had any weight with those in authority and hastened final action, we are not informed, but certain it is, that within three weeks thereafter the following act of incorporation was granted :

In MSS. Vol. 8, p. 235, in the office of the secretary of state, may be found the original document, giving a crude plan of the premises mentioned in the foregoing petition for an incorporation, showing the land proposed to be included.

By referring to Map No. 1,<sup>1</sup> it will be seen that the town of Pembroke at its incorporation included a large portion of Bow previously unclaimed by the proprietors of Suncook. The lots had been laid out in eight ranges, running north and south, numbered from the Merrimack, separated by a "range road," all of which are wholly, or in part, in use to this day. The laying out of the lots in the first four ranges followed the Suncook plan, in the second four, the Bow plan.

On the passage of the foregoing act of incorporation, the Plantation of Suncook, or Lovewell's Township, ceased to be, and the Town of Pembroke took her place in the fair sisterhood of the Commonwealth of New Hampshire, henceforward to enjoy all the peculiar rights and privileges belonging to towns.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE MASONIAN CLAIM.

By referring to Map No. 1,<sup>1</sup> it will be seen that the town of Pembroke, as incorporated, is bounded on the north-west by the Soucook river which separates it from Concord; on the south-west by Merrimack river, which separates it from Bow; on the south-east by the Suncook river, which separates it from Allenstown; and on the north-east by Loudon, Chichester, and Epsom. It was primarily divided into two parts by the south-easterly line of ancient Bow. The part north-west of said Bow line is also divided into two parts by the easterly line of ancient Suncook. The settlers on the east side of said Suncook line obtained titles to their land from the proprietors of Bow, while those on the west side at first purchased their lands from the proprietors of Suncook, but were afterward obliged to purchase them from the proprietors of Bow, as shown in the account of the Bow controversy.

That part of the town south-east of the aforesaid Bow line, or between said Bow line and Suncook river, is also divided into two parts by the easterly line of Suncook. The settlers on the westerly, or Suncook side of said line, at first purchased their land of Suncook proprietors, but were afterwards obliged to purchase again of the Masonian proprietors, while the settlers east of the Suncook line took titles at first, either by gift or purchase, from the Masonian proprietors, as will be shown hereafter. This easterly part was called Buckstreet. It is not positively known whence the name. There is, however, a tradition that in early times the deer, in their migratory travels up and down the Suncook river, were wont, when going up river, to leave the river near where William Goss now lives, and approach it again near where True S. Pettengill lives, and vice versa, when passing down the river. Hence the name "Buck road," or "Buck street." We do not vouch for the correctness of this tradition, but in the absence of a better reason for the name, are inclined to accept it as true.

It has been claimed, and believed by many people, that the strip of land between the Suncook river and the ancient Bow line, which the Masonian proprietors call the "Gore," once constituted a part of Allentown. We will state a few brief facts, and leave the reader to draw his own conclusion.

In 1688, Samuel Allen, Esq., of London, Eng., purchased of the two sons of Robert Tufton Mason the territory of New Hampshire. Allen commenced actions against certain citizens of New Hampshire to recover the lands, but failed to establish his claim. He is said to have paid a large sum of money for the claim, and to have expended much in the suits at law which followed.

After his decease his children, in 1722, petitioned the Government of New Hampshire for the grant of a township of land, and there was granted to them "a tract of land four miles square adjoining Chester side line, and Nottingham head line, upon the condition that they settle fifteen families on the same within five years, but in case of an Indian war within that limitation then to have so many years after the end of said war, to perform said condition." We have never been able to learn that Mr. Allen's children, either themselves, or by others, attempted to run out their grant, to learn where it was, or that they attempted to make any settlement within the territory. The early settlements in the westerly part of the town were made in ancient Suncook by people who purchased their lands from Suncook proprietors. Those in the easterly or south-easterly parts were made upon lands purchased of the Masonian proprietors, after they purchased the claim of John Tufton Mason to the lands of New Hampshire, and had divided the territory, which they called "Allen's Town," into lots, and drawn for them in 1752, as will be shown hereafter. The only practical effect, so far as we have been able to learn, of the grant to Allen's children, was to give a name to the territory south-east of Suncook river. The Masonian proprietors in their meeting April 11, 1750, styled it "Allen's Town," and the strip of land in question, "The Gore adjacent to Allen's Town."

In 1759, when Pembroke was incorporated, no mention was made of Allenstown, as in fact there was no such town to mention. The act of incorporation includes "a part of Bow, a place called Buckstreet, and a place called Suncook." The part of Bow is that part of Pembroke north-west of Bow line, the place called Buckstreet is that part of the strip of land in question east of the before-mentioned Suncook line, and the place called Suncook is that part of the strip west of said Suncook line. The inhabitants, who settled within the territory, now Allenstown, were, from time to time, granted certain privileges by the Legislature, or General Court, of New Hampshire, and they performed certain acts, as other towns, but the town was not incorporated till 1831. The inhabitants petitioned to be annexed to Pembroke, but did not succeed. By petition to the General Court in 1798, they set up the claim that this strip of land was taken off from Allenstown, when Pembroke was incorporated, and asked that it be again annexed to Allenstown. The General Court, however, did not grant the prayer of their petition, but fixed the southerly line of Pembroke on the southerly bank of Suncook river.

The first settlements at Buckstreet are supposed to have been made between 1750 and 1755. As they were made under the auspices of the Masonian proprietors, it seems proper to explain the origin of the Masonian claim, and the proceedings of the proprietors who purchased it.

In 1606, King James of England granted by patent the territory called Virginia, in America, limiting it from the thirty-fourth to the forty-fourth degree of north latitude. This territory was divided into two parts called North Virginia and South Virginia. The latter was assigned to certain gentlemen of London, styled the "London Company." North Virginia was assigned to certain gentlemen of Bristol, Exeter, and Plymouth, styled the "Plymouth Company." They, however, were not satisfied with their patent. They petitioned the king for an enlargement, and confirmation of their privileges. The king, in 1620, established a council, consisting of forty members, called "The Council established at Plymouth in the county of Devon, for the planting, ruling, and governing of New England in America." It was styled the "Council of New England," or "Council of Plymouth." Their territory extended from the fortieth to the forty-eighth degree of latitude north, and their charter was the foundation of all future grants of territory in New England.

In 1621, John Mason obtained from the council of Plymouth a grant of land "from Naumkeag, now Salem, round Cape Ann to Merrimack river, and up each of said rivers to the farthest head thereof, then to cross over from the head of one to the head of the other, with all the islands within three miles of the coast."

In 1622, Fernando Gorges and John Mason jointly obtained a grant of all the land between the Merrimack and Sagadahoc rivers, extending northerly to the great lakes and river of Canada.

Massachusetts was granted by the same company, March 4, 1629, extending easterly and northerly to a line three miles northerly of the Merrimack, and thence northerly parallel with said river from its mouth to its source, or head. This grant covered Mason's grant of 1621.

The same year John Mason obtained another grant, which was styled New Hampshire, and was as follows: "All the land from the middle of Piscataqua river up the same to the farthest head thereof and from thence northward till sixty miles were finished, from the mouth of the Harbors. Also through the Merrimack river to the farthest head thereof and so forward up into the land westward till sixty miles were finished, and from thence to cross over land to the end of the sixty miles accounted from the Piscataqua together with all the islands within five leagues of the coast." This grant covered a portion of the grant of Massachusetts; also a portion of the grant of Gorges and Mason in 1622. The fact that the two grants of New Hampshire and Massachusetts covered the same territory, was the cause of the long dispute between the two provinces in relation to the boundary line between them, which was finally settled by the king in 1740. Subsequently other grants were made within the same territory, by the Plymouth company, which in 1735 surrendered its charter to the crown, after having made these grants, lapping on and overlapping each other, in this unaccountable manner. As we purpose to speak only of Mason's claim, we leave this subject here.

John Mason, either alone, or in company with others, spent large sums of money making settlements on the territory granted him, but died in 1635. Before his death he made his will in which he gave 7,000 acres of land in New England to sundry persons upon certain conditions, and then devised all the rest of his lands in the county of New Hampshire, or elsewhere in New England, "to his grandson John Tufton, the heirs of his body lawfully begotten, and for want of such issue, to his grandson Robert Tufton, to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten, and for want of such issue, to his cousin Dr. Robert Mason, Chancellor of the Diocese of Winchester, and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten, or to be lawfully begotten, and for want of such issue, to his right heirs and assigns forever," thus creating what was called an entail. He also made a provision that his grandsons should surname themselves Mason before they should be capable of enjoying the bequest. This the grandsons did. John, the older, dying without issue, Robert Tufton Mason, the younger, became the owner of the land in New Hampshire.

Robert spent many years in England investigating and considering his claim in New Hampshire, but finally obtained an order from the king supporting his claim.

About 1682 he, with his two sons, came over from England and formally took possession of his land, and commenced a settlement. Not long afterwards he died, leaving the two sons, John and Robert, in possession. In 1688 they sold their claim to the lands of New Hampshire, to Samuel Allen, a merchant of London, for a large sum. It is uncertain how much was ever paid. Measures were taken to dock the entail created by the will of John Mason in 1635, but the proceedings were in England, and the land was represented to be in the county of Norfolk in England, by reason of which the entail was not cut off, or docked, but still existed. Allen's title remained good during the life of the grantors. Allen came to New Hampshire, and commenced actions of ejectment against some of the inhabitants to recover the lands. The cases were tried in the courts of New Hampshire, both inferior and superior, with decisions against Allen. He appealed, and the cases were tried in England with decisions still against him. The ground of defence was, that the defendants had occupied the land sixty years, holding it by possession, not disputing Allen's title to the waste or unimproved land, or land which had been but lately occupied. Allen, however, died soon after. John Tufton Mason, the older of the brothers, had died in Virginia without issue, a few years after the sale to Allen, but Robert, the younger, lived till after the above-mentioned decision, when he died, leaving one son, John, and several daughters. The entail not having been docked legally, this John became the owner of the unoccupied land of New Hampshire, and what had been but recently occupied. He, however, took no measures to assert his rights. He was a sailor, and died in Havana in 1718, leaving two sons, John and Thomas. Upon his father's death, John, the older, became owner of the unoccupied land of New Hampshire within his ancestor's grant. He soon became aware of his good fortune, and found plenty of people to share with him. His claim was of sufficient importance to induce the province of Massachusetts to enter into negotiations with him for the purchase of part, or all, of his claim, referring, probably, to his claim under the grant to John Mason in 1621. According to Dr. Belknap, they purchased 23,675 acres, paying him 500 pounds currency. Belknap also says, "they also paid his expenses to England to establish his claim." Hearing of this trade, Mr. Thomlinson, agent of New Hampshire, entered into negotiations with him to release his whole claim to New Hampshire. Thomlinson made a contract, or agreement, with Mason for that purpose. It was written on parchment, and may still be found among the Masonian papers in care of the secretary of state, though somewhat defaced. A copy may also be found in the N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. V, pp. 823–825. The agreement was dated April 6, 1739, and was “tripartite,” a sort of triangular agreement, John Tufton Mason of Boston, but then of London, England, of the first part, John Ringe, Theodore Atkinson, Andrew Wiggin, George Jaffrey, and Benning Wentworth, of the second part, and John Thomlinson of London, of the third part. It traced the descent of John Tufton Mason from John Mason, and alleged that, by virtue of certain grants to John Mason, John Tufton Mason was entitled to the ownership of the lands of New Hampshire, and also set forth that the said Ringe, Atkinson, Wiggin, Jaffrey, and Wentworth, owned, or had in possession, certain lands by virtue of certain grants from the government of the Province; that for the purpose of confirming them in their rights, in consideration of seven pounds and seven shillings, to be paid said Mason by said Thomlinson, and 1,000 pounds to be paid said Mason by said Ringe, Atkinson, Wiggin, Jaffrey, and Wentworth, or by the province of New Hampshire, in consideration of which payments, the said Mason should release, or convey to said province of New Hampshire, or to said Ringe, Atkinson, Wiggin, Jaffrey, and Wentworth, his claim to the lands of the said province, subject to a condition, that in all and every future grant, from and after the payment of 1,000 pounds, of any waste land, not heretofore granted, there be always allowed to said John Tufton Mason a lot of land equal in proportion to any other party, or parties, amongst whom such grant, or allotment is made, or given.

The terms of this agreement were never complied with, nor do we learn that anything was done in relation to the matter for several years. Belknap, in his History of New Hampshire, says,—

The agreement which Thomlinson had made, was in behalf of the Representatives of New Hampshire, and the instrument was lodged with the Governor, who, October, 1744, sent it to the house for their perusal and consideration. It lay on their table a long time without any formal notice. Quickening messages were sent time after time. But the affairs of the war, and Mason's absence at sea, and in the expedition to Louisburg, where he had a company, together with the disinclination in the house, which was of a different complexion from that in 1739, prevented anything being done.

In the mean time Mason suffered a fine and recovery,<sup>1</sup> by which the entail was docked, in the courts of New Hampshire, and he became entitled to the privilege of selling his interest.

In 1745 he presented a memorial to the Assembly, in which he told them that he would wait no longer; and unless they would come to some resolution, he should take their silence as a refusal. Intimations were given that if they would not ratify the agreement, a sale would be made to other persons who stood ready to purchase.

At length, in 1746, the house came to a resolution that they would comply with the agreement and pay the price; and that the waste lands should be granted by the General Assembly to the inhabitants as they should think proper. A committee was appointed to treat with Mason about fulfilling his agreement, and to draw the proper instruments of conveyance; but he had on the same day by deed of sale, for the sum of fifteen hundred pounds currency, conveyed his whole interest to twelve persons in fifteen shares.

When the house sent a message to the council to inform them of this resolution the council objected to that clause of the resolve, that the lands be granted by the General Assembly, as contrary to the royal commission and instructions; but if the house would address the King for leave to dispose of the lands, they said they were content.

The reader will readily understand why this delay on the part of the House in complying with the terms of the agreement, which delay resulted in the loss to the province of this vast domain of waste or unimproved land. There was evidently a deep-seated jealousy existing between the representatives who constituted the Assembly, and who were chosen or elected by the people, and cared for their interests, and the council, who were appointed by the governor and were supposed to care most for his and their own interests. The representatives feared if the disposal of the lands was left with the governor and council, they would be appropriated among themselves and their friends; while on the other hand, the council feared, if the disposal were left with the assembly, they would find that they and their friends would be left out in the cold.

The first deed from John Tufton Mason may be found in the Rockingham County records. It was dated July 30, 1746. The grantees' names, and the proportions in which the lands were granted, were as follows: To Theodore Atkinson, three fifteenths; to Mark Hunking Wentworth, two fifteenths; to Richard Wibird, John Moffatt, Samuel Moore, Jotham Odiorne, Jr., Joshua Pierce, Nathaniel Meserve, George Jaffrey, Jr., John Wentworth, Jr., Thomas Wallingford, and Thomas Packer, each one-fifteenth part. The deed set forth that John Tufton Mason was the rightful heir of John Mason, and that said John Mason, by virtue of certain grants, confirmations, and ratifications, owned certain lands described as follows: "Situate in New England in America upon the sea coast between the rivers Merrimack and Piscataqua & running up Piscataqua river to the fartherest head thereof & from thence north westward until sixty miles are completed & so running up the Merrimack river sixty miles & then across the main land to the end of the sixty miles aforesaid commonly called & known by ye name of New Hampshire."

The consideration of the deed was "fifteen hundred pounds good lawful money of the Province of New Hampshire." It conveyed "all that tract or parcel of land situated in ye Province aforesaid containing two hundred thousand acres more or less bounded as follows, viz: — Beginning at ye mouth of Piscataqua river thence up the same to ye fartherest head of Newichawannek river, so called, and the fartherest head thereof and thence north westward untill sixty miles be completed from ye mouth of Piscataqua river aforesaid ye place where it began & then from ye mouth of Piscataqua river aforesaid along the seacoast towards Merrimack river until it comes to the boundary line between the s<sup>d</sup> Province of New Hampshire and ye Province of Massachusetts Bay, and then running as ye said Bounding line runs untill sixty miles be completed from ye sea, then running from the westerly end of sixty miles last mentioned across the land to ye northerly end of ye sixty miles first mentioned together with the southwest half of ye Isle of Shoals."

The deed was signed by John Tufton Mason, and his wife, Anna Elizabeth Mason, who released her right of dower and thirds in the premises. With the deed was recorded the following receipt :

Province of New Hampshire July 30 1746 Received of Theodore Atkinson Esqr & others in the foregoing deed mentioned, fifteen hundred pounds the full sum of the consideration this deed mentioned.

John Tufton Mason.

It will be observed that this deed was intended to convey many thousand acres of land, lying on the westerly side of the Merrimack river, which had not been claimed by John Mason, or any other person heretofore under him, so far as we have been able to learn, which was not set forth in the first part of the deed, as owned by John Tufton Mason. The only wonder is, that these purchasers, in their avaricious greed, did not induce Mason to include the entire territory of the province within the boundaries fixed on the east and north by the commissioners in 1737, and on the south, as fixed by the king in 1740.<sup>1</sup> Not satisfied with claiming sixty miles on the southern boundary line of the province, and running a straight line from thence to the northern extremity of the eastern boundary line, they claimed that their purchase was bounded on the north and north-west by a curved line from one of these extremities to the other, which should be sixty miles distant from the sea coast in all its parts.

By referring to a township map of New Hampshire, it will be seen that sixty miles on the southern line of the state will extend west, perhaps, into Cheshire county, and the same distance on the easterly line, north to Conway. Then in imagination drawing a curved line from one of these points to the other, sixty miles in all its parts from the sea coast, will readily be seen the territory claimed by the Masonian proprietors. It included a large part of Hillsborough county, with a considerable portion of Merrimack county, which was not within Mason's grant from the Plymouth company.

We do not learn that the exact location of this curved line was ever established. From time to time, attempts were made in that direction. September 26, 1751, the proprietors voted "to wait upon the governor to see if he would join them in running the line." October 8, 1761, the proprietors voted "that Walter Bryant & Joseph Blanchard be instructed to complete running and marking the curve line." March 4, 1768, they voted that an address be signed and presented to "Isaac Ringe Surveyor General of all his Majesty's lands in the Province of New Hampshire." This address set forth to the "Surveyor General" the circumstances of their purchase, and the necessity of running the line, and establishing the same. Dr. Belknap, in his History of New Hampshire, says, "Surveyors were employed at several times to make this curve line; but in running first from the southern, and then from the eastern, boundary to the river Pemigewasset, they could not make the lines meet. Controversies were thus engendered between grantees of crown lands, and those of the Masonians, which subsisted for many years. In some cases the disputes were compromised, in others left open for litigation, till, by the Revolution, the government fell into other hands." It would seem, however, that Dr. Belknap was not fully informed in relation to the termination of the controversy between the state and the Masonian proprietors, as will be shown hereafter.

The next day after receiving a deed from Mason, the purchasers of Mason's claim made and caused to be recorded in Rockingham county records, a quitclaim deed<sup>1</sup> of the following towns, viz., Portsmouth, Dover, Exeter, Hampton, Gosport, Kingston, Derry, Chester, Nottingham, Barrington, Rochester, Canterbury, Bow, Chichester, Epsom, and Barnstead. Notwithstanding this quitclaim, the purchasers were severely censured for their action in purchasing Mason's claim, during the pending of negotiations between the provisional government and Mason for the same. Whereupon the purchasers, or proprietors, sent a communication to the committee of the government having the matter in charge, which may be found in full in Provincial Papers, Vol. V, pp. 833-835, wherein they rehearsed the circumstances of the contract with Mason, and the neglect of the assembly to comply with the conditions of said contract, and completely exonerated themselves from all blame on account of the purchase. They claimed that they had made the purchase in the interest of the people and the province, fearing it would fall into other hands less friendly. They referred to the fact that they had quitclaimed the several towns. To assure them of their sincerity and desire to benefit the people and the government, they proposed to sell to the government their claim for the same amount they had paid, with the costs, provided this be done within one month from the date hereof, and "the deed is made to convey the land to the Government to be granted to such inhabitants as the Governor and Council shall grant charters."

<sup>1</sup> That the reader may understand the magnitude and importance of this quitclaim deed, an explanation is necessary. These quitclaimed towns, though few in number, included almost the entire central and south-easterly parts of the state, where, up to this time (1746), nearly all the settlements had been made. The provincial government of New Hampshire, in granting townships, had been neither stingy nor parsimonious. The towns of Epsom and Barnstead have, we think, remained intact as when granted. The town of Gosport has been united to Rye to form one town. The other twelve towns have been divided and sub-divided till, within the territory which comprised the fifteen towns, there are now forty-three entire towns, besides the larger part of the towns of Hooksett, Pembroke, and Concord, and smaller parts of Hopkinton, Allenstown, and Manchester. These forty-three towns are,—Bow, Chester, Candia, Auburn, Raymond, Derry, Londonderry, Kingston, East Kingston, Sandown, Danville, Exeter, Newmarket, South Newmarket, Brentwood, Epping, Hampton, Hampton Falls, Seabrook, Kensington, Portsmouth, Newcastle, Rye, Greenland, Rochester, Farmington, Milton, Dover, Somersworth, Rollinsford, Durham, Madbury, Lee, Newington, Stratham, Barrington, Strafford, Chichester, Pittsfield, Loudon, Canterbury, and Northfield.

The negotiations for the purchase of these proprietors' claims were continued for a long time without a favorable result. It will be noticed that one of the conditions of this their formal offer to sell their claim was that "the deed is made to convey the land to the Government to be granted to such inhabitants as the Governor and Council shall grant charters." After the long controversy which had taken place in relation to this matter, it is not strange that the assembly failed to accept such terms and vote the money to make the purchase.

Failing to sell their claim to the government, the purchasers, or proprietors, called a meeting May 18, 1748, nearly two years after the date of their deed, and organized by choosing Theodore Atkinson, moderator, and George Jaffrey, clerk. They also chose committees to look into, and get copies of, papers to sustain their claim, and to prosecute trespassers upon their lands. They immediately proceeded to grant land for townships, in different parts of their territory. In these grants they professed to be quite liberal, asking no pay for the land, only providing that the grantees, or settlers, should perform certain acts within a limited time, while the grantors reserved to themselves a certain portion of the land upon which they were to pay no taxes, nor contribute anything toward making improvements until their lands should be occupied.

Although the Masonian proprietors had at first quitclaimed the townships of Bow and Chester, within which a considerable portion of ancient Suncook was comprised, still the inhabitants of Suncook appear to have been considerably alarmed at this time, owing to the fact that some of them lived on land not within the limits of either of those towns. This alarm is inferred from a petition signed by Suncook people, of which a facsimile copy is here given.

We also give a copy of another petition signed by Suncook people :

September 30, 1749, Mason, by his attorneys, he being in England at the time, gave another deed of his claim, which he ratified December 11, 1750. It was recorded in Rockingham County records, in 1753. It differed materially from the deed given in 1746, not only in the boundaries given, but in the names of grantees, and the proportion to each. The boundaries are as follows: "Beginning at the sea three miles north from Merrimack river, thence running parallel with said river at the distance of three miles to the head thereof, from thence westward till sixty miles are completed; thence across the land to the inland or northerly end of a line running from the mouth of the Piscataqua up the same to the farther head thereof and then northwestward till sixty miles are completed from the mouth of said river; then beginning at the place three miles northward of the Merrimack, where it first began runs along the sea coast to Cape Ann and round about the same to the middle of Naumkeak, through the river thereof up into the land westward till sixty miles are completed; thence across the land to the inland or northerly end of the line running from the mouth of the Piscataqua river aforesaid." This is a very peculiar deed. It was intended to convey, not only a considerable portion of Massachusetts, but also a portion of New Hampshire. It is probable that it also covered the 23,675 acres which Dr. Belknap says Massachusetts bought of Mason several years before. It was evidently intended to convey all the land conveyed to John Mason by both grants—that of 1621, and that of 1629.

The names of the grantees, and proportions to each, are as follows: Theodore Atkinson, Richard Wibird, John Moffatt, Jotham Odiorne, Joshua Pierce, Thomas Packer, George Jaffrey, Thomas Wallingford, and John Wentworth, Jr., each one fifteenth part; Mark Hunking Wentworth, two fifteenth parts; Samuel Solly, Nathaniel Meserve, John Thomlinson, Daniel Pierce, Clement March, and Mary Moore, each one thirtieth part; Joseph Blanchard, one sixtieth part; Paul March and Joseph Green, each one hundred and twentieth part, thus conveying twenty-nine thirtieth parts, and reserving one thirtieth part for himself.

We do not fully understand why this deed was given. The consideration was only nominal, and it was not recorded till 1753. No mention is made of it in the proprietors' records, nor of any change of proprietors. We do not know whether the proprietors ever really acquired any additional land by reason of this deed. It reserved to John Tufton Mason one thirtieth part. In nearly all cases when land was to be divided and drawn for by the proprietors, it was divided into fifteen lots, or parts, and each man who had a deed of one fifteenth part, drew one share, and those who had a deed of less than one fifteenth part, were coupled together, so as to draw one fifteenth part, Mason drawing his proportion with the rest.

April 11, 1750, the proprietors voted "to empower Thomas Packer to grant to such persons as he should see cause, 1,000 acres of land belonging to said proprietors, known as Allens Town and the Gore of land between that and Bow." In accordance with this vote, Mr. Packer, April 16, made an agreement with sundry persons to settle upon said lands, in consideration of which, and other acts to be performed by them, they were each to receive a portion of the land.

April 25, they voted that "James Cochran of Londonderry be one of the grantees and that Mr. Packer insert his name in the grant that he shall make by virtue of the vote aforesaid." The agreement was signed by Mr. Packer, and fifteen other men, including James Cochran. Among the things to be performed were the enclosure of 1,000 acres, with a suitable fence to protect the herbage, within two months; build a bridge across Great Suncook river at the Isle, within one year; and each one build a house upon his share, or lot, and have a family settled there, within two years, from the date hereof. If any of the persons should neglect, or refuse, to perform their part of the contract, then such person should forfeit his share of the land.

Subsequently there was another similar contract, or agreement, made, though signed mainly by other parties. Only a few of the signers of either of these agreements received deeds of the land. It is supposed that those failing to receive deeds, either forfeited their shares, or sold out their interest to others who took deeds of their shares of the land.

The proprietors voted August 30, 1750, "that the tract of land known as Allen's Town and the tract called the Gore adjoining thereto, be severed to and amongst the proprietors as soon as may be."

September 30, 1750, they voted "that Joshua Pierce and Thomas Packer be a committee to employ a surveyor and chainman to lay out and make a division of the tract of land called Allens Town into fifteen equal shares and only two lots to a share to be coupled in equal values as near as may be and planning suitable highways and return a complete plan thereof and then said shares be drawn for by the said proprietors."

In accordance with this vote, Walter Bryant, a surveyor of note, was employed to make the surveys. He divided a portion of Allen's Town into thirty lots, not including the westerly part which had formerly constituted a part of ancient Suncook, nor some land along the southerly side of Suncook river. He also divided the easterly part of the Gore, or Buckstreet, which the proprietors had empowered Mr. Packer to give to settlers, into fifteen lots, numbering them from one to fifteen, commencing on the westerly side, or end, of the territory. No. 1 extended west to the westerly side line of William Goss's farm, on the northerly side of Buckstreet road.

Lots Nos. 1 and 2 comprise part of the three farms now owned by William Goss, Windsor A. Jenness, and Charles B. Fowler. David S. Batchelder lives on lot No. 3. Lot No. 4 is now owned in part by Jonathan Brown. Its western boundary was lot No. 3, between which two lots the road leading from Buckstreet road to the Mann place was laid out. Sarah P. Knox lives on lot No. 5, which extends easterly to the road that leads from Buckstreet road to the bridge by the mills. Lot No. 6 is known as the Kimball place, now owned in part by Sarah P. Knox. Frank W. Stevens lives on lot No. 7. Lots Nos. 8 and 9 extend easterly from the Hardy road, so called, to the Hiram Batchelder farm, which farm includes lots Nos. 10 and 11, and a piece from the westerly part of lot No. 12. The dividing line between lots Nos. 12 and 13 crosses the Buckstreet road near where it is crossed by the Great, or Ames, brook. Lots Nos. 13, 14, and 15 extend easterly from the easterly line of lot No. 12 to Epsom line near McCoy's cove, so called. Each of these lots extended from Suncook river to Epsom, or Bow line. Map No. 3 shows the relative size and position of these lots.

He also divided the land westerly of these lots, or the Suncook end of the Gore, into nine lots, numbering them from one to nine, commencing on the easterly side, or end, of the territory. The location of these last named lines is not now known, and as this land was probably nearly all occupied and held under titles derived from the Suncook proprietors, it is probable that very little attention was paid to this survey.

He also divided a strip of land on the north-west side of Bow line within the township of Bow, which the Masonian proprietors claimed, into lots. The proprietors of Bow, however, did not propose to yield their claim. In May, 1755, they chose Theophilus Smith, Esq., Daniel Marston, and Samuel Lane, or any two of them, to be a committee to treat with the proprietors of Mason's claim in relation to the line between their respective lands.

In November, 1757, the Masonian proprietors chose Nathaniel Meserve, George Jaffrey, and John Ringe, or any two of them, a committee to settle the boundary line between their territory and the township of Bow.

In 1758 the said Theophilus Smith and Samuel Lane, and the said Nathaniel Meserve and George Jaffrey, in behalf of said respective proprietors, made a report in which they say,—

Having met several times, and produced the claims and demands of each party, they have finally mutually concluded and agreed that the dividing line between the said township of Bow on the southeasterly side thereof, and the lands of said proprietors of Mason's Right, and those who hold as aforesaid, shall be as follows, viz; Beginning on the line of the Township of Epsom at the northeasterly corner of that lot laid out in the right of said Proprietors at a place called Buckstreet numbered twelve, from thence shall run at the head of the lots laid out as aforesaid, at said Buckstreet, on a southwest & by south course until it intersects the head line of the lot Numbered five and from thence on a south west course until it comes to the southerly corner of said township of Bow.

This report was dated January 21, 1758, and signed by Theophilus Smith, Samuel Lane, Nathaniel Meserve, and George Jaffrey, and witnessed by William Parker and Davis Sewall. It will be remembered that a portion of lot No. 12 constitutes a part of the Asa Ames farm, and that lot No. 5, on the northerly side of Buckstreet road, is owned by Isaac G. Russ and Sarah P. Knox.<sup>1</sup>

On May 6, 1752, the proprietors drew for the thirty lots, or fifteen shares, into which Bryant had divided Allen's Town. October 3, 1752, the proprietors took the following action :

Whereas a tract of land commonly called the Gore adjoining to the tract of land commonly known by the name of Allens Town and part of the said tract called Allens Town not yet divided adjoining to said Gore which were intended to be laid out and divided into fifteen equal rights or shares to the rights of fifteen proprietors or their assigns, and Whereas Sundry persons have moved to purchase some improvements they have made upon said Gore, Therefore voted that Joshua Pierce and Thomas Packer be a committee in behalf of said proprietors and are hereby empowered and desired to make agreement with such person or persons who are settled on said Gore or the said tract called Allens Town and to divide the remainder into fifteen equal lots or shares except the mill privilege at the island on Suncook river which is not to be divided but to be disposed of by the committee in the best manner they can, for the advantage of the proprietors and return a plan of the same as soon as may be to said proprietors and then the said lots to be drawn for to the respective rights of said proprietors.

January 23, 1753, the following action was taken :

Whereas by a vote of said proprietors of the 23 day of October last Joshua Pierce and Thomas Packer were empowered and desired to make agreements with such person or persons who were settled on the Gore adjacent to Allens Town so called and part of said Allens Town adjoining to said Gore which were intended to be divided into fifteen equal shares or rights to the fifteen proprietors or their assigns; and as James Cochran and John Cochran have moved to purchase some small tracts within the premises and as there may be also some other tracts not yet improved by any persons which may better accommodate the said proprietors by selling them than having them laid out to their respective rights, therefore voted that the above said gentlemen be and hereby are empowered and desired to sell all the right and title of said proprietors to the tracts moved for by said James & John Cochran to them and such other small tracts in the premises as they shall think will be better to sell for the use of said proprietors than to be divided amongst the shares or rights of said fifteen proprietors and for such sums or on such terms as will be most for the advantage of the said proprietors and to make report of their proceedings to said proprietors as soon as may be.

August 27, 1753, they voted "the lot butted on Buckstreet lot No 1 containing about one hundred twenty acres to Clement March as part of his right in undivided land." This land is now owned by William Goss, George W. Nickson, and Warren D. Foss.

January 14, 1755, Thomas Packer deeded nine of the Buckstreet lots as follows: To Joseph Sinclair, lot No. 1; Samuel Connor, No. 2; Thomas Lucas, No. 3; Daniel Lucas, No. 4; James Lucas, No. 5; Widow Sarah James, No. 7; John McGafney, No. 8; Thomas Fullerton, No. 9; Thomas Hines, No. 15.<sup>1</sup>

In January, 1758, the proprietors instructed and empowered Mr. Packer to deed to James Cochran lots Nos. 13 and 14, lot No. 13 drawn by said Cochran falling short of the quantity contained in other lots. He was to pay for the balance of land in No. 14, above what was necessary to make good the deficiency of No. 13. There is reason to believe he never paid the amount in full.

We find the following record under date of January 24, 1787:

Whereas James Cochran gave his note of hand to Thomas Packer for 162 pounds old tenor with interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per year till paid and whereas said Cochran has paid part of said note and finding his purchase was at a dear rate and having petitioned for an abatement of what is due, the proprietors considering the circumstances of said Cochran, Therefore voted that the said Cochran be and hereby is discharged from said note.

These deeds were quitclaim deeds given in consideration of the grantees having divided the before-mentioned thousand acres of land into lots and returned a plan of the same to said proprietors, and each, except Cochran, having settled upon one of said lots. They conveyed all right, title, and interest of the proprietors in said lands, but reserved to his Majesty's use all white pine trees growing and being thereon.

March 30, 1756, several persons were added to the committee to settle with any persons who had settled upon the "Gore," or upon "any part of Allen's Town" adjacent to the "Gore."

October 21, 1757, they voted to sell to Thomas Lucas a strip on the southerly side of lot No. 3, now owned by D. S. Batchelder. They afterwards voted to pay him back the money, because it had been so much trouble to him.

June 17, 1758, they deeded to John Cochran, mill-wright, of Bow, two pieces of land in the Gore adjoining Suncook river, 190 acres. This was the same land that a few years later he deeded to his sons, Thomas, John, Robert, and James 3d. The land was a part, or all, of lots Nos. 59 and 60, second division, Suncook lots. Mr. Cochran lived undoubtedly on the Bow side of the line, but it is supposed his mills stood on the Gore side. We find no deed recorded, conveying any part of the Mill lot to Mr. Cochran, though it might possibly have been included in the 190 acres aforesaid.

November 22, 1758, the proprietors deeded to James Cochran land in the Gore, lot No. 55, second division, Suncook lots, which had been deeded to him in 1749 by Francis Carr. April 6, 1759, they deeded to him Suncook lot, No. 9, second division, which had been deeded him by Noah Johnson. January 22, 1760, they deeded him another piece of land in the Gore, which, with the two preceding pieces, constituted his farm, the easterly part of which he had, the year before, deeded to his son, Dea. William Cochran. It is now owned by Daniel T. Merrill and his son. The westerly half, now owned by Mrs. Mary Jane, widow of the late Moses R. Lake, he deeded, with the buildings on it, to his son, Maj. James Cochran, in 1766.

April 18, 1760, they deeded to Eleazer Allen two pieces of land in the Gore, containing 45 acres, probably part of two Suncook lots. On the same day they deeded to Walter Bryant land in the Gore extending from Suncook river to Bow line. This land is now owned by Warren D. Foss, where his buildings stand. June 24, 1760, they deeded to Nehemiah McDaniel 108 acres of land in the Gore, comprising Suncook lots, second division, Nos. 57 and 58. It had previously been deeded to him by Francis Carr, who paid the proprietors for it 400 pounds. It now constitutes the farm of Martin H. Cochran, and a part of the Noah M. Cochran farm. December 3, 1760, they deeded to Luther Morgan six acres in the Gore, and to Nathaniel, three fourths of an acre. The Morgans, father and son, lived on the farm now owned by George P. Morgan, which is Suncook lot, first division, No. 28, and had been purchased of Benjamin Holt by Luther Morgan.

June 9, 1763, they deeded to William Martin lot No. 56, second division, Suncook lots, in the Gore, containing 59 acres. As Mr. Martin had lived on it several years, it is probable he had purchased the land previously of the Suncook proprietors, though we find no deed recorded. It now constitutes a part of the Noah M. Cochran farm.

The foregoing deeds convey nearly all the land contained within the Gore. By consulting maps Nos. 2 and 3, the location of nearly all the land here mentioned can be traced out.

December 17, 1760, the proprietors deeded to Jacob Gay 29 acres; December 29, to Andrew Buntin,  $49\frac{1}{2}$  acres. These pieces were not in the Gore, nor in Pembroke, but in the territory which the Masonian proprietors called "A part of Allen's Town adjacent to the Gore, which had not been divided into lots, or shares." We give the boundaries of the two pieces, because we think they fix the location of the first bridge built over Suncook river, and the first road laid out by the Suncook proprietors, through this part of their territory. Buntin's land was bounded as follows: "Beginning at Cochran's bridge and running south  $43^{\circ}$  west 24 rods by said road, then still by said road  $10^{\circ}$  west 57 rods to land in possession of Robert Buntin, thence west 123 rods to Bow line, thence by said Bow line northeast 82 rods to Suncook river; thence by said river to said bridge where we began"; and Gay's land, viz.: "Beginning at the country road, corner of land in possession of Samuel Gault, and runs west 91 rods, thence south 18 rods, then west about 40 rods to Chester line, thence east southeast about 100 rods to land in possession of William Knox, thence by his land east about 40 rods to the road, then by said road, 51 rods to where we began."

This sale to Buntin and Gay was made agreeable to a survey by Walter Bryant in 1760, wherein he paid but little attention to the laying out by the Suncook proprietors.

It will be noticed that Andrew Buntin's land was bounded on the south by land in possession of Robert Buntin, and Gay's land on the north by land in possession of Samuel Gault and on the south in part by land in possession of William Knox. It is not known whether Knox and Buntin who, the Masonian proprietors say, had land in possession, ever purchased these lands of the Masonian proprietors, or not, as no deeds to that effect have been found recorded.

MAP No. 4.

Plan of the western part of Allenstown, which the Masonian proprietors said was adjacent to the Gore, as made by Walter Bryant in 1760.

The reader is referred to map No. 4 for the relative positions of these lots. If he will also refer to map No. 2, representing Suncook lots, and to annals for 1748, he will see that lot No. 2 was then (1748) owned by Jacob Farrar's heirs of Concord, and lot No. 20, by John Barnard of Andover, Mass.; lot No. 21, by Thomas Russ, who lived on it; No. 22, by Timothy Richardson's heirs of Woburn, Mass.; No. 23, by William Knox, who lived on it; Nos. 24 and 25, by Samuel Gault who, with his sons, lived on them; and No. 26, by Andrew Otterson, who lived on it. No. 23 is the lot on which Mrs. Green now lives; Nos. 24 and 25, the lots on which Charles Bailey and Norris C. Gault live; and No. 26, the lot on which William F. Head lives. The reader will remember that these lots did not then run to Merrimack river, but extended a long distance east from the road, as will be seen on the map of Suncook lots.

As the subsequent action of the Masonian proprietors does not particularly relate to Pembroke affairs, we pass over twenty-four years, simply remarking that they continued to hold meetings regularly, or as occasion required, granting townships, and re-granting them when the first grantees failed to perform the conditions of their grant, making sale of, or dividing, reserved or ungranted lands, and attending to such other matters as concerned their interests.

The right of the Masonian proprietors to have a curve line, referred to in the former part of this chapter, from the northerly end of their easterly line, to the westerly end of their southerly line, seems eventually to have been questioned. In 1786 the General Court appointed a committee to ascertain and settle the western boundary line of the Masonian claim. The committee consisted of John McDuffy, Josiah Bartlett, and Archibald Murphy. In March, 1787, they published a notice in the New Hampshire Mercury that they would meet at Exeter, April 3, 1787, for that purpose. The proprietors chose Woodbury Langdon and John Pierce a committee to meet the committee of the General Court. It appears that they were not agreed, for in July the proprietors chose a committee to draft a memorial and remonstrance. In August these were considered and adopted. In September they chose Joshua Brackett and John Pierce a committee to present the memorial and remonstrance to the General Court, and instructed them to employ Benjamin West as counsel to defend their interests. In November they sent again for Benjamin West, desiring his attendance December 10. In February, 1788, the proprietors chose Daniel Ringe and John Pierce a committee, and empowered them "to compromise and settle the claim of the state, or submit, or refer, the whole controversy to men competent to judge, and of character, not inhabitants of the State, and whose report shall be final."

In September, 1788, Ringe and Pierce made the following report:

Pursuant to the powers given us by a vote of the proprietors at their meeting, February 11, 1788, we have treated with the General Court and their agents, and after a tedious negotiation we have agreed on the part of said proprietors in order to obtain a final settlement of said controversy that the said proprietors should pay to the said State eight hundred dollars in specie within one year from the date and forty thousand dollars in State notes of said State within four years with interest on both of said sums, until paid; for the security of said payments we have given the speaker of the house of Representatives for the time being, our joint bond for both said sums, dated on or about the 18th day of June last, and have received from said agents, of said State, properly authorized, a deed of release of all their claim to the lands aforesaid, dated on the 18th of June last which we have already delivered to George Jaffrey Esqr Clerk of said proprietors, and now request said proprietors will take proper methods for the payment of the said bond and indemnify us from all cost, interest or damage, on account of our Signing said bond more than our just proportion thereof

Portsmouth Sept 5th 1788

Daniel Ringe
John Pierce

The proprietors voted to accept the report, and fully approved what had been done, and voted to accept and allow Mr. Pierce's account of his expenses, amounting to 609£-3-4. They also voted to give him 500 acres of the proprietors' ungranted land in the north-east quarter of the patent, near Ossipee, which he was to locate at the expense of the proprietors. They voted to raise and assess the amount necessary to pay the state, and interest on the same, and appointed John Ringe, collector.

It appears the General Court had passed a special act to enable the proprietors to assess the lands owned by said proprietors, between the curve line and straight line, to pay the sums agreed upon. The proprietors had in July before, in anticipation of the foregoing report, taken measures to ascertain what lands were still owned by them, between the curve and straight line, and had chosen John Parker, Esq., of Portsmouth, Col. Ebenezer Smith of Meredith, and Capt. Charles Barret of Ipswich, assessors.

From 1788 to 1801, the proprietors held frequent meetings for the transaction of business pertaining to their lands, but there is no record of any meeting between 1807 and 1846, when a meeting was held which seems to have been a centennial, the first deed having been dated in 1746. The records do not show that any business was done except to choose W. H. Y. Hackett, moderator, and Joshua Pierce, clerk.

Some idea can be formed of the magnitude and importance of the Masonian claim, when we reflect that at the first formal meeting of the proprietors, May, 1748, George Jaffrey was chosen clerk, which office he held till 1801, more than fifty years, during which time the records show that they held more than 1,000 meetings, either original or adjourned.

CHAPTER IX.

ROADS, BRIDGES, AND FERRIES, IN SUNCOOK PRIOR TO 1759.

We preface this chapter with extracts from Dr. Bouton's History of Concord, for the purpose of showing, (1) some of the hardships and inconveniences to which the early settlers were subject, (2) the route of travel from Haverhill, Mass., to Penacook, or Concord, in 1726, and (3) that there was a road, or path, from Haverhill to Penacook, in 1728, when Suncook was granted. Subsequently we shall show where this road passed through Suncook, or Pembroke.

Our first extract is as follows :

A journal of the proceedings of the committee appointed by the Great and General Court or Assembly to lay out a new Township of seven miles square at Penny Cook on each side of Merrimack river.

1726 Tuesday May 10th, This day the committee met at the house of Ebenezer Eastman in Haverhill in order to go to Penny Cook to lay out the township according to order.

Wednesday May 11th Present Hon<sup>ble</sup> William Tailor Esqr. Jn<sup>o</sup> Wainwright Esqr. Capt. Jn<sup>o</sup> Shipley, Eleazer Tyng Esqr. and Mr Joseph Wilder. This day the committee received of several of y<sup>e</sup> settlers forty shillings each, a list whereof was taken; being to defray the charge of surveying the land &c; and prepared the necessary provisions for their journey and the attendants, to Penny Cook. Lowry Weather, with some rain.

Thursday May 12th Early this Morning the Committee above named with Mr John Sanders one other of s<sup>d</sup> Committee began their journey from Haverhill in order for Penny Cook, being attended by twenty six persons including the Surveyors, chainmen and such of the intended settlers as were disposed to take a view of the Lands. About half way between Nutfield<sup>1</sup> and Haverhill at a place called Providence Brook, we baited. About eleven or twelve of the clock we arrived at Nutfield, alias Londonderry, and refreshed Our Selves and Horses with our own provisions at the House of one John Barr, an Irish Tavern Keeper as we were informed; but we had nothing of him but Small Beer. Expenses for trouble at y<sup>e</sup> House 5<sup>s</sup>. About one or two we proceeded on our Journey. This afternoon we forded two Brooks or Rivulets called Great and Little which proceeded from Great Massa Beseck and Little Massabeseck Ponds and empty themselves into Merrimack; and about Five a clock we arrived at a place called Amoskeag Falls, Merrimack River, and there encamped for the night. At Amoskeag Falls we found several Irish people catching fish which that place affords in great abundance. We traveled in a Cart path from Nutfield to Amoskeag, but it was very indifferent Traveling. Cloudy Weather.

Friday May 13th This morning we proceeded on our Journey Very Hilly and Mountainous Land. About eight a clock we passed by a Fall called Onnahookline in Merrimack River, which is taken from a Hill of the same name. About nine a clock we forded a pretty deep Brook or Rivulett called [a blank] and soon after we came upon a large Tract of Intervale Land Joining to Suncook river, where we baited and refreshed Ourselves and Horses. About ten or eleven a clock we forded Suncook River which is a rapid Stream and many loose stones of considerable Bigness in it making it difficult to pass. One of our men going over, having a heavy load on his Horse was thrown off into the River and lost one of the Bags of provisions which we lost, not having time to look after it. Another of our men fell into the River. Here we met two men Col<sup>o</sup> Tyng sent up before us with some stores (Benj<sup>a</sup> Niccolls and Eben<sup>r</sup> Virgin two of y<sup>e</sup> Settlers) and about one a Clock we passed Penny Cook River (alias Shew Brook or Sow Cook) pretty deep and very rocky. Here one of our men tumbled into the River. In a short time after, we came up as far as Penny Cook Falls on Merrimack River and then we steered our course North and traveled over a large Pitch pine plain (indifferent Land) about three miles at least in Length, and proceeded on our Journey, and about five a Clock afternoon we arrived at Penny Cook and encamped on a piece of Intervale Land a plain called Sugar Ball plains, which takes its name from a very high Head or Hill called Sugar Ball Hill whereon was the first Indian Fort as we were informed, which the Indians in old times built to defend themselves from the Maquois and others their enemies.

This diary points out the route of travel from Haverhill to Penny Cook in 1726, viz., From Haverhill to Londonderry, then to Amoskeag Falls, then to Hooksett Falls, then to the intervale south of Suncook village, there fording Suncook river, and along the Merrimack to Soucook river, fording it, and on to Garvin's Falls, and then across the plains in a northerly direction to Sugar Ball plains.

We now propose to show a better route. One of the conditions imposed upon the proprietors of Penacook, when the grant was made, was this: They were "to defray the whole expense of cutting a road through the wilderness to the plantation." At a meeting of the proprietors of Penacook, September 9, 1726, Ensign John Chandler, John Ayer, and William Barker were chosen a committee, "to go out and clear a sufficient cart way to Penny Cook the nighest and best way they can from Haverhill." Richard Hazzen was one who went out "to search out a way from the place where Chester Meetinghouse stands to Penny Cook, and mark the same." Dr. Bouton says "this way was partly cleared during the fall and according to tradition several persons among whom were Henry Rolf and Richard Urann passed the winter of 1726 in the Settlement." Under the date of 1728, he says "the new way from Penny Cook to Haverhill was improved."

We make a few extracts from the records of the proprietors of Penacook :

January 3, 1726-7.<sup>1</sup> Voted that the charge of the settlers hitherto necessarily arising for laying out a cart way from Haverhill to the township be laid before the committee appointed by the Settlers.

March 7th 1727-8 Voted that Ebenezer Eastman Joseph Hall and Abraham Foster be a committee appointed and empowered to amend the new way to Penny Cook from Haverhill.

March 12 1728-9 Voted that fourteen pounds two shillings be allowed and paid unto the several men who have laid their account before us for mending the highways to Penny Cook.

June 29 1729 Voted and allowed Mr Henry Rolf five pounds for his building a ferry boat for the carrying the community and company over the river Suncook.

March 31 1730 Voted that Messrs John Chandler, Ebenezer Eastman and Ebenezer Virgin be a committee to amend and repair the way between the twenty mile tree and Penny Cook in what is necessary not exceeding thirty pounds at the Settlers cost.

Also at the same time

Voted that Messrs John Pecker Ebenezer Stevens and Abraham Bradley be a Committee to amend and repair the necessary roads in Penny Cook according to their discretion for the ensuing year, at the Settlers cost, and also to build a good bridge over Soucook river as soon as may be at the cost of the Settlers also.

From these quotations it appears that in 1726, before Suncook was granted, there was a road laid out, or cut out, from Haverhill, Mass.,

<sup>1</sup> The reader will observe, in this chapter, that when any date occurs between the first day of January and the twenty-fifth day of March, in any year, two dates are given as above. The explanation is this: In 1751 the British Parliament passed an "Act" that the third day of September, 1752, should be called the fourteenth, thus changing from "Old Style" to "New Style," by dropping out eleven days from the calender. At the same time they decreed that the year should commence on the first day of January, instead of March twenty-fifth, as previously. Hence in this case, 1726-7, 1726 is the date as time was then reckoned, but it would be 1727 as it is now reckoned.

to Penny Cook, which was afterwards from time to time amended and improved; that in 1729, before Suncook was laid out into lots, there was a ferry-boat put into Suncook river to accommodate travel; that the next year, 1730, still before the probable settlement of Suncook, there was a bridge built over Soucook river. This bridge was built wholly within the limits of ancient Penny Cook, though the place where it landed on the southerly side, is now within the limits of Pembroke. According to the best information we can get it was built about sixty rods northerly from the old Penny Cook line, and about eighty above the site of Head's mills. We gathered these facts from Mark Richardson, now deceased, who once owned half of Head's mills, Edmund Elliott, who was born in a house near Head's mills, and Hugh T. Warren, who once owned the land where this old bridge landed.

The ferry-boat, though not a large one, having cost only five pounds, undoubtedly served to carry "the community and company over the river Suncook" till 1735, when a bridge was probably built over the Suncook river.

Having shown that there was a road through Suncook, which had been improved, a ferry-boat put into Suncook river, and a bridge built over the Soucook, we now propose, as well as we are able, to locate the road. It is to be remembered that the first survey of lots in Suncook was made in the fall of 1730, those on the west side of Pembroke street having been surveyed by Stephen Hosmer, and those on the east side, by Jonas Houghton,—both experienced surveyors. A plan of each lot, with a detailed description, was carefully made and recorded in the proprietors' book of records. By referring to Map No. 2, the reader will see the shape and relative position of each lot. We give a description of lot No. 28, upon which George P. Morgan now lives, as recorded.

This plan describeth lot No 28, first Division, Upland in Suncook Lying on the east side of Merrimack and above Suncook River, containing 48 acres and 14 rods. Bounds as follows beginning at an oak tree standing by the side of Merrimack river and running from thence a due east point 184 rods on No 61 in west, so called, to a stake, then running South 25° east 44 rods to a stake on the country road, then running a due west point 200 rods on common land, and on No 27 to a hemlock tree standing by the side of Merrimack river, then running 40 rods with said Merrimack river to the oak first mentioned. Laid out in October 1730 by order of the committee for laying out the first division of Suncook.

We also give a description of lot No. 29, which lies, as will be seen by referring to Map No. 2, on the east side of the road directly opposite No. 28, and is now owned by Joseph H. Dearborn.

<sup>1</sup> The reader will notice that the boundaries of these lots were not recorded till August 27, 1735. In explanation we would say, the proprietors did not vote to have a plan and description of these lots recorded till the annual meeting occurring April 29, 1735. The plans and boundaries were probably recorded as soon after that time as convenient.

It contains fifty two acres and one half. It bounds westerly on the town's street Northerly on the Lat.  $12^{\circ} 30'$ , Easterly and Southerly on undivided land.<sup>1</sup> It runs east 25 Degrees north, one hundred and forty rods and it is sixty rods wide. The corners are right angles. The corner marks at the westerly end are stakes and stones and the corner marks at the easterly end are white oaks.

Thus it will be seen that the country road had been cut out, or laid out, between the above-described lots, or rather, the country road was the basis of the survey, as both of the lots were bounded, one on the east, and the other on the west side, by the road. This establishes the location of the "country road" at the lower end of Pembroke street, and we have no hesitation in asserting that this first road through Suncook was substantially where Pembroke street now is, for the reason, that all the lots on the west side of Pembroke street, surveyed by Mr. Hosmer, were bounded on the east by the "country road," or "the highway," as sometimes called, while those on the east side, surveyed by Mr. Houghton, were bounded on the west by the "town street," proving conclusively that the road was there, and was made the dividing line between the two ranges of lots. After reaching the upper, or northerly, end of the street towards Penacook, the road turned a little to the north, by where Emery Clough now lives. About twenty or thirty rods above Mr. Clough's house, the old road turned westerly, passing down the hill, as does the old road now little used, till near the foot of the hill it turned again in a northerly direction, passing by the site of the old Head's mills, on to where the first bridge was built over Soucook river, and thence on across the plains to Sugar Ball, or East Concord.

Where the road passed southerly from the lower end of Pembroke street to the river, little or nothing is known till 1740-1, when a road was laid out by the Suncook proprietors to the bridge. Nor do we know but little about the road from the river to Haverhill, having no means of fixing the route except tradition, and what Mr. Chase has given in his History of Chester, published in 1869. Mr. Chase, as well as his father, was an old surveyor, and probably had better means of fixing the location of this old road through Chester than any other man. He says of it, "This was the traveled road to Penacook up to 1738." "It left the present main road, probably somewhere near the Jacob Chase place." He then describes the route northerly through Chester to "White Hall" in Hooksett, and says "it probably came near Lakin's pond and Head's Mills." In his map of Chester he marks it as passing near those points. He says "It was the traveled road up to 1738," indicating that there might have been a change about that time.

<sup>1</sup>The reader will see, by examining Map No. 2, that the "undivided land" of Mr. Houghton, and the "common land" of Mr. Hosmer, are marked on the map as lot No. 60, second division lots. He must also remember that the second division of lots was voted in February, 1731-2, but not made, so as to be drawn, till 1738, hence the land referred to was both "common" and "undivided" in 1730.

We think the road cut out in 1726, and travelled for several years, passed southerly from the easterly end of lot No. 28, or westerly end of lot No. 29, down the hill to the river, near, or a little westerly from, where the Chester turnpike, or road from George O. Lock's house to the grist-mill passes; that till the ferry-boat was used in 1729, the river was forded somewhere south of the present Osgood, or Turnpike, bridge, and that the ferry-boat was put into the river in 1729, below the falls, in deeper water, where the banks are low, thus giving better opportunity to pass to and from the boat.

From these two points, where the river was forded, and where it was crossed in a ferry-boat, which we think were not far apart, the road, or path, passed southerly, according to tradition, on the east side of the high land, east of the residences of John H. Sullivan and William F. Head, and then east of Lakin's pond, and so on, as Mr. Chase described the road.

In 1735, or soon after, a bridge was built across Suncook river lower down the stream, a little west from the westerly end of the Webster mill. There a bridge was supported till after a bridge was built in the winter of 1802-1803, where the present Factory bridge, so called, now stands. After the first-mentioned bridge was built, there was probably a road cut out and travelled, where the present travelled road now is, and perhaps leading into the old road previously mentioned, or perhaps into a new road leading to Haverhill. It will be seen hereafter that a road was laid out over the same route in 1741.

We now propose to show the action of the proprietors of Suncook in relation to roads, bridges, and ferries.

February 4, 1734-5, they voted "to make a reasonable allowance to the men that built a bridge over Camp<sup>1</sup> Brook." This is the brook near the residence of the late Judge Whittemore, afterward called "Meeting-house Brook." Nothing appears to have been paid, as, at the next annual meeting, April 29, 1735, they voted "to allow the men that built the bridge and secured the Meetinghouse from fire, five shillings per day, and two shillings per day for oxen." At this same meeting they voted "to give thirty pounds towards building a bridge over Suncook river, provided the other towns will add enough to build a good Sufficient bridge."

In September, 1735, money was raised by the town of Rumford<sup>2</sup> to build a bridge over Suncook river, one third part of the cost of building the bridge to be at the expense of the town.

<sup>1</sup> Tradition says this brook was named "Camp Brook" from the fact that the Indians, when they travelled this way, built their camps on its banks. After the meeting-house was built, it was called "Meeting-house Brook," from its near proximity to that building.

<sup>2</sup> The settlers at Penny Cook had petitioned the provincial government to be granted town privileges under the name of Rumford. The prayer of this petition had been granted, and the town was now (1735) Rumford, instead of Penny Cook.

From these votes it appears that the settlers of both towns had become dissatisfied with the accommodations afforded by the ferry-boat which had been used some six years, and were willing to contribute toward building a bridge to accommodate the travel. It also appears that some other town was expected to contribute for that purpose. It might have been Chester, on the south, or Contoocook, now Boscawen, on the north. It is not positively known that the bridge was built in 1735, though it is probable. In the call for a meeting May 17, 1738, there was an article to see if they would vote to lay out a road through lot No. 61 in the west, now owned by Solomon Whitehouse, and No. 28, now owned by George P. Morgan, and lot No. 1—Mill lot—to the bridge. The record states that the article passed in the negative. This proves there was a bridge there in 1738.

There is a tradition that there was once a road running from Main street southerly across the Whitehouse and Morgan farms, past or near where Rev. Jacob Emery lived. The fact that in 1738, as heretofore shown, there was an effort made to get a road laid out in that vicinity, though the road was not laid out, would seem to indicate that there might have been a path, or private road, travelled there. We have no doubt but that Mr. Emery had some sort of road from his house to the main road, but we have found no evidence, either in the Suncook proprietors' records, or in the town records, that there was ever any road laid out there. There is evidence that there was once a bridge across the Suncook river somewhere near, or north from, the China mill. It had been removed by some means before 1760. As we find no mention of such bridge in the Suncook proprietors' records, it is evident they had nothing to do about building it. By whom, or when, it was built, or when removed, we are unable to say.

May 11, 1737, the proprietors voted "to lay out a road through lots Nos. 16 and 17." The same day they voted also "to build a good and sufficient cart bridge over Soucook river, where it may be thought most convenient." Dudley Bradstreet, Benjamin Chandler, and Timothy Knox were chosen "a committee to locate and superintend the building, and also to lay out a road to and from the bridge."

In the call for a meeting June 15, 1737, was an article "to see if they would vote to build two boats to be kept in the Merrimack river, one at the mouth of Suncook river, and the other against the house-lot of Joseph Parker." At the meeting it was voted "to build one boat, to be kept in the Merrimack river against Mr. Parker's house-lot for the benefit of the proprietors." Thus in one year they established a ferry in Merrimack river, built a bridge over Soucook river, and laid out a road from Main street to the bridge, and from the bridge to Rumford line. These roads are the same as now travelled. They also laid out a road from the bridge to the ferry, and thence southerly on the bank of the Merrimack to "Meeting-house Brook," and thence easterly, across lot No. 6 and the parsonage lot, to Main street.

By examining map No. 2, the location of the following lots will be seen: No. 5—the parsonage lot—now owned by the heirs of Aaron Whittemore; No. 6, now owned by Edmund Elliott; No. 10, now owned by James Dodge; No. 14, adjoining Merrimack river, west of lots Nos. 6, 7, 8, and 9; No. 15, next north of No. 14; No. 16, where the bridge lands; then Nos. 17 and 18, remembering that the map shows a long distance from the north side of No. 18 to Rumford line.

The following copy of the laying out of these roads, with the accompanying explanation, will give the reader a correct idea of them:

Suncook June 15 1737 Layed out a highway turning out of the country road that goes to Rumford into lot No. 10 running on the north side of said lot.

This will be recognized as the Thompson road. This return of laying out was not signed by the committee.

Suncook March 19 1738-9 Laid out a road four rods wide beginning at the Common land on Rumford line to Soucook bridge which lands in the lot No 16, running southeasterly as the marks direct to lot No 15 and then two rods wide as the marks direct southeasterly to ye Ferry which is in ye lot No. 14 then running two rods wide on ye bank of Merrimack river to the Meetinghouse Brook acrost s<sup>d</sup> brook, then running up s<sup>d</sup> Brook to ye Lot No 6 then running as ye marks direct easterly across ye corner of lot No 6 to the line between the Parsonage lot and No 6 then running three rods wide in ye parsonage on ye line to the bank of ye s<sup>d</sup> brook then along on ye bank of s<sup>d</sup> brook to ye town Street

The reader will bear in mind that prior to this there had been no road to Rumford, except that cut out by the Penny Cook settlers in 1726, and no bridge across Soucook river except that built by the proprietors of Penny Cook in 1730. Also that the roads laid out at this time were designed to open a more direct communication between Suncook and the west side of Merrimack river, now the most compact part of the city of Concord, and where were then the most important settlements. This would also shorten the distance from Rumford to Massachusetts, whence the settlers of Rumford originally came. The town of Rumford had already established a ferry across the Merrimack river, a little above where the Concord bridge now is.

At the annual meeting in 1738, they voted "to lay out a road from the Meeting-house to the lower bridge over Soucook river." This road was undoubtedly intended to shorten the distance travelled between Suncook and Rumford. We do not know that this road was ever laid out, as we find no record of it, nor any evidence, either recorded or traditional, that there was ever any such road there.

In 1739 the proprietors voted "that the Committee should have power to sell the boat to some proper person that will be obliged to maintain s<sup>d</sup> boat at the place where it now Lyeth." Timothy Knox, James Mann, James Moore, Robert White, and Francis Doyen entered their personal dissent against the proceedings to sell the boat in Suncook. We do not know whether the boat was sold or not, nor how long a ferry was kept there.

In the warrant for a meeting June 17, 1740, was an article "to see if they will empower the committee to establish a road from the bridge over Suncook river southerly across the lots where the path now goeth to the town line, and from said bridge northeasterly through the Mill Lot No. 1, and through the common land to the east end of lot No 28 to land left for a highway." The record states "Agreed to let that article drop concerning the establishing roads for the present."

At a meeting February 18, 1740-1, "voted to build a good Sufficient bridge over Suncook river as soon as may be done." Noah Johnson, Joseph Baker, and Joseph Wood were chosen "to take the care and oversight of building a good and Sufficient bridge."

It appears that, by some means, the bridge built a few years before had been carried away, or destroyed suddenly, from the fact that a meeting was called at this inclement season with no other business, except to provide for building the bridge. After calling the meeting to order and choosing a moderator, they immediately adjourned to the house of Caleb Lovejoy, who lived on the opposite side of the street from the meeting-house, a few rods north from where Charles Whittemore's house now is.

On February 26, 1740-1, John Coffrin gave the proprietors of Suncook a deed of land for a road. The consideration was as follows: "For divers good causes and considerations, more especially for, and in consideration of, the privileges and advantages that I suppose that it will be to me, to have the proprietors of s<sup>d</sup> Suncook build a bridge across Suncook river near my Mills." The boundaries and description were as follows: "Land lying and being in the township of Suncook aforesaid, being in width four rods and in length from the easterly end of the home lot or first division No 1 to the place where the old bridge stood over the Suncook river."

"The northerly side of the land here granted is to begin at a stake at the easterly end of s<sup>d</sup> lot No. 1, and runs south sixty five degrees west sixteen rods to a pine tree marked, thence west twenty degrees south eighteen rods to the mill yard thence south twenty five degrees east to the place where the old bridge stood, thence southwardly across said river to the southwardly shore; said land here granted is to be four rods wide from each and every part of the line here described, and to lie on the southwardly side of said line." The easterly line of lot No. 1, or mill lot, should correspond with Stephen A. Bates's westerly line. It was originally a due north and south line. It crosses Main street, in Suncook village, a short distance westerly from Stephen A. Bates's house, and if extended northerly from Main street, strikes a stone set in the ground on land of Augustus Austin. This stone is claimed to be the south-east corner of lot No. 27, once owned by Rev. Jacob Emery, afterward by his son Jacob, and later by his grandson Jacob, and the north-west corner of lot No. 1, or Mill lot, which was deeded to Cochran.

This line, if extended southerly from Main street, passes through the stable built by D. S. Jones, and crosses Glass street a little west of the large house built lately by the Huggins family, and strikes Suncook river a little north of the Factory company's dam. The deed referred to is still extant. It was dated February 26, 1740, "on the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign." It is signed by John Coffrin, and witnessed by

It was never acknowledged before a justice of the peace, nor recorded in the Middlesex County records at Cambridge, or the Rockingham County records at Exeter. John H. Sullivan, Esq., who made a careful survey and measurement according to the points and distances given in the deed, found the northerly side of the mill yard, near the store door next south of the Osgood house, and taking from there the point given in the deed, struck the place where the old bridge stood a few feet westerly from the easterly end of the Factory company's cloth room. We think this deed establishes certain facts which have been heretofore in doubt; that the bridge built in 1741 was not the first bridge built over Suncook river; that the first bridge built over Suncook river was not built at, or near, the Factory company's dam, but across the river near, or a few feet west from, the Webster mill, and that Cochran's mills were first built in that immediate vicinity.

At the annual meeting, March 23, 1740–1, twenty-six days after the foregoing deed was given, and thirty-four days after the vote to build the bridge, the proprietors voted "that the committee now chosen be empowered to lay out a road from the west end of lot No 29 to the lot No 1 to the bridge and from s<sup>d</sup> bridge southerly as the path now goeth to the town line." This road was undoubtedly laid out agreeably to the vote, and so far as we know, was practically where is the present travelled road from Suncook village to Manchester. The town line referred to in the vote was probably 150 rods below, or southerly from the present Hooksett line.

October 19, 1741, they voted "to clear out a cart road between house lots Nos. 33 and 34." This is the road that now leads easterly from the main street near the Congregational meeting-house.

The foregoing are all the roads, bridges, and ferries that were laid out and built by the proprietors of Suncook of which there is any mention in their records, except where rangeways were left for highways, when the lots were laid out, and some roads laid out to the intervale lots. These last mentioned were a sort of private ways, to enable owners of intervale lots to get to them. From 1741 to 1759, when Pembroke was incorporated, the principal business transacted was to take measures to defend the titles to their lands, and to raise money to pay the salary of their settled minister, the Rev. Aaron Whittemore. Between 1741 and 1748, for some reason, many of the settlers of Suncook left the plantation.

CHAPTER X.

ANNALS, 1760-1769.

1760. To satisfy the curiosity of those interested to know, it is proper here to say, that the name Pembroke was given to the newly-incorporated township by Gov. Benning Wentworth, as is supposed, in honor of the Earl of Pembroke, then a prominent member of the Court of St. James. The word is from the Welsh, penbroch, signifying head of the foam.

Nor will it be out of place, at the beginning of this new era in their history, to give a brief description of the changes wrought by the industry of the people, in their homes, pursuits, diet, manner of life, and character.

The fogs of doubt and uncertainty as to titles, so long hanging over their homes and lands, having been cleared away to their great joy by favoring winds of influence, the inhabitants began with lighter hearts and stronger purpose, to enlarge the area of their clearings, with axe and fire subduing the wild lands and making them ready for cultivation. The ashes furnished the best of dressing for the sown grain, and large crops were gathered in the harvest-time, paying a handsome recompense for their persevering labor. Thus the forests slowly, but steadily, vanished, and in their places broad fields and pasture lands appeared as the silent witnesses of their industry.

Also, one by one, the log-houses, with their floors of thick hewn plank, began to give way to framed structures for the better comfort and shelter of the family.

The rough foot-paths and bridle-paths gradually were superseded by highways, as laid out by the surveyor, over which, when finished, wheeled vehicles could safely journey. The old-fashioned wagon, and the two-wheeled chaise, however, did not come into common use till a score or more of years after. Travelling was generally on foot or horseback. The saddle, with its pillion, made room for two on the same horse, and such double riding was a common practice.

The clothing of the early settlers was home-made. Sheep furnished them with wool. This was generally carded, spun, woven, cut, and made into garments in the home. The loom, now so rare, was an indispensable part of the home furnishing, save as sometimes one was owned and used in common, or there was an exchange in work, one doing the spinning, and another the weaving. Flax, also, was grown, which, after suitable rotting in the field, with the aid of the "swingle," "hatchel," and cards, was fitted for the large spinning-wheel, and the smaller linen-wheel,—now so often seen in the parlor as a valuable relic of the days of old,—and woven into lighter garments for summer wear, or into cloth for sheets, "pillow-cases," and table-spreads. All articles of their manufacture were made upon honor, and for durability. If coarse in texture, there was no lack in quality. The days of shoddy were then far in the future.

Of necessity they were a frugal people. Their daily fare was plain but substantial, and usually abundant to satisfy all their need. The luxuries and dainties of the modern table were unknown. Most of their articles of diet were of home production. Wild game from the forests, fish from the streams, and beef, pork, mutton, and poultry, of their own raising, with the fruits of garden and field, well supplied their daily wants and satisfied them. Tea and coffee were little used. Water from well or spring, cider from the cellar, and more or less of West India rum, were ample for their thirst. In the late autumn or early winter, it was no unusual thing for some one to go to Portsmouth, or Newburyport, Mass., with a load of pork for himself and neighbors to exchange for sugar, molasses, and salt, for the coming year's supply.

Every neighborhood had its tannery for the tanning of all the hides within its limits. It was the custom for the shoe-maker to take his "kit of tools," and go into the different homes to manufacture the boots and shoes necessary for the family's supply for the season. The tailor also went the rounds to make the needed garments for the family's use. This became a notable episode in the family history, breaking, as it did, the usual monotony of the home life.

It would be exceedingly interesting to enter their humble homes on a round of inspection, and witness the daily manner of life of the family. Three or four rooms were ordinarily, save as a rapidly increasing family rendered more a necessity, ample for their need. Even large families were often cared for in close quarters. The furnishings of the homes were scant; no carpets on the floors, no pictures on the walls. The straight-backed chairs, the arm chairs, the table, pewter platters and plates, the cupboard, open, or with doors, the "dressers," with their brass-handled drawers, sometimes reaching almost to the ceiling, a "settle," a cradle for the children, and the low-posted, corded bedstead, about completed the list of articles of furniture. The kitchen was the usual living room. In that the work of the family was mainly done, daily meals served, neighborly visits made. In the winter, around its huge fire-places filled with blazing logs, the family gathered in the evening for social enjoyment, rehearsing the experiences of the day, planning for the morrow, story-telling, and discussing the meagre news of the day, the children, meanwhile, playing their simple games, or popping corn in the ashes. Books and newspapers were exceedingly rare, if found at all, in them. The Bible was about the only book in common use. In most of the families this was read morning and evening at the family altar, and became the inspiration of their prayers and labors.

Thus, though inured to hardship and wearying and wearing toil, they ran their narrow round, and lived, as compared with the bustle and hurry of the present day, a quiet, even restful life. They were a simple, frugal, industrious, and hospitable people in the main, good citizens and neighbors, sympathetic, and in times of trouble and sickness, ready to render any assistance in their power. They had few holidays. School privileges for the children were meagre, the range of studies few. The Sabbath was a holy day, and, as a rule, all the people, who were able, wended their way to the House of God, many going long distances to avail themselves of its offered privileges. The fact that this furnished almost their only opportunity for seeing and hearing from their more distant neighbors, and gaining general information, may have had something to do in influencing such attendance on the worship of the sanctuary, but, without doubt, love for it and appreciation of its value to them spiritually, had greater weight in shaping their action. Moreover, they had been trained to it from early childhood, and deemed it the only proper thing to do. Even to-day it might be made a blessing to all.

During this year the Presbyterian meeting-house, on the west side of Pembroke street, was probably built, and, December 3, Rev. Daniel Mitchell ordained pastor of the church.

It also witnessed the virtual ending of the last French and Indian War, and the return of the soldiers to their families and farms.

1761. During the summer a severe drought prevailed throughout New England, cutting off the crops and rendering outside assistance necessary. This occasioned great distress to the poorer class, notwithstanding the help received. The township, however, was saved the ravages of forest fires, which did so much damage in the eastern and western sections of the state, till extinguished by copious August rains.

1762. This year, also, the settlers suffered from a drought.

The other most important event of the year was a town-meeting held November 15, with Thomas Lucas moderator, at which, by a majority vote, Rev. Aaron Whittemore was forbidden any longer to occupy his pulpit, and a committee of three was appointed to communicate the fact.<sup>1</sup>

1763. By a special act of the General Assembly, December 17, the Presbyterians, who had for some time reluctantly paid for the support of a Congregational minister, were incorporated into a distinct parish, including all persons then living in Pembroke who "belonged, or might thereafter belong," to their congregation, and Lieut. Thomas McLucas was authorized to call the first meeting.

1764. With this year the town entered on a new era of progress and material prosperity.

A petition dated July 13, and extensively signed by the inhabitants of Londonderry, Chester, Derryfield, Bedford, Goffstown, Starkstown, Pembroke, and Penacook, was sent to the governor, council, and house of representatives, in reference to the use of scoop and dip nets in the Merrimack river and its tributaries in taking salmon, praying them not to restrain, but to appoint fish wardens to supervise and regulate.

This was in remonstrance to one which had previously been sent in asking that fishing with dip and scoop be restrained for three days in the week at the falls,<sup>2</sup> the same as with "seanes," which had lately been forbidden by legislative enactment. Their reason was, that the former method had not been attended with any perceptible diminution of the fish, while the reverse had been seen to be true by the latter. Assured that if the catching of salmon were "wholly stoped" from the first of July to January, and that two or more persons, from each town joining on the river were annually chosen and sworn to see that the laws relating to fishing were properly observed, all would have equal advantage and no injury be done to any, "Wherefore your petitioners pray that their said fishing at the Falls may not be Restrained and your Petitioners as in duty bound shall ever pray."<sup>1</sup>

It may be proper here to say, that a committee from Londonderry had sent in the petition December 22, 1759, which resulted in the passage of the act restraining from the use of seines three days in the week. Hence there had been four and a half years of opportunity to observe the effect of the prohibition on the number of fish in the Merri-mack and its tributaries.<sup>2</sup>

This petition had 99 signatures, though not all of persons living in the town.

1765. This year was memorable for the growing restlessness of the colonies under the rule of the mother country, manifesting itself in a spirit of antagonism destined in due time to ripen into open opposition and final independence. Coming, as many of the settlers did, from the eastern section of Massachusetts not very remote from Boston, it is almost certain the disturbing elements in the political atmosphere were felt by them. When in later years the storm burst forth in its fury, the men of Pembroke were found ready to risk life and fortune to throw off the yoke of thralldom that had become too heavy to be borne.

1766. The repealing by parliament of the odious Stamp Act<sup>3</sup> had no power to arrest, or lessen, the rising tide of hostility to Great Britain. The passage of the days only added to its volume and intensity. The iron hand of despotism had gone too far in the use of its power to leave any ground to hope for a peaceful submission to its authority. The challenge having been thrust upon the people in so many ways, their own self-respect and loyalty to the right rendered impossible any backward step. In all the towns the kindled fires were growing to a whiter heat. The surface calm was no assurance of safety from the gathering storm.

1767. At the annual town-meeting, held at the Presbyterian meeting-house March 30, money was raised to pay for a parish book,<sup>4</sup> and the loss of pease consumed with the house of the parish clerk, accepted.<sup>5</sup> Four school-houses, if not built by the respective districts by July 1st, were ordered to be built by the selectmen at the expense of the parish.

On account of the ill feeling between the Congregationalists and Presbyterians rendering any satisfactory adjustment among themselves impossible, Messrs. Samuel Emerson, John Webster, and Matthew Forsythe, of Chester, by special act of the General Assembly, were appointed a committee to assess equitably the tax-payers of the town for the amount due Rev. Aaron Whittemore at the time the Presbyterians were made a distinct parish for the support of their own minister.

In September the following petition for a justice of the peace was sent in to the General Assembly.<sup>1</sup>

During this year the first recorded census of the town was taken with the following result: 49 unmarried and 85 married men between 16 and 60 years of age; 16 men over 60; 134 boys under 16; 97 married and 169 unmarried females; 5 widows, and 2 slaves,—making a total population of 557.

1768. The legal voters of the parish of Pembroke assembled in the Presbyterian meeting-house for their annual town-meeting the 28th of March.

Fifteen pounds "Lawfull money, to be paid in Corn, Rye and peas at the market price," was voted for the support of a school for the year.

A vote was also passed enjoining on the selectmen the division of the parish into "four quarters" for schools, and dividing the money raised accordingly.

The town's proportion of the province tax this year was twelve shillings one penny on every thousand pounds raised, and its ratable property £5,054.

As a matter of interest to some, the following record is copied :

Pembroke April ye 9th 1768 The measures that are procured for the Parish and now Comited to Andrew Robertson as he is the sealler of weights and measures for this Parish is one halfe Bushel one peck and one halfe peck marked P N H and the marking Iron to seall measures tryed By said standard and aproven is marked P H 1769. Agreeably to a warrant posted March 11, the freeholders and inhabitants of the town met at the Presbyterian meeting-house March 27 for their annual meeting.

The town voted to raise three hundred pounds, old tenor, for the benefit of a school for the year, "to be paid in species."

CHAPTER XI.

ANNALS, 1770-1779.

We now enter upon a decadé made memorable by the throwing off of the English yoke which had grown too heavy to be longer borne patiently, and by becoming an independent nation. Every community in the land was interested in the long struggle to attain such supremacy. Pembroke stood ready to assume all the risks of the venture that might fall to her lot. The spirit of her citizens in those troublous times will be shown in the chapter entitled "Pembroke in the Revolution."

Meanwhile the affairs of the town went on after the usual routine. As will be seen by the record of transactions, but little was done of a public nature, outside of the necessary business of the town.

1770. Agreeably to the warning of the selectmen, the annual town-meeting was held at the Presbyterian meeting-house, March 26.

Four hundred pounds, old tenor, were voted for school purposes, to be paid in "species." It was voted also to release Abram Annisse from all his town and province tax, and Captain Lukes and Ensign Sinkler from their school rate, but "to withstand them in the Law" if they refuse to pay their province rate to Constable Moore.

1771. The annual meeting was held, as usual, at the Presbyterian meeting-house, March 25, when it was voted to raise twenty-five pounds, lawful money, for the benefit of a school.

1772. "The freeholders and inhabitants of the Parish of Pembroke," according to notification, assembled at the Presbyterian meeting-house, March 30, for their annual town-meeting, and voted one hundred dollars for the benefit of a school.

1773. At the annual meeting, held at the usual place, Monday, March 29, it was voted to raise $100 for school purposes. The smallness of the sum annually raised for schools in these early times—though then the wages of teachers, like all other wages, were small—indicates very clearly the inferior advantages of the young in securing an education, compared with those enjoyed at the present day.

An article in the warrant to see if the town would grant an allowance to jurymen for their time, "in past or futhure service," failed to pass.

By a census taken this year, there were found in the town 12 men over 60; 110 married, and 45 unmarried, men between 16 and 60; 176 boys under 16; 119 married, and 186 unmarried, women, including young girls; 12 widows; 5 male and 1 female slaves,—666 in all.

1774. The need for better facilities in crossing the Merrimack for the interchange of neighborly civilities among the people, and greater convenience in business transactions, led to the following petition:

Petition of Jonathan Dix for a Ferry; addressed to the Governor and Council, 1774.

Humbly shews—

That your Petitioner is desirous of improving a certain Place in Merrimack River for a Publick Ferry about three Miles below Merrills Ferry so called, at which Place Your Petitioner humbly begs leaves to represent unto Your Excellency and Honours that there will be the great passing Roads from the Towns of Hillsborough Heneker Dunbarton and many other Towns even so far Westward as Charlestown, That it will not only Accomodate those Towns with Conveniency of passing but lessen their Distance some Miles in the travelling to Portsmouth the Metropolis of this Province—

Your Petitioner also humbly begs Leave to assure y<sup>r</sup> Excellency and Honours that if he is indulged in this his Petition, he will be very solicitous to provide a proper Boat or Boats to accommodate every Traveller in his passing and repassing s<sup>d</sup> River and Otherways Oblige himself to fulfill and perform all such Restrictions and Regulations as Your Excellency and Honours may think proper to lay upon him And Your Petitioner as in Duty bound shall ever pray—

The action of Jonathan Dix was seconded by the following indorsement<sup>1</sup>:

We the Subscribers Inhabitants of Concord, Bow and Pembroke do apprehend it necessary to have a Ferry Established across Merrimack River between Pembroke and Bow at a place called the old Ferry place about a Mile below Garvins Falls; And do think that Mr Jonathan Dix is a very fit person to keep a Ferry there, and will keep a good one.

The following document gives measurements relative to the ferry :

We the Subscribers by Jonathan Dix<sup>s</sup> Desire have Measured a part of Merrymack River Beginning att Garvins Falls So Called Down the River on the Ice to the mouth of Soucook River So Called and find it to be 192 Rods from thence to the old Ferry place So Called 128 Rods from thence to the Mouth of the Meeting House Brook So Called 60 Rods from thence to a Large white pine tree Standing on the westerly side of the River on Land of Mr Alexanders 260 Rods Being in the whole two Miles which is an Exact Measure by the Chain on the Ice—

Benjamin Norris Surveyor
Stephen Bartlett

As no record of the establishment of a ferry at this date is found in the office of the secretary of state, it is evident that the prayer of the petition was not granted.

Agreeably to the call of the selectmen, the annual town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 28.

The article in the warrant to see “how much money the town will raise for the benefit of a school for the ensuing year,” was left to the discretion of the selectmen.

It was voted to raise two hundred dollars for the support of highways, and that two shillings a day “shall be allowed for men’s work and a yoke of oxen, one shilling for a cart, and sixpence for a plow.”

Hitherto Pembroke had been without representation in the general assembly. It had been settled forty years, and was a prosperous and growing town. Its population was nearly 700. In view of this fact and the sure promise of increase, its citizens felt that they were entitled to some voice in shaping the laws of the province, which they were expected to obey. Accordingly they drew up and sent in a petition to be allowed the privilege of representation. We append the document.

1775. On the 27th of March occurred the annual town-meeting at the Congregational meeting-house, and two hundred dollars were voted for school purposes for the year. It was also voted to pay David Connor four pounds and nineteen shillings for care and medical attendance for John Powell.

The third recorded census of the town was returned on September 30, of this year. It footed up 33 men over 50; 114 between 16 and 50;

179 boys ; 23 men absent in the army ; 378 females ; 7 negro slaves,—making a total of 744. In the latter part of the year the number absent in the army was considerably increased.

1776. The annual town-meeting was held March 25, at the Presbyterian meeting-house.

It was voted to raise $100 for the use of schools, “ Each Quarter to have the Benefit of their own money,” and the same sum to be expended on the highways.

A special meeting was called for November 26 at the Congregational meeting-house at which Rev. Jacob Emery was chosen representative to the General Court. The meeting was then adjourned to December 23.

On reassembling according to adjournment, William Carlton, Nathaniel Head, John Carlton, Jacob Doyen, and Samuel Daniels, were elected “ a Committee of Inspection,” whose duty was to be watchful for the public safety. Thirty-two dollars were voted to hire preaching until the March meeting.

To show the change time has wrought in prevailing customs, it may interest some to know that Rev. Daniel Mitchell died on December 16, and Richard Bartlett was paid two pounds ten shillings and eight pence for rum and gloves for the funeral.

David Gilman, of Pembroke, was made justice of the peace for Rockingham county July 4, 1776.

We give the accompanying certificate<sup>1</sup> of Chief-Justice Meshech Weare to show that raising bank notes was not an unknown art in these early times.

Exeter Novem<sup>r</sup> 29th 1776

This certifies that John Ayer of Pembroke complained to Wyseman Clagett Esq against one James Ryan for passing Money Emitted by this state Altered to higher Sums than Originally made And Said Ayer appeared careful & very Industrious in prosecuting said Affair for the publick Good. 1777. At the annual meeting March 31, the town voted to raise $125 to repair the highways, $100 for school purposes, and $100 “ for to hire the Gospel Preached.”

On the death of Rev. Jacob Emery, who represented the town in the legislature, early in the year 1777, the house of representatives,<sup>2</sup> March 29, 1777, Voted, That a Precept Issue from the Speaker of this house to the Selectmen of Pembroke to send some person Qualified by Law to represent said town in the General Assembly in the room & stead of Mr. Jacob Emery, who is Deceased.

We may note in passing that Mr. Emery, who was chairman of a committee of the house of representatives to draw up a proclamation for a day of general fasting, humiliation, and prayer throughout the state, in view of the public exigency, shortly after his return from Exeter in the early part of January, after a brief illness, but much suffering, had died.

On the last Tuesday of April a special meeting was called to meet at the Presbyterian meeting-house and "elect one person suitable, having a Real Estate of two hundred pounds to Represent this town in general assembly at Exeter in the Room of the Rev. Jacob Emery Dec<sup>d</sup> and to Impower said Representative to transact publick Business & for the term of time agreeable to and Expressed in the writ Directed to the selectmen of s<sup>d</sup> Pembroke for that Purpose." This meeting was adjourned to the 28th of May. Coming together again at the appointed time, Capt. Samuel McConnell was chosen representative to fill the vacancy. But barely, and after a very stormy session, as the following statement of the moderator goes to show<sup>1</sup>:

William Cochran Moderator

Pembroke January 2<sup>d</sup> 1778

The Occation of the foregoing Proceedings not been Sent Sooner was because Some Persons gave out word that they Determined to Break the meeting

As this statement was signed by William Cochran, moderator, it would seem that at the adjourned meeting a new moderator was chosen. This appears all the more probable from the fact that Col. Gilman, who had previously been chosen, was himself a candidate for the office of representative, and the friends of the two were so evenly divided, the opposing party, doubtless, objected to his serving, lest some undue advantage might be taken, and to take away all occasion for after charges of unfairness, he resigned, necessitating a new election. The very atmosphere of the meeting would naturally lead to such inference. As the records show that a new warrant was issued calling a meeting at the same hour to which the previous one had adjourned, probably because new business was to be introduced, it is possible they deemed it expedient to choose a new moderator, and the choice fell on William Cochran. Even then the fact that Colonel Gilman was a candidate for such important office may have influenced the choice of a new man.

The new business to come before it was "to Chose a Committee & to quallify them agreeable to the Law of this state to affix and settle the Price of goods and all other articles for the said town agreeable to an act of this state in that case made and provided." Samuel Daniels, Jacob Doyen, David Connor, Nathaniel Head, and James Robertson were chosen this committee.

In the warrants of the selectmen previous to 1777, New Hampshire was designated as a "Province" or "Colony," afterwards as "State." It was called colony only in 1776.

1778. An act of the General Assembly of New Hampshire made it a duty of the several towns of the state to make provision for such families within their borders as needed help, "where the head of s<sup>d</sup> families are engaged in the Continental army for the Term of Three years or During the war as non-Commissioned officers or private soldiers so that they may be supplied with Provisions at a reasonable rate." Accordingly a special town-meeting was called for February 2, at the Presbyterian meeting-house, and a vote passed to supply said families at the stated prices, and William Knox, Jacob Doyen, and Aaron Whittemore were chosen a committee to carry the vote into effect.

By such acts as this the disposition of the citizens towards their absent soldiers to relieve them from all anxiety for the comfort of their loved ones at home, was manifest.

On March 30 the Congregationalists of the town met in special session at their house of worship, "at eight of the clock in the forenoon," to see how much money they will raise for the support of preaching for "the present year." Sixty pounds were so voted, Joshua Kimball made collector, and Aaron Whittemore, Samuel Kimball, and William Carlton a committee for pulpit supply.

The same day the legal voters of the town agreeably to warrant assembled for their annual meeting, and voted to raise $200 for school purposes, and $300 for the highways. Also that the support of the poor of the town should be given to the lowest bidder. An article in the warrant to see if the town would vote to average the cost of hiring soldiers for the army passed in the negative.

At a special meeting of the town, May 25, Samuel Daniels and Richard Bartlett were chosen delegates to attend a convention to meet "at Concord in said State on the 10th day of June next for the sole Purpose of Forming and Laying a Permanent plan or System of Government." This was in accordance with the vote of the General Assembly.

Another special meeting was called for November 30, in obedience to the following precept:

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

To the SELECTMEN of Pembroke in the County of Rockingham in said State, Greeting:

YOU are hereby required to notify the legal Inhabitants paying taxes in the said Pembroke (giving them fifteen Days Notice) to meet at some convenient

By Order of the Council and Assembly,

Assembling at the Presbyterian meeting-house in response to the call of the selectmen, Richard Bartlett, Esq., was chosen representative for the current year.

1779. The annual meeting of the town was held this year on March 29, at the Presbyterian meeting-house.

It was voted to raise $600 for schooling, and $1,500 for the highways. The price of labor was fixed at $5 a day, which indicates great depreciation of the face value of the currency of the times.

A vote to give the wife of Captain Frye the benefit of the act "Equal to non commission officers or Soldiers wives" was lost.

The Congregationalists held their annual meeting April 19, and 150 pounds were voted "to hire the gospel preached." Richard Bartlett, David Kimball, and Joshua Kimball were chosen a committee "to lay out said money." At this time they had no settled pastor. Samuel Kimball was elected collector of the money thus voted, and as well, of 60 pounds voted the year before. It was also voted that this 60 pounds should be assessed on the previous year's invoice.

At a special meeting held at the Congregational meeting-house June 14, 800 pounds were voted "for the Expense of the Current year for supplying the soldiers families and other Expence, and if that sum is not sufficient the selectmen are Impowered to raise such other sum as they find necessary."

At another meeting held at the same place, August 19, and adjourned to August 24, and again adjourned to September 8, it was voted not "to approbate the bill of Rights and plan of Government for the state as it was Composed by the Convention at Concord" June 5. Thirty-six pounds were voted the constable, and £60 to Captain Samuel McConnell, grand juror, for services "the present year."

The meeting, September 8, was also a special meeting called by warrant of the selectmen, for the transaction of business not previously specified. Captain Samuel McConnell was chosen "to set in Convention at Concord on wednesday the 22<sup>d</sup> of Sep<sup>r</sup> next agreeable to the Recommendation of the town of Portsmouth." This convention was called to regulate prices.

At a meeting held in the Congregational meeting-house, November 30, for the election of "one person having a real Estate of the Value of two hundred pounds lawfull money in this State to Represent them in the assembly to be held at Exeter the third wednesday in December next," Richard Bartlett Esq. was chosen Representative. He was empowered for "one year from the first meeting to transact such Business and propose such measures as they may Judge necessary for the publick good, and particular to Vote for members to Represent this State in the Continental Congress." The vote to raise money "to give Joseph Swett for Serving Constable in the year 1778," was lost.

The Congregationalists also held a parish meeting at noon the same day, and voted to raise two hundred pounds "Lawfull money" for preaching.

CHAPTER XII.

PEMBROKE IN THE REVOLUTION.

The dissatisfaction of the colonists was the natural outcome of the treatment they received from the mother country. It grew in intensity as the years went on, leavening public thought, and raising a barrier finally to result in entire separation.

That the citizens of Pembroke shared in this wide-spreading feeling of hostility, is rendered certain by the singular unanimity with which they espoused the common cause. That no indication of it is found spread upon their records prior to 1774, is simply due to the fact that the time had not come to render imperative any legal action as a town. Without doubt they were watchful of the signs of the times, discussed the situation freely in their neighborly intercourse, and, if unconsciously to themselves, were nursing the spirit of patriotism which should eventually make them brave and determined soldiers in the coming warfare for freedom and independence! Their very endurance of hardship, inevitable in battling with the wilderness to convert it into fruitful fields, and long exposure to peril from the menacing incursions of hostile Indians, had been developing in them those heroic qualities eminently fitting them for good soldiers, when the call for their service should come. The record of their doings in the Revolution is emphatic witness to their valor, and patriotic devotion to the interests of the colonies in their struggle for freedom. In the fulness of time, they were found ready to spring into the breach of need, and show themselves equal to the occasion in soldierly endurance and daring, under their willing pledge of loyalty at the risk of "lives and fortunes," as will be seen later.

Notwithstanding the general prevalence of this hostile feeling in view of increasing grievances, some among the colonists were still loyal to the crown and ready, as they had occasion, to betray, and, if possible, frustrate, any plans of the people looking to their resistance of British rule. As this fact, more and more, became known, it gave rise to a system of public and private espionage. Suspicions were rife in the air. The interests of the dissatisfied colonists seemed to call for some concerted action to counteract any antagonistic efforts calculated to work to their harm. It was deemed of sufficient importance to call for action to be taken by the Continental Congress. Accordingly an act was passed making it a duty of every town to take means to look after the public interest in such a way as to ensure protection. On this becoming known, the selectmen, in response, issued the following warrant for a special meeting to take such action as circumstances seemed to require :

Province of	}	In Compliance with the Proceedings of the grand American Continental Congress at Philadelphia September ye 5 th 1774.

At the meeting held in response to this notification, it was voted "to adhere strictly to the Rules of the Congress and Chose Mess<sup>rs</sup> David Gilman Joseph Baker James Head Samuel Connor & Aaron Whittemore a Committee."

This action, doubtless, had the effect, not only to lead the committee, but also loyal citizens generally, to exercise a careful scrutiny of the action of all suspected persons, and, as well, incite the disloyal to greater secrecy.

More than a century and a half had now passed away since the landing of the Pilgrims and the beginning of the settlement of New England. During this time they had been under the rule of the mother country, and in all important cases at issue were obliged to appeal to the higher tribunals in London. This was attended with a great deal of inconvenience, and often long delays before final decision. Doubtless this had something to do in intensifying the growing restlessness of the people. Meanwhile the spirit of freedom, love of country, and an increasing consciousness of their right to self-government and ability to better their condition, was more and more asserting itself and ripening in them that temper which was so soon to nerve them to action. There was no difficulty in discerning the "signs of the times." The citizens of Pembroke were wide awake to the meaning of the hastening contest, and not wanting in endeavors to be found ready. The atmosphere was full of the first faint mutterings of the gathering tempest. Every ear was bent low to hear, and every heart on the alert to spring to the conflict. The dismantling of Fort William and Mary, at the mouth of the Piscataqua, December, 1774, was the first open act in the great drama of the Revolution. It brought to a culmination the latent purpose to resist British invasion, and banish a foreign soldiery from their shores. It cemented together more firmly the intrepid hearts of the patriots, and nerved them to high and holy endeavor to achieve their freedom from the iron hand of oppression so long resting upon them. They felt their cause was a sacred one, that life, liberty, and happiness, in the future, was at stake, and that their success in the strife of arms was the only guaranty of prosperity. The brave Stark had lifted up his standard, and valiant soldiers, who had seen service in the French war, rallied round it eager for the fray.

The 800 British soldiers who started out from Boston for the purpose of destroying the stores of the patriots, were met at Lexington, Mass., April 19, by 70 brave spirits, who received their fire, and spilt the first blood of the Revolution. As the tidings went out, others speedily rallied to their aid, successfully opposed their enemies, and forced them to retreat, greatly harassing them on their way, and inflicting a loss of 273, with a loss to themselves of only 103.

The tidings of this first battle and triumphal issue spread rapidly through the towns of New England. Pembroke heard, and soon made response with her offer of brave men for the need of the times, to press their advantage. Not very long after, Capt. Daniel Moore reported to Col. Stark with a company raised in Pembroke and surrounding towns. At the Battle of Bunker Hill, which was fought on the 17th of the following June, Pembroke had no occasion to be ashamed of the valor of her soldiers.

The gravity of the public exigency as it impressed the citizens of the town may be inferred from the fact of the calling of a special town-meeting as early as the fifteenth of May, 1775, to take such action as seemed to be demanded.

At this meeting the special business calling for action was taken up. Ens. David Gilman was chosen to attend Congress at Exeter, as often as there was occasion, and given full power to act in behalf of the parish. They also voted to raise money to defray all expenses of the same, past or future, and to "raise their Equal Proportion of men to be in Readiness for an Expected Expedition, and allow them pay for Exercising Two half days in a week for any Term of Time which shall then be thought Proper," and "Raise flour and Pork to the Value of one half of our Proportion of the Province Tax the last year for the support of said men when Called to go into said service."

The meeting was then adjourned to May 29.

On reassembling, it was voted "that the Town School be Dismissed for the Present year and the money Raised for that use be Converted to the use of the Common Cause and that the Town Clear the selectmen from any harm that shall arise on that account."

David Gilman, who had been chosen delegate, attended the fourth congress at its meeting May 17th, and the fifth congress meeting December 21st.

In response to the appeal of Gen. Sullivan to the citizens of New Hampshire for recruits for his forces on Winter Hill, Pembroke raised two companies, one commanded by Capt. Andrew Buntin, with Samuel McConnell, first, and Peter Robinson, second, lieutenant; and the other under Capt. Samuel Connor, with Matthew Pettingill, first, and Nathaniel Head, afterwards general of the militia, second, lieutenant.

As time passed there was a growing disposition on the part of the people in New Hampshire, as well as in other parts of the country, to resist the rule of the British. Some, as might have been expected, continued to favor British interests, and it became desirable to know who could be trusted to help forward any movement that might be made looking to the independence of the American colonies. Accordingly, in Congress, on March 14, 1776, the following resolve was passed:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Several Assemblies, Conventions, Councils, or Committees of Safety of the United Colonies, immediately to cause all persons to be disarmed, within their Respective Colonies, who are notori- ously disaffected to the cause of AMERICA, or who have not associated, and refuse to associate, to defend by ARMS, the United Colonies, against the Hostile attempts of the British Fleet and Armies.

Extract from the Minutes,

Charles Thompson, Secy.

The colony of New Hampshire, in view of this resolution, issued the following request :

Colony of New Hampshire,

IN COMMITTEE OF SAFETY,

April 12th 1776.

In order to carry the foregoing RESOLVE of the Hon'ble Continental Congress into Execution, you are requested to desire all Males above Twenty one years of age (Lunaticks, Idiots, and Negroes excepted) to sign the DECLARATION on this Paper; and when so done, to make Return thereof, together with the Name or Names of all who shall refuse to sign the same, to the GENERAL ASSEMBLY or Committee of Safety of this Colony.

M. WEARE, Chairman.

We here give the pledge which the voters were requested to sign.

In Consequence of the above Resolution of the Hon. Continental CONGRESS, and to show our Determination in joining our American Brethren, in defending the Lives, Liberties, and Properties of the inhabitants of the United Colonies :

WE, THE SUBSCRIBERS, DO HEREBY SOLEMNLY ENGAGE, AND PROMISE, THAT WE WILL, TO THE UTMOST OF OUR POWER, AT THE RISQUE OF OUR LIVES AND FORTUNES, WITH ARMS, OPPOSE THE HOSTILE PROCEEDINGS OF THE BRITISH FLEETS AND ARMIES AGAINST THE UNITED AMERICAN COLONIES.

This was what is known as the "Association Test," and as signed by the people, was a "Declaration of Independence" of New Hampshire, similar to that of the patriots who signed the national declaration, July 4, 1776. Preceding that event, it seems to have been a suggestion, or encouragement, to those who were contemplating similar action for the nation. Bold and hazardous was the step thus to resist the authority of one of the most powerful sovereigns in the world. Had the cause to which these men pledged their lives and fortunes failed, "it would have subjected every individual who signed it to the pains and penalties of treason; to a cruel and ignominious death."

We give below the names of the signers in Pembroke, as returned by the selectmen.

Thus were the lines sharply drawn. No suspicion of disloyalty could rest on the signers. If on any, on those who refused to make the pledge. It must not be inferred, however, that all who withheld their names were hostile to the cause in such sense as to betray, or openly, or secretly, oppose the action of the patriots. Among them was Rev. Daniel Mitchell, who certainly was no traitor to the common cause, but was not then ready in good conscience to renounce his allegiance to the British crown, and openly array himself against it. The same may have been true of others. This needs to be remembered to prevent the doing of injustice to the memory of any. We know of no record of suspicion resting upon only one of the nine.

There was one decided advantage in this drawing of lines. Those interested knew where to look for aid in the furtherance of patriotic interests in any sudden emergency. They knew where they could find such sympathy as would, on occasion, crystalize into helpful action. The "Test" bound them by strongest ties to stand shoulder to shoulder for the success of their cause. Common pledges, hopes, and aims held them steadfastly loyal.

In Company Nine of a New Hampshire regiment raised in July and August of this year, for service on the northern frontier, and in Canada, commanded by Col. Joshua Wright, Stephen Bartlett of Pembroke was second lieutenant. Thirty Pembroke soldiers were also in the company.

This year was remarkable for the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July, which marks the birth-date of the American nation. It did not, however, come into peaceable possession of its right to be a nation, and its rights as such, till some years after.

We give the following particulars relating to the action of Pembroke in the Revolution, as nearly in chronological order as possible, gathered from the Revolutionary Rolls in N. H. State Papers, and other sources.

Among those in Stark's Regiment wounded at Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775, were Nathan Holt and J. Robinson of Pembroke.<sup>1</sup>

James Robinson of Pembroke enlisted July 3, 1775, from Capt. Moore's Company, in Col. Richard Gridley's regiment of artillery, stationed at Winter Hill.

On the pay-roll of Capt. Daniel Moore's company, Col. John Stark's regiment, August 1st, 1775, were the following well-known names of Pembroke men :

On Capt. Parker's company muster-roll, August 2, 1775, of men engaged in an expedition to Canada, were the following from Pembroke :

The following from Suncook and Pembroke belonged to Capt. Henry Dearborn's company, in Col. B. Arnold's detachment, serving from July 18 to September 18, 1775, and receiving therefor four pounds each: John Robinson, Charles McCoy, Thomas Stickney, Josiah Allen, John McCullum.

In September, 1775, Frederick McCutcheon volunteered to go for three months as a substitute for Moses Merrill, in Capt. Daniel Moore's company, of Col. John Stark's regiment, and was stationed at Winter Hill for the siege of Boston.

In Col. Burnham's report of "Winter Hill" companies, December, 1775, recruited in New Hampshire, are the names of Capt. Andrew Bunten, Lieut. Samuel McConnell and Second Lieut. Peter Robinson, and Capt. Samuel Connor, Lieut. Matthew Pettingill, and Second Lieut. Nathaniel Head, from Pembroke, as officers of two companies.

A call of the Provincial Congress on the different towns of the Province of New Hampshire to take a census of the inhabitants, and make return, met with the following response from Pembroke :

In 1775 an abatement of the poll-tax of soldiers in the town of Pembroke to the amount of 10 shillings and 3 pence was made.

October 6, 1775, Jeremiah Wardwell of Pembroke was reported as a member of Capt. Benjamin Ames's company, Col. Frye's regiment, doing service in Massachusetts.

From January, 1776, Frederick McCutcheon served four months under Capt. John Lane in Col. Shirley's regiment at Winter Hill, and was probably there to witness the evacuation of Boston, March 17, 1776. He became a pensioner in 1832.

The following statement of the selectmen is inserted :

July 15, 1776, Asa Foster, Jr., gave to Jeremiah Morgan, Joseph Swett, and Daniel Holt a receipt for six pounds for serving in their stead four and one-half months at Crown Point.

Among the absentees belonging to Col. Bedel's regiment, Ticonderoga, N. Y., returned July 22, 1776, was James Robinson of Pembroke. He left March 12, 1776. His age was 28.

The alarm following the retreat of the army from Canada, led to the raising of a regiment to check the advance of the enemy. On July 4, 1776, Joshua Wingate of Stratham was appointed colonel, and Samuel Connor of Pembroke, lieutenant-colonel. On July 17, the committee of safety directed them to "repair to Charles Town on Connecticut River," take charge of such companies as they might find there, and proceed to join the northern army wherever it might be found.

On the muster and pay-roll of Capt. William Barron's company, raised for Canada out of Col. Daniel Moore's regiment, are found the following names of Pembroke men, all mustered in July 22, 1776, and receiving for one month's pay and bounty—five shillings—ten pounds and three shillings. Second Lieutenant Bartlett received eighteen shillings more. This company was attached to Col. Joshua Wingate's regiment, as authorized above :

On the muster and pay-roll of Capt. Samuel McConnell's company, belonging to Col. Daniel Moore's regiment, mustered in September 26, 1776, with six pounds advance pay and bounty, are the familiar names of men who were doubtless from Pembroke, as was the captain.

In response to a call from Gen. Washington, the legislature, December 4, 1776, "Voted, That five hundred men be Draughted from the several Regiments in this State as soon as possible, and officered & sent to New York." The next day David Gilman of Pembroke was appointed colonel. The object of this call was to furnish troops for the garrison at Forts George and Ticonderoga, to take the place of the soldiers whose term of service expired December 31, and prevent these posts from falling into the hands of Gen. Sir Guy Carlton.

Of the men raised to fill up the three Continental regiments, March, 1777, Pembroke furnished 137 men for Col. Daniel Moore's regiment.

In the list of officers of the First Battalion of New Hampshire troops in the Continental service, are the names of Capt. Ebenezer Frye and First Lieutenant John Moore of Pembroke, whose commissions were dated November 7, 1776. The roll was dated April, 1777.

The company of Capt. Ebenezer Frye, of Pembroke, belonged to the First New Hampshire Regiment, commanded by Col. Joseph Cilley. The muster-roll, according to Capt. Frye's return, April 7, 1777, contained the names of First Lieutenant John Moore, and Jacob Doyen, of Pembroke.

Of the three years' men, enlisted from Col. McClary's regiment of militia, 1777, for the Continental service, were Joseph Norris, Benjamin Genness (Jenness), Daniel West, Francis Ames, and Hugh Turner, from Pembroke. They were mustered into Capt. Frye's regiment and served for the town of Deerfield.

In May, 1777, Lieut. Emery made the following return of the men enlisted by him in the First New Hampshire regiment:

That the Committee of Safety for New Hampshire were loyal to the American cause, and their duty, will be seen by the following letter :

Pembroke, May 25th, 1777.

Sir—I would inform you that Capt. Eben<sup>r</sup> Frye has Publicly asserted (as I am told by Mr. Aaron Whittemore) that our Court is asleep and he is determined not to go into the service until they pay him his money. Likewise he has no Estate to depend and will joyn the strongest side if our Court don't do better. If you think proper you may inform the Court, for I think a man so indifferent ought not to be trusted with so weighty a matter.<sup>1</sup>

Richard Bartlett.

A considerable number of the citizens of the town having, as they thought, good reasons for suspecting the loyalty of Capt. Samuel McConnell, addressed the following petition to the Council and House of Representatives, relative to the matter :

Humbly Sheweth that whereas Cap<sup>t</sup> Samuel McConnell on the 28 of May 1777 Did by a small majority of Votes obtain a Vote for to Represent S<sup>d</sup> town in General assembly and as we are Conscious to our Selves that he is an Enemy to the Glorious Cause we are now Engaged in and that Such Persons being Introduced into our Publick assemblies will be Atended with the Most Dangerous and Fatal Consequences—therefore pray that your Honnours will take the Subject Matter of this our Petition into Consideration and Grant us a Day of Hearing as Soon as may be Conveniently had and Dismiss said m<sup>c</sup>Connell from your hous and your Petitioners as in Duty bound Shall Ever Pray.<sup>2</sup>

By this action of the Committee of Safety he was fully exonerated from the charge of disloyalty, and as far as any record shows, no "Ill-minded Persons" afterwards opened their lips in accusation. As Captains McConnell and Frye (as noted above) were the only citizens of the town publicly accused of hostility to the cause of American liberty, and the after silence of the records respecting Capt. Ebenezer Frye, we think we can truthfully assert that no citizen of Pembroke was recreant to the interests of the colonies in the exigencies of the conflict for emancipation from British oppression.

John Mitchell of Pembroke enlisted July 20, 1777, in Col. Henry Jackson's regiment, for three years, for service in Massachusetts. A certified copy of settlement with him and other New Hampshire men was made at Boston, August 21, 1783.

On the roll of officers of Col. Thomas Stickney's regiment, Gen. Stark's brigade, to whom rations were due July, 1777, we find the name of Maj. James Head, with £4 8s. 8d., due him for 133 rations, and of Capt. Samuel McConnell, with £5 5s. 4d., due for 158 rations. Both were from Pembroke. Rations were rated at 8d. each.

On the pay-roll of Col. Thomas Stickney's regiment of Gen. Stark's brigade is the name of Second Maj. James Head, who served from July 23 to August 31, 1777, Richard Head, his executor, receiving therefor £19 10s.

July 24, 1777, Nathaniel Head, Jr., gave to Jeremiah Morgan a receipt for £4 10s. "for doing a part of a turn for two months servis in the Armeý."

On the pay-roll of Capt. McConnell's company, Col. Thomas Stickney's regiment, raised out of the N. H. militia, which marched from Pembroke, July, 1777, to join the Northern Continental Army at Bennington and Stillwater, are to be found the following Pembroke men, with date of service, and amount of wages :

Capt. McConnell took oath to the accuracy of the roll, in the House of Representatives, Exeter, November 27, 1777. The account was paid December 26, 1777.

Thomas Bartlett, muster and pay master, mustered in and paid a bounty of £4 10s. each to the following Pembroke men July 15, 1777. The dates are those of beginning of service :

Eliphalet O'Conner July 1	Joseph Simpson Aug. 4
Ephraim Moor July 1	James Moor July 1
Moses Hackett July 13	James Oterson July 1
Robert Martin July 1	Nath <sup>l</sup> Martin Aug. 4

They were enlisted by Capt. Simon Marston, Lt. Jeremiah Abbot, and Ensign James Martin, after June 26, for Capt. Marston's company, as one of the four sent by New Hampshire for the defence of Rhode Island. These men were paid for bounty, wages, and travel, £20 16s. each, with the exception of Robert Martin, enlisting July 1, drummer, who received £22 11d., and Nath<sup>l</sup> Martin, enlisting August 4, who was paid £18 12s. They were all discharged January 7, 1778.

The following were volunteers, who marched from Pembroke and joined the army under Gen. Gates at Saratoga. They enlisted September 29, 1777, were paid 3d. per mile for 160 miles to Saratoga, and 2d. per mile home, and discharged October 18. Their wages were at the rate of £4 10s. per month.

These all served as privates. Connor died of wounds October 9, 1777. An order on the treasury for their pay was received February 20, 1778.

In response to this petition, the house of representatives ordered a hearing for the next session; and meanwhile Colonels Moore and Stickney were to be notified.

On November 13, 1778, the house of representatives passed the following resolution,—

Resolved, That the first company of militia in Pembroke commonly called the English Company, be separated and disjoined from the Regiment commanded by the said Col<sup>o</sup> Daniel Moore, and be annexed to the regiment commanded by Col<sup>o</sup> Thomas Stickney.

On the muster and pay-roll of Capt. Isaac Farwell's company, Col. John Stark's regiment, at Walpole, February, 1778, are the names of James Russ and Sam<sup>l</sup> Phelps, privates, from Pembroke, receiving from Thomes Sparhawk, muster master, £20 bounty, and 8s. 4d. for 50 miles travel.

Meanwhile the contest with the hostile British forces was still going on. Pembroke was not indifferent to the need of the times, and was always represented by brave and intrepid men in active service. They were ever ready to listen to new calls for recruits, and to vote aid to the dependent families of her absent soldiers. According to the pledge of the "Association Test" every signer held himself in readiness to go to the front, whenever the public exigency demanded. This was generally understood, and those in authority had no hesitation in issuing orders, knowing that they would be met with a cheerful and prompt response. If the language of an order seemed compulsory, with its imposition of penalty for disobedience, those, to whom addressed, felt little compulsion, save that of their own hearts to render any service possible to the cause they loved so well. So, then, the following order, we may be sure, was not unwelcome, nor in vain:

State of New Hampshire, Concord, July 2d, 1779.

To Captain John Noyes commanding a Company of Militia, in the Thirteenth Regiment, in said State.

Pursuant to orders this day received from the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Major-General Nath<sup>l</sup> Folsom, I am directed to order you to proceed forthwith to raise the Men required of you to fill up the Continental Battalions according to the order from the Committee of Safety of April last, or in case that cannot be done that the same be raised by Draught or otherwise for one year. And the Select Men are required to be aiding the Militia Officers in raising said Men. —The Hon<sup>ble</sup> General Court have voted, That every Soldier draughted for one year shall proceed in the service or pay a Fine of Fifty Pounds,—That every Soldier enlisted or Draughted for a year, and going into the service for one year shall receive a Bounty the Select Men of the respective Towns are requested to advance and the same shall be allowed them out of the State Tax the current year— That every Soldier going into the Continental Service shall have the Depreciation of Money made good according to a resolve of the General Court.—And that every Town not complying with this Act shall be fined at the discretion of the General Court for every Man they are deficient, which fine shall be added to their State Tax—And that every Town raising men for one year only shall replace them at the end of the year and so from Time to Time to the end of the war.

You are likewise immediately to raise and properly equip fit for service one good able bodied effective Man to serve for the defence of Rhode Island Six Months, from the time he joins the army, which Man is to be under the command of the Officer appointed by the General Court to take the Command of them.

The Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court have voted that each non-commissioned Officer & Private raised as aforesaid shall receive a Bounty of Thirty Pounds and two shillings per Mile for Travel from their Homes to Providence, for which Money the Militia Officers are to call upon the Select Men of their respective Towns who are requested to advance the same, all which advance shall be allowed them out of their State Tax the current year— That the Serjeants be paid Fourteen Pounds eight shillings per Month, That the Corporals, Drummers & Fifers be paid Thirteen Pounds four shillings per Month and Private Soldiers Twelve Pounds per Month—and you are to take that the Men raised as aforesaid appear at the House of Cap<sup>t</sup> Aaron Kinsman Innholder in Concord on Wednesday the Fourteenth Day of July current at Ten o'clock in the Forenoon, compleat in arms, in order to pass muster and proceed immediately for Providence aforesaid.

You are likewise to make return to me as soon as may be of the Number of Men in the Train Band and the number of Men in the Alarm List in your Company. And you are to see that they are properly equipped and ready to march at a Moment's warning.

THO'S STICKNEY, Colonel.

The train band of which mention has been made, included all able-bodied males between 16 and 50, save persons in certain specified positions and employments, negroes, Indians, and mulattoes. The alarm list included all others between 16 and 65, organized in a separate corps.

Each county had its own militia, organized into companies and regiments, each company consisting of 68 privates, and choosing its own officers. The field officers were selected by the council and house of representatives.

CHAPTER XIII.

ANNALS, 1780-1789.

1780. The new decade opens with the conflict still raging. The times had been dark and stormy, and the cause of the patriots sometimes seemingly desperate, but never for a moment did they lose heart. They believed their cause to be holy, and their purpose was invincible. The older soldiers had grown to be veterans, and the people had become innured to the inevitable hardships of the times. But while hoping and watching for a better day, they adjusted themselves, as best they could, to the need of the times, and faithfully, as usual, attended to the ordinary affairs of the town.

On March 27 occurred the annual meeting at the Congregational meeting-house.

It was voted not to raise money for school purposes, but to raise $9,000 for the highways, fixing nine pounds as the price of labor per day. This year Jacob Doyen received of James Knox 150 pounds "as hire to serve in his Room," as constable.

At the request of a number of legal voters, a special town-meeting was held October 9, at which Capt. Benjamin Norris, Maj. S. McConnell and Ensign Benjamin Holt, were chosen a committee to settle with the selectmen for the years 1778 and 1779. The meeting then adjourned to November 1. Reassembling, the committee reported that they had settled with the selectmen for 1778, and found due the town, £7 11s. 3d. Report accepted. They also stated that the selectmen for 1779 refused to settle with them.

1781. Early this year Pembroke was called upon for its quota of men to fill up the Continental army, by act of the General Court. This led to the calling of a special meeting for February 1, to see what action the town would take in the matter. It was voted "that Each Company in said Pembroke Raise their own men according to pole and Estate."

As George Atkinson, councillor for Rockingham county, had resigned, necessitating the election of another to fill the vacancy, and other business touching army matters called for speedy action, another meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, February 26. Votes were brought in "for one suitable Person having an Estate as the Law Directs," for councillor. Afterwards Maj. McConnell was chosen agent for the purchase of the beef required of the town, "as soon as the money was obtained of the Treasurer Due for last year's Beef," and Maj. McConnell, Lt. Samuel Daniell, and Lt. Samuel Noyes, a committee to divide the town, and give to each company their quota of men to raise to fill up the Continental army, as required by the General Court, agreeable to a vote passed at the last meeting.

On March 14, this committee reported eleven men as the quota of the town, of which Capt. J. Cochran's company should furnish six, and Capt. N. Head's company, five.

As usual, the men were furnished without a draft. France was now giving aid, and prospects were brightening.

The annual meeting for the choice of officers to transact the town's business for the current year, was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 26.

It was voted not to raise money for school purposes, but $20,000 for the repair of highways, fixing the price of labor at $50 per day, and $3,000 for parish charges. The selectmen were appointed a committee to hire the contingent men required by the General Court. Voted to allow Constable Doyen $30 for services, and Constable Kimball three pence per pound for collecting.

Agreeable to the warrant of the selectmen, a special meeting was held May 14. It was voted not to choose a committee to purchase beef for the army. Joshua Kimball was chosen to attend the convention to meet in Concord in June; and Col. John Whittier and Maj. Samuel McConnell to oppose in the General Court the petition "signed by Jon<sup>a</sup> Hale in behalf of himself and others." An article to see what method should be taken to raise the town's quota of "Continental Soldiers" not obtainable by the committee chosen for the purpose, was omitted.

The Continental money had by this time become so depreciated that the amount which had been assessed was insufficient for "any valuable purpose." Accordingly another special meeting was called for July 16, at the Presbyterian meeting-house, at which the selectmen were instructed to make an "assessment in new emission" to purchase the required beef for the army. The amount was limited only "to the best of their Judgment," as to what was necessary. The "new emission" bills, however, did not meet the need, for they depreciated so rapidly they "almost lost their credit," and beef could not be purchased with them. This state of affairs rendered another meeting imperative. Accordingly, September 3, another meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, and a vote passed instructing the selectmen to make "an assessment in silver money at three pence per pound to Raise the Beef for the Contin<sup>l</sup> Army, and add a column in their list designating each man's proportion of the beef to be raised."

The last meeting of the year was held at the Congregational meeting-house, December 10, at which Maj. Samuel McConnell was chosen representative. After voting for councillor, the meeting was adjourned to January 2, 1782.

1782. At the adjourned meeting, January 2, the town voted not to accept the plan of government which had been agreed upon at the convention held in Concord in September, 1781, and then adjourned to January 14.

It appears that at this time wolves infested the town and gave trouble, for at the adjourned meeting, January 14, a vote was passed to give a bounty of $10 for every head of a "grown wolf" killed within the bounds of Pembroke. This was the only business done.

It will be remembered that in 1781, after the failure of the "new emission" currency to purchase the required proportion of beef for the Continental Army, a vote was passed to assess the inhabitants "in silver money at three pence per pound." As it was now found that this was insufficient for their purpose, a meeting was called for January 14, to see if the town would raise the necessary amount. The attempt to raise money failed.

The annual meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 25. Three pence per pound was voted for collecting. For the repair of the highways, "one day on a poll Tax" was voted, fixing the price of work at "four shillings per day." Then adjourned to April 4.

Accordingly re-assembling, thirty pounds were voted for town charges, and adjourned again to April 9.

On April 9, Capt. Joseph Emery was chosen constable, and refusing to serve, was fined, paying by note. In the absence of any record of a vacancy calling for the election of constable at this meeting, it is probable that William Knox, who had been chosen at the previous meeting, had for good reasons been excused from serving. Several meetings were held during April and May before any constable chosen consented to serve. Those not excused, doubtless, paid the usual fine. After voting to the constable $5 in addition to the three pence per pound, the long-drawn-out meeting was "Dissolved."

On December 3, a meeting was held at the Presbyterian meeting-house, and adjourned to December 9.

Meeting according to adjournment, Richard Bartlett was chosen to represent the town in the General Court. After voting for a councillor, Samuel Daniell, Richard Bartlett, Samuel McConnell, Capt. Nathaniel Head, and Ens. Aaron Whittemore, were chosen a committee to report on the plan of government proposed at the last convention.

At an adjourned meeting, December 12, the report of the committee was received, and at another, December 19, better attended, accepted.

An article in the warrant to see if the town would allow Maj. Samuel McConnell's claim, or any part of it, for sending, as "he says," John Lander into the Continental service, was negatived.

In March of this year a petition was sent to the General Court asking for the appointment of Samuel Daniell, justice of the peace, but in consequence of an active opposition springing up, action was postponed to the next session. At that time a joint petition of the inhabitants of Allentown and Pembroke was sent in. This also failing because of the opposition, the following remonstrance and petition was addressed to the General Court, to influence, if possible, the desired appointment.

Humbly sheweth that whereas your Remonstrancers did present to your Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court at their session in March last a petition praying that Leut Sam<sup>l</sup>

Daniell Might be appointed to the Office of a Justice of the peace but by being then Opposed was postponed to their Next session when a Joint petition from the Inhabitants of Allentown was presented Upon both which the Committees of your Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court Reported the prayer should be granted Yet Nevertheless the same was opposed which prevented the Report being Accepted; though we Humbly conceive the argument adduced against said petition did no ways prove any Disqualification in said Daniell to be appointed as above but it appears to us your Remonstrancers that the opposition proceeded Chiefly from a motive of private prejudice or self Interest: therefore Depending upon it your Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court Aimes to Act from Nobler Motives than those—we your Remonstrancers pray & Petition that your Hon<sup>le</sup> Court will Reconsider or Reassume the consideration of the Repeated Reports of your committees of the Hon<sup>bl</sup> Court; on the foresaid Petitions and will Accept & Receive the same as we Humbly conceive the same to be but Equitable Reasonable & Just and we again Recommend said Daniell as being Qualified to a competent degree for said Office and Your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall always pray<sup>1</sup>

1783. The annual meeting of the town was held at the Presbyterian meeting-house March 31. After voting that the present form of government be continued, adjourned to April 8. Meeting according to adjournment, Thomas Brickett was, by vote, accepted as constable in place of William Knox, said Knox having hired him to act as his substitute. Samuel McConnell, Lt. Job Abbot, and Daniel Noyes, were appointed a committee "to reckon" with Joshua Kimball. It was voted to repair the pound, and "provide ground to set it on." The town refused to build a school-house in the centre of the parish, large enough "to hold as Many Scholars as will be likely to attend School at a time." A vote was passed to build a fence "Round the grave yard." The amount raised for the highways was one day's labor per poll, and "so in proportion." Forty-five pounds were voted for "Parish Charges the Current Year."

Nathan Waite having brought an action against the town for 180 pounds for "John Cook's Entering the Continental service," a special meeting was called for February 3, at the Congregational meeting-house, at which Capt. Benjamin Norris was chosen agent of the town to defend the suit, and the meeting was adjourned to March 31, when Capt. Norris was chosen "to Defend the case to final Judgment & Execution." The reason for the previous special meeting, was that the case was to be heard at the term of court to convene at Exeter, February 4.

Agreeable to warrant, "the legal Inhabitants paying Taxes in the Parish of Pembroke," met for election purposes December 5. Samuel Daniel was chosen to represent the town "Untill the first Wednesday in June next." It was voted not to sell the "Town Stock of Gunpowder."

Under the following act of the legislature, Pembroke was entitled to one representative :

State of }
New Hamp<sup>r</sup> } In House of Representatives Dec<sup>r</sup> 30th 1783—

Voted that Precepts be Issued to the Several Towns & places in this State for the Purpose of Calling Representatives Agreeably to the New Constitution.

This year was memorable for the treaty of peace between the mother country and the colonies, which was consummated at Paris, France, on the 3d of September, having been duly signed by David Hartley, for the British crown, and Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and John Jay, for the United States, which now became an independent nation. Such an ending of the long war, with all its vicissitudes and hardships, establishing, as it did, a free republic for the great continent awaiting development and settlement, was the occasion of hearty rejoicing on the part of the veteran soldiery, their families, and all who had held themselves ready to go to the front, if there was need, and furnish their brethren in the field and those dependent upon them, with necessary supplies. At the outset, the first step towards freedom in their open resistance of British tyranny had been a bold one. Had their patriotism been less strong, and their hearts less resolute, they would have shrunk from the undertaking. But their love of liberty and invincible purpose nerved them to the contest, and steadied them, in the face of every peril and disaster, during all the long, dark days of the struggle, in the display of a patient heroism such as the world rarely sees. Not that there was to be found any intrinsic pleasure in the inevitable sacrifices they were called to make; not that they sought conquest for its own sake; not that they were ambitious to win personal honor; not that they might have glory among the nations; but that they might be free, as the winds of heaven, to enjoy the inalienable rights which they felt were their God-given birth-right. They never faltered in the conflict, were never cowards in the presence of the enemy, never swerved from the straight path of duty in the accomplishment of their sacred purpose. In their union was their strength, and the hand of God guided! But they were ready and glad, as they could well be, when they emerged at last out of the darkness that had hung over all those long years of brave daring, into the full sunlight of peace, freedom, and independence! This was deemed a sufficient recompense for all endeavors and endurance. How little they realized then, what a great country and future were confronting the infant nation!

All their perils, however, were not yet over; the days of sacrifice had not yet ended; the possible future was yet to be made. The currency of the times had become worthless, and there was left them only their fertile lands, and the waiting wealth of brawny brain and muscle. But the hearts that had not quailed in heroic struggle and endurance, were still equal to the strain to which they might be subjected in enjoying and making the most of their new inheritance. The good citizens of Pembroke had not been, and were not to be, found wanting in any new emergency. They lived, did their work, and bequeathed the priceless legacy of their example to those who came after them. There are not wanting those, in nearly every state in the Union, who are able to trace their ancestry back to the sturdy yeomen who, in these early times, played the little drama of their life in this goodly town.

1784. At the annual meeting, the first under the new State Constitution, held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 29, it was voted that the pound be kept where it was; that Maj. Samuel McConnell, Capt. Benjamin Norris, and Lt. Job Abbot, be a committee to settle with the selectmen for 1779 in any way they may think proper; that one day's work per poll, and in that proportion, be raised for repair of the highways; that no money be raised for schools, or to defray "Parish Charges;" and that the selectmen "lot out" the land received of Francis Doyen, Jr. Then adjourned to April 5.

When met according to adjournment, it was voted to give the constable three pence on the pound for collecting.

Caleb Foster was the first treasurer in the history of the town.

Early in the meeting votes were brought in for "President" and senator.

1785. The annual town-meeting occurred March 28, at the Congregational meeting-house, at which it was voted for repairs on the highways, "to Raise three days work on the single pole, & so in proportion on all Ratable Estate," allowing "those who worked on Bridges over Sowcook & Suncook Rivers last fall Credit out of the foresaid Tax for what work they then did." The price of labor was fixed at three shillings per day. Thirty pounds were voted for school purposes, "to be Equally divided to Each District."

A bounty of three pounds was voted for the head of every grown wolf, and thirty shillings for "Each wolves whelp," that should be killed in town during the year.

The selectmen were empowered to assess as large a sum as should be deemed necessary, with arrearages "in the hands of former constables & selectmen," to defray current town charges.

A petition having been sent in to the General Court, praying that a number of towns, including Pembroke, be dissevered from the county of Rockingham, and annexed to that of Hillsboro, a special meeting of the legal voters was called at the Congregational meeting-house, May 31, to see if the town would give assent to such proposition. The assent of the town was refused. Their representative was instructed to cast his vote accordingly.

Lt. Stephen Bartlett and John Knox were added to the committee to settle with the selectmen for 1779, and "other Parish affairs." Adjourning to June 9, they met and again adjourned the meeting.

A special meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, October 31, at which the town voted to build a stone wall around the "grave-yard," and raise $115 for that purpose. Capt. Head, James Mann, and John Knox, Jr., were appointed a committee to see the work done. Permission was given to the "Seventh & Eighth Range people," to have their proportion of the school money "laid out amongst them."

1786. The annual town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 27. Thirty pounds were voted for school purposes; one and a half days' work on the single pole, and in that proportion on all ratable estate, with labor at three shillings per day; twelve pounds to defray town charges; to accept the land Dea. William Cochran took of Francis Doyen, Jr., in lieu of money due the parish; to give four pence as a bounty on crows' heads, and none for wolves; and to purchase a record-book for selectmen's accounts. Dr. Thomas Adams was appointed to record therein the "Committees settlement & the selectmen's accounts." Adjourned to April 7, and afterwards several times, till August 24, when Andrew Robertson was sworn in to serve as constable for the current year, and the meeting dissolved.

The office of constable seems to have given much trouble to the citizens. It was hard to find one willing to fill it. As his principal business was the collection of taxes, it naturally seems strange in these later times, when so many are ready for such opportunity, that the office should then so often "go a-begging." The probable reason is, the people were scattered, had but little ready money, were not required to bring their taxes to the collector, necessitating much travel in going after it, and the commission, three pence per pound, was so small it did not pay. Hence the disposition, well nigh universal, to shirk it.

The population of the town this year was 994, including three negroes.

A special town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, July 17. The town voted to choose two constables; and not to give "any on the pound" for collecting. Joseph Simpson was chosen one of the constables for the year, and the meeting adjourned to July 24.

Re-assembling, Daniel Lucas was chosen constable, and then adjourned to August 7. Meeting at the latter date, the vote, previously passed, not to pay for collecting taxes, was reconsidered, and three pence on the pound allowed for that purpose. An adjournment was then made to August 21, and then to August 24, as above.

A little confusion arises from the records touching these several adjournments mentioned. One record gives the impression that the annual meeting was adjourned from time to time till August 24. Another states that a new warrant was issued for the meeting held July 17, which was adjourned from time to time till August 24. The probable solution is, that it was found that new business needed to come before the citizens for their action, necessitating another warrant, and the time for the adjourned and special meeting was made to coincide. Or, possibly, the clerk may have erred in his record, the annual meeting having been dissolved, and the special one having been called in the regular way.

By request of a number of the citizens, a special town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, August 14, to see if the town would choose a committee to meet with committees from other towns at Chester, August 20, to consult on the expediency of petitioning the General Court "on the making a Bank of paper money, as much as will Redeem all this States Securities, and also of making another Bank of paper money for the purpose of Building Ships & loading them with our Produce in order for payment of our Foreign Debts." Capt. Benjamin Norris and Dr. John Cochran were chosen such committee, and the assent of the town given to such petition.

The reason for such petition was the extreme poverty of the people. Fifty thousand dollars were finally issued, but this did not satisfy, and a determination was formed to coerce the authorities. Runners were accordingly sent into the most disaffected towns, calling upon the people to arm, go to Exeter, and demand an emission of paper money, and other enactments to suit their views. On September 20, about 200 young insurgents entered Exeter, some on foot, some mounted, armed with every variety of weapon from a musket to a staff. Maj. James and Capt. James Cochran, and Lt. Asa Robinson, of Pembroke, were among the military men in this insurrection. Probably a large part of their following were from the young men of this town.

The dispersion of the mob, the arrest of Maj. Cochran by Gen. Cilley with his own hands, the bringing to trial at Exeter of the rash men, the plea of guilt, and discharge with a reprimand, is a matter of history. The officers were cashiered, but Maj. Cochran was restored on account of former good conduct. Capt. Cochran and Lt. Robinson, however, lost their military rank.<sup>1</sup>

1787. The annual town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house March 26. Voted to raise money "after the rate of one Days work upon a single Poll at four shillings per day" to repair the highways, and six pounds to defray parish charges; not to clear Nathan Waite of the execution against him in favor of the parish; not to pay Nathan Waite for Cook's service; that the selectmen be empowered to recover all demands in favor of the parish by a course of law, if necessary, and pay all lawful demands against the parish. Then adjourned the meeting to April 3.

This vote in reference to Nathan Waite needs some explanation. As previously intimated, Waite had sent John Cook, his servant, into the army for the town, and presented a claim for £180 for his service. This the town refused to pay, and he, in 1783, brought action against it to press his claim. The town won the suit, and procured an execution against him for costs. Now, by an article in the warrant, Waite had asked the town to release him from payment of the same, and also to pay him something for procuring Cook for the army. This, as stated above, the town not only refused to do, but instead instructed the selectmen to recover what was due the town, "if necessary, by a course of law."

Joshua Kimball, who was one of the selectmen in 1779, and had received moneys of the town, and now sought for an abatement of some part, at least, of his indebtedness to the town, was also refused his request, and included in such instruction to the selectmen.

At the adjourned meeting, the votes choosing Nathaniel Ambrose and Samuel Abbot constables; not to set up the office of constable "at vendue;" and not to choose a representative, were reconsidered. James Cochran was chosen representative, and Andrew Robinson "bid off the Constablenesship at publick vendue." The constable was voted for his service a discount at the end of the year of six pounds and two shillings from the taxes committed to him to collect. The meeting was then adjourned to the first Monday in July.

There is no record of the holding of this adjourned meeting.

At a special meeting held, agreeable to warrant, May 28, thirty pounds were voted for school purposes.

At another meeting, November 5, the town voted not to choose a committee to assist the selectmen in making a proper statement of all the bounties paid to hire soldiers during "the late war." Also voted that the selectmen agree with Martha McNeal for the support of her mother till the March meeting, "as cheap as they can."

1788. At a special meeting held at the Congregational meeting-house, January 14, Samuel Daniell was chosen delegate to attend the convention to be held at Exeter, February 15, "to take under consideration the Constitution of the Federal Convention, and act on the same as he shall think best for the publick good of the United States." It was voted to allow Samuel Daniell for a twenty dollar certificate "that proved counterfeit;" and not to petition for a new county.

At the annual town-meeting held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 31, the town voted to unite with Concord and other towns, in petitioning for a new county, and Samuel Daniell and Richard Bartlett were chosen delegates to meet in convention in Concord, on the first Tuesday in May, to agree on a petition to the General Court for such purpose. James Cunningham, Maj. Samuel McConnell and Capt. Nathaniel Head were appointed a committee to examine into the actions of former constables and report later, and Lt. Thomas Robinson, Richard Bartlett, Capt. Benjamin Norris, John Ladd and Maj. Samuel McConnell, a committee to divide the parish into school districts.

The town voted not to raise money for school purposes. A day's work on a single poll was raised to repair the highways.

At an adjourned meeting, May 28, the report of the committee chosen to examine the doings of former constables was accepted, and twenty pounds voted to defray parish charges.

At a special meeting, May 5, the town voted for "union in ministerial affairs;" and to pay Rev. Zaccheus Colby according to poll and estate. Also to invite Rev. Mr. Morrison of Londonderry, Rev. Mr. Merrill of Plaistow, Rev. Mr. Upham of Deerfield, and Rev. Mr. Wood of Boscawen, to form a plan for such union. Capt. Joseph Emery, William Knox, David Kimball and Solomon Whitehouse, were appointed a committee to meet and entertain said ministers, together with Rev. Mr. Colby, June 4.

In the exigency relative to the time of electing a representative the following petition was addressed by the selectmen to the senate and house of representatives :

Humbly shews—

That the Annual meeting of said Inhabitants for the purpose of Choosing Town Officers by the Incorporation is fixed on the last Monday of March Annually that it has been a Custom heretofore to Choose our Representative for said Town on that day that Article was in our last Warning but it happening to be the last day of said Month and having many Articles to Act upon could not Choose a Representative, but adjourned the same meeting to Monday the 9th Instant, on which day we Humbly pray we may have the Liberty to Choose s<sup>d</sup> Representative or that your Honors would relieve us in such manner as you in your great Wisdom shall think fit—<sup>1</sup>

Another special meeting was held September 8. An article to see what measure the selectmen should adopt in reference to schools for the current year, was passed over. Adjourned to October 6. Then it was voted to have one month's schooling in each district, and that the selectmen provide the teachers required ; that the parish "pay Robert Moore for pasturing the Parish Cow<sup>2</sup> 8 weeks;" to give Martha McNeal a load of hay ; and that the selectmen provide a lock for the "burying yard," and repair the wall.

At a meeting called by warrant, October 27, the town refused to raise money to build school-houses in each district, but voted to allow the majority in each district to locate, and fix the plan for such house.

On December 15, occurred the first meeting under the Constitution of the United States, for the election of officers. Votes were brought in for county treasurer, representative to Congress, and presidential electors. No less than 16 were voted for for representative to Congress, Abial Foster leading the list with 27 votes, several receiving only one. Twenty-five received votes as candidates for electors, Abial Foster leading with 16.

Pembroke votes aided in electing Samuel Livermore and Abial Foster for representatives to Congress, but the people failed to elect presidential electors, and they were accordingly chosen by the legislature the following January, consisting of Benjamin Bellows, John Pickering, Ebenezer Thompson, John Sullivan and John Parker, who cast their votes for George Washington.

"Continental Senators, Representatives, or any holding any office of Profit under the United States," were ineligible to the office of elector.

1789. Agreeable to warrant, a special meeting was held February

<sup>2</sup> The "Parish Cow" was a cow owned by the town, and loaned to its poor for such time as seemed best, as a help toward their support.

2, to vote for representatives to Congress, the regular candidates being Samuel Livermore, Benjamin West and Abial Foster, who received respectively, 26, 27, and 27 votes.

The annual town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 30. The committee's division of the school districts was accepted. The request for a "middle" school district was denied. A vote was passed authorizing the selectmen to build the school-houses; also to allow Andrew Robertson three pence per pound for collecting 30 pounds "more than he expected," and Joseph Simpson for a "counterfeit dollar." It was voted to raise 50 pounds "in produce" for schooling; a day's work "on a single pole" for repairing the high-ways; and the balance "in hard money" in the hands of the constable for 1788, to defray parish charges for the current year. Also voted to Martha McNeal "the use of the Parish Cow next summer;" and to hold the annual town-meetings in future on the first Monday in March.

Richard Bartlett bid off the constableness for 7 pounds and 10 shillings, and took the customary oath.

At a legal meeting held June 22, votes were cast for a representative to Congress, Joshua Atherton and Abial Foster being candidates, and receiving respectively 18, and 16.

At another meeting held October 27, it was voted that the selectmen employ Edward Livermore, Esq., to carry on the action commenced by the parish of Pembroke against John Parker, Esq., of Portsmouth.

At still another meeting, November 30, Maj. Samuel McConnell was chosen a delegate to attend the convention meeting in Concord, December 14, "to consider and agree upon petitioning the General Court for a new County."

CHAPTER XIV.

ANNALS, 1790-1799.

1790. In those early days when the towns were poor, and unable to furnish facilities for crossing the larger streams without distressing the people with too heavy a burden of taxes, it was not an uncommon thing for private individuals, who had the necessary means at their disposal, to secure the exclusive right to build a bridge in some locality which would best accommodate the public, as an investment, and charge a toll for passing over it. January 11, John Bryent of Bow and Richard Bartlett of Pembroke sent a petition to the General Court, for the exclusive right to erect a toll-bridge across the Merrimack, near Turkey River Falls, between the towns of Bow and Pembroke.

The following memorial addressed to the committee on the erection of a bridge, is without date, but probably was issued during the year 1790 :

The annual town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house March 1. Samuel Phelps bid off the constablenesship at six pounds. It was voted to raise one day's work on a single poll for repairing the highways, and 15 pounds to defray parish charges. Martha McNeal was again granted the use of the "Parish Cow" for taking care of her mother. The town also voted that the children of any district must attend their own school.

A special meeting of the legal voters of the town was held August 30. Votes were brought in for three representatives to Congress. The only other item of business was the following: "Voted that the 'middle district' have their school money divided to each school-house as the year previous."

It seems that at the August election there was a failure to elect representatives to Congress, for a special meeting was held December 13, to vote for two persons out of four "which had received the highest number of votes." Abial Foster and Jeremiah Smith received respectively 59 and 43 votes. John S. Sherburne also received 17.

The census taken this year gave the town a population of 956. This was the first United States census.

1791. The annual meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 7, when the town voted to raise six pounds, additional to the eight already raised, to defray parish charges; and one and a half days' work on a single poll for the repair of the highways. It refused to divide and lay out the school money in the future "according to the report of the committee," but voted to establish the "middle district," according to request.

As the existing districting of the parish for school purposes was unsatisfactory, a special meeting was called for April 18, when it was voted to "disannull all the former proceedings of s<sup>d</sup> Parish respecting the Division of s<sup>d</sup> Parish into Districts for keeping school," and to fix the bounds of the districts as follows :

first, beginning at Joshua Clements including Sol<sup>o</sup> Whitehouse, Rev. Z Colby Cap<sup>t</sup> Benj Norris and the main road to the meeting-house brook so called; second, beginning at s<sup>d</sup> meeting-house brook including James Head Wid<sup>w</sup> Sarah Hemphill Sam<sup>l</sup> Parker with the main Road to Cap<sup>t</sup> Asa Fosters; third, to begin at Sam<sup>l</sup> Manns then to Dea. D. Lovejoys then to Benj<sup>a</sup> Whittemores and Jer<sup>h</sup> Wardwells David Richardsons W<sup>m</sup> Fifes Jn<sup>o</sup> Mann to Sam<sup>l</sup> Mann including all within s<sup>d</sup> compass; fourth, beginning at And<sup>w</sup> Farmers to Nathan Holt Jr. then to Nathan Holt sen<sup>r</sup> Nathan Pipers Fed<sup>s</sup> McCuchins and to s<sup>d</sup> Farmers including all within s<sup>d</sup> limits; fifth, beginning at Jn. McDaniells on Buckstreet road to Dr. Jn<sup>o</sup> Cochrans; sixth, beginning at Trueworthy Dudleys then to Zeb. Robinson Josiah Haggets Noah Emerys Tim Chandlers Locks Tho. Hardys and to W Dudleys again including all within s<sup>d</sup> limits; seventh, From Mr Joseph Simpsons to Mr Knowles.<sup>1</sup>

Choice was given to those who lived on the road leading to Chiches-ter, now called the "Borough road," to have their money or "belong to the Hill Quarter still."<sup>2</sup> It was voted that each district shall have the benefit of their money; locate by vote the place for the school house, the selectmen appointing time and place for such meeting and "acting as moderator;" that the selectmen be empowered to assess each district in a sum sufficient to build, or repair, suitable school-houses; and that the Buckstreet district "shall have the school money which was five pounds ten shillings which was due to them in the year 1782 as they paid their school tax and had no schooling."

A committee consisting of Maj. Samuel McConnell and Daniel Knox was chosen, and at an adjourned session, Richard Bartlett and Capt. Nathaniel Head added to it, "to petition the Gen<sup>l</sup> Court for the benefit of a Lottery for building a Bridge over Merrimack River."

The town refused the request of John Cook, asking pay for "Continental service as one of Pembroke Quota of men."

The meeting was then adjourned to July 4, then to August 15, and finally to March 5, 1792.

Early this year sundry petitions were sent in to the General Court.

January 7, 1791, Jacob Green and Enoch Noyes sent in a petition<sup>1</sup> to the legislature asking for the exclusive right to build and maintain a toll-bridge across the Merrimack, "somewhere between the Right of Ferriage, lately belonging to Samuel Butters, and one mile below the Isle-Hooksett, so called, in the same River."

The same month a second petition was sent in by William Duncan and Daniel Livermore, asking also the exclusive right of building a toll-bridge across the Merrimack below Concord, "at any place within ten miles below Butters privilege of ferry."

Accordingly an act was passed, February 17, 1791, granting to the signers of the two petitions the exclusive right to erect a toll-bridge over Merrimack river "between one mile below Isle Hookset Falls and one mile above said falls."

The following petition of the selectmen of Pembroke and Bow, addressed to the senate and house of representatives, for authority to raise money to build a bridge across the Merrimack, is interesting for the glimpse it gives us of the prevailing sentiment of a hundred years ago touching the lottery question.

Humbly Sheweth—

Whereas a Bridge a Cross Merrimack River at some Convenient place would be of great Service to the State, and your Humble Petitioners beg leave to acquaint the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court, that there is a place on Said River a little below Garvens falls (so call'd) known by the name of the little Falls, which we are Conscious to be the Best place upon the River, to Build a Bridge, upon all accounts, firstly Nature has form'd the place so well with good high Rocky Banks, that it is never overflowed, and the River Very narrow, and a good Rocky Bottom, and So Shoal that Men may work in the Water with Conveniency, generally the Summer Season, and likewise seems to be the most Central for Roads, leading from the Exterior parts of the State, through Pembroke to Portsmouth and Exeter and Very little farther to Haverhill or Newburyport, than to Cross below the other falls, (which we think would not be so much for the Public Benefit of the State as to Cross higher on the River) Therefore our Prayer is that the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court would take this under their wise Consideration (and if they Should think the above Named place most Convenient) and Grant to the Parish of Pembroke and the Town of Bow the Privilege of a Lottery for the Sole purpose of Building a free Bridge for the Benefit of the Public; a Cross Merrimack River at the aforesaid place, And that the s<sup>d</sup> Towns shall have the Exclusive Right upon Said River for Building Said Bridge from garvens falls Down S<sup>d</sup> River to the mouth of Moors Brook So Call'd, and Your Petitioners as in Duty Bound Shall ever pray.<sup>2</sup>

The following is the petition of the committee, chosen April 18, for a lottery to aid in building a bridge across the Merrimack, addressed to the General Court, convening June 7, 1791 :

Humbly shews The subscribers a Committee appointed by the Parish of Pembroke in said state—that being very desirous of a Bridge across merrimac River at or near Garvens falls & that the same may be a free bridge, and it appearing to your Petitioners that it would be of very great utility to the Public at large, and as there is no probability of any bridge being erected in consequence of the liberty granted by an act of the General Court of this state at their last session, therefore pray that your Honours would grant the liberty of raising by Lottery the sum of Nine hundred pounds for the sole purpose of erecting a bridge at said falls or within one mile & a half of said falls either above or below the same as may be Judged most Convenient for the public good, which sum we suppose would be absolutely necessary for Compleating the same (but if said sum should exceed, the surplus to be placed in the Treasury of this state) or reserved for repairs as to your Honours may appear most Convenient, your Petitioners are of opinion that if a Lottery should be granted it would not be injurious to the public but only prevent those who wish to try their fortunes in lotteries from Carrying the money out of this state into the neighbouring states, fully Confident that it will appear to your Honours that a free & safe passage over said river would be very advantageous to the public and that it is your desire to promote the public good, we trust that your honours will grant our Request under such restrictions as may seem meet—and that you will grant liberty to bring in a Bill accordingly, and your Petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray<sup>1</sup>

The bill, if brought in, failed of a passage.

When Pembroke and the neighboring towns were in Rockingham County, many of the inhabitants felt that they were subjected to a considerable inconvenience and unnecessary expense by their distance from the county courts. As early as February 5, 1788, Timothy Walker, in behalf of the citizens of Concord, petitioned the legislature to form a new county. This petition probably led to the appointment of a committee, who made report to the legislature in 1790. This report was considered in the house of representatives June 16, 1790, and a vote passed requesting the secretary to furnish the several newspapers of the state with a copy for publication, and its further consideration be postponed till the next session.<sup>2</sup>

For fear no action might then be taken, or because of dissatisfaction with the towns proposed to be included, Samuel McConnell of Pembroke united with representatives of other towns, in a petition dated January 24, 1791, praying “in behalf and by authority of their several and respective towns,” certain specified towns may be “erected into a new County.”<sup>3</sup>

Agreeable to warrant, a special meeting was held May 7. Richard Bartlett, Maj. Samuel McConnell, Daniel Knox, Dr. Thomas Adams, Lt. Stephen Bartlett, Dea. William Cochran, John Knox, Jr., Capt. John Cochran, Isaac Morrison, Ens. Aaron Whittemore, Robert Martin, and Capt. Joseph Emery, were chosen a committee to take into consideration the new state constitution, as revised by the convention lately assembled for that purpose, and report as to the expediency of accepting it. Adjourned to May 28.

Re-assembling, favorable action was taken on the above committee's report. The town also voted to build a new meeting-house within forty rods of the pound.

August 27 occurred the national election for the choice of presidential electors and four representatives to Congress.

At this meeting also a committee, consisting of Dea. William Cochran, Richard Bartlett, Ens. Aaron Whittemore, Maj. Samuel McConnell, Dea. David Kimball, Nathaniel Lakeman, James Cunningham, Dr. Thomas Adams, and Capt. Joseph Emery, with the selectmen, was appointed to consider the proposed amendments to the constitution, and report.

At an adjourned meeting, September 3, the committee made their report, which was accepted, and the town voted almost unanimously in favor of said amendments, only two voting in the negative.

Another special meeting was held November 12, and votes were brought in for "vacant" presidential electors, and "vacant" representatives to Congress. Only 23 of the legal voters of the town brought in their ballots, showing a great lack of enthusiasm, or a strong feeling of security touching the welfare of the country in view of a possible change of administration.

We find this year for the first time record of the "approbations" of the selectmen given to certain persons, licensing them as tavern-keepers. We give the names of those receiving such license: Joseph Davis, Caleb Bartlett, Lt. Thomas Robinson, Dr. John Cochran, Richard Bartlett, and Frederick Foster.

1793. A special town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, February 4, to locate the new meeting-house. The town voted to build it on land of Nathaniel Lakeman "forty rods from the corner of the road opposite the Pound on the westerly side of the third Range Road," and adjourned to the first Monday in May.

Coming together on May 6, it was voted that the meeting-house be built by the sale of the pews.

The annual town-meeting occurred March 4, at which a vote was passed instructing the selectmen to call to account all the constables of previous years, "so that there may be a full settlement." After voting for county treasurer, the meeting was adjourned to May 6. Meeting accordingly, Frye Holt was voted nine shillings for the loss of a chain, while building Buckstreet bridge after it was carried away by a freshet.

A special meeting was called by warrant for May 6, at which three pence on a single poll was voted for the repair of the highways, and ten pounds for parish charges. Also voted to build the new meeting-house 60x45 feet, and chose Nathaniel Lakeman, Col. Nathaniel Head, Daniel Knox, John Chickering, Josiah Hagget, Lt. Stephen Bartlett, and John Knox, a committee to draft the plan of said house, and "pew-ground," and report for the acceptance of the town. Stephen Holt was exempted from paying a poll-tax, on account of his "being a cripple."

At an adjourned meeting, October 1, the plan of the committee was accepted.

Because of the long distances the people of the town were obliged to travel to attend courts of judicature, as they were held in the extreme end of the county, and for other consequent inconveniences, we find David Kimball, John Bryent, and Richard Bartlett, of Pembroke, uniting with others, of Canterbury, Loudon, Northfield, Bow, and Concord, in a petition to the General Court, June, 1793, for redress by establishing more and nearer courts.<sup>1</sup>

1794. Agreeable to warrant, a special meeting was held February 10, at which it was voted that "Rev. Zaccheus Colby shall be the town minister," and Dea. James Mann, Capt. David Kimball, and Lt. Daniel Knox were chosen a committee to wait upon him, receive his answer, and report to the town. It was also voted that the union of the societies continue as it now stands. John Chickering, Dea. James Mann, Lt. Daniel Knox, John Knox, and Nathaniel Lakeman were chosen a committee to number the pews according to the plan presented by the committee of the previous year; and Isaac Morrison, John Knox, Jr., Dr. Thomas Adams, Col. Nathaniel Head, and Capt. Simon Morrill, a committee empowered to sell the pews at public auction and take security for the same. The meeting was then adjourned to March 3, and again to March 31, when Capt. David Kimball, Col. Nathaniel Head, and Robert Martin, were chosen a committee "to Notify and wait on the Committee Chosen to fix the Place for the New meeting-house," and adjourned to May 26, then to September 8, then to December 1, again to December 8, and finally to the annual meeting, March 2, 1795.

Dr. Thomas Adams, town-clerk, entered his protest against the proceedings of this meeting, presumably because opposed to the call of Rev. Mr. Colby, or dissatisfied with action touching the new meeting-house.

The annual town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 3. It was voted to raise one day's work on a single poll for the repair of the highways, and nine pounds lawful money to defray parish charges. Capt. David Kimball, Jonathan Elliot, and Richard Bartlett, were chosen a committee to examine into the demands of sundry persons for recovering an action against John Bryent, and report to the town. Capt. Reuben Kimball, Esquire Blanchard, and Esquire Eastman, were chosen a committee to see "if they can find a more suitable place to set the new meeting-house than the one proposed."

At an adjourned meeting, May 26, the lot chosen for the meeting-house by the new committee was accepted. Then adjourned to September 8, and again to the first Tuesday of December.

A meeting for the election of representatives to the Continental Congress occurred August 25. No other business was transacted.

A special meeting was held October 20, to see what provision the town would make for twenty-five "minute men" which the authorities of the state had called for. A bounty of one dollar was voted to each man enlisting, and an additional two dollars when entering on active service, and money enough additional to what is otherwise given them to assure them seven dollars per month for service.

One representative to congress failing of an election in August, a special meeting was held December 8, to bring in votes for the two candidates who had received the largest number at the previous election. Sixty votes were polled for Abial Foster.

October 1, public notice was given of a weekly line of stages from Concord to Boston, running through Pembroke, Allenstown, Chester, and Haverhill. The schedule time was two days for carrying the mail between the two places. Present facilities are in marked contrast.

In November, this line made connection at Haverhill with stages for Exeter and Portsmouth. Fourteen pounds of baggage free were allowed each passenger.

George Lewis, painter, from Liverpool, England, established his head-quarters, this year, at Andrew Robertson's, opposite the lower (Presbyterian) meeting-house, ready to serve the public as opportunity offered.

1795. The annual town-meeting was held March 2.

At an adjourned meeting, April 6, it was voted to raise £12, in addition to what was in the bank, to defray town charges and "4/6" on the poll to repair the highways, and £5 to fence the grave-yard on Buckstreet.

1796. The annual meeting occurred March 7.

At a special meeting held June 6, Col. Nathaniel Head, Dea. William Cochran, and Jonathan Elliot, were chosen a committee to investigate "Noah Emery's Matter" concerning money his wife put into the selectmen's hands. Then adjourned to June 27, when the town voted to empower the selectmen to assess each school district such a sum as shall be sufficient to build, or repair, their school-houses, where found to be necessary.

The meeting for the election of representatives to Congress occurred August 29. As previously, there was a failure to elect, so that it was necessary to hold a special meeting November 7, to vote for the two candidates receiving at the August election the highest number of votes. The non-election seems to have been due to the large number of scattering votes, judging from the records of Pembroke, or from the stay-at-homes, showing the lack of enthusiasm in the canvass. At this meeting only 36 votes were polled, Jonathan Freeman receiving 33. Votes were also brought in for presidential electors.

1797. It was found, as it would seem, a very difficult matter to select a satisfactory spot on which to erect the new meeting-house that had been voted, and also to agree on a plan acceptable to the citizens, for we find in the warrant for a special meeting to settle upon place and plan, the following articles :

2<sup>ly</sup> to see if the town will Proceed by Vote to Build a new Meeting house agreeable to vote of said town and upon the Plan that hath Been Exhibited to said town by their Committee and If not Voted 3<sup>ly</sup> to see if they will agree upon a New Plan to better suit the good People of said town By Building said new Meeting house on the South Easterly Corner of L<sup>t</sup> James Heads Land where it Best Conveins for said house to stand south of M<sup>r</sup> Nath<sup>l</sup> Ambroses House; and If not agreed upon by Vote 4<sup>ly</sup> to see if they will agree By Vote upon any spot of Ground in Pembroke to build said Meeting house on; and If any spot be agreed upon then 5<sup>ly</sup> to see what other Method they will take Relative to Building said Meeting house.

The design was to accommodate the people better.

This meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, January 23. The town refused to accept the place previously selected, but did accept the plan that had been exhibited. It was then voted to build the house on the south-easterly corner of Lt. James Head's home lot, "or as near that Place as Convenience will admit of." A committee consisting of Solomon Whitehouse, Maj. Samuel McConnell, Capt. David Kimball, Col. Nathaniel Head, and Dea. James Mann, was chosen to buy the land, and another, consisting of Capt. Nathaniel Whittemore, Richard Bartlett, Daniel Knox, Dea. Nathaniel Lakeman, and John Knox, Jr., to sell the pews.

The annual meeting was held March 6. Thirty-six pounds were voted to defray town charges, and three shillings on a single poll, "and so in proportion for a greater or smaller sum," for the repair of the highways.

Dea. Nathaniel Lakeman, John Knox, Jr., Josiah Hagget, and Stephen Hagget, were set off in a district "for schooling," and their proportion of school money voted them.

A meeting was held August 28, for the election of a representative to Congress. Failure so to elect, led to the calling of another meeting, October 30, "to vote for two who had then the Highest number of votes for that office."

1798. At a meeting held February 5, to see what method the town will adopt to raise their quota of soldiers, it was voted to give one dollar bounty to each "at the time of Passing muster," and ten dollars per month, the selectmen to pay the cost of enlistment.

The annual town-meeting was held March 5. It was voted to raise £15 to defray town charges, and three shillings on a single poll for repair of the highways. Also "to Divide money and travel of all those who paid according to pole and Estate, to find a place to set the new Meeting house and Report Back to said Meeting." Dea. William Cochran, Maj. Samuel McConnell, Daniel Knox, Col. Nathaniel Head, Thomas Adams, Lt. Stephen Bartlett, Caleb Foster, Isaac Morrison, Samuel Noyes, Nathaniel Head, Robert Martin, Dea. James Mann, and Samuel Daniell, were chosen a committee to carry out the vote.

The selectmen were instructed to repair the pound.

At an adjourned meeting, March 19, the town voted to accept the report of the committee, "that the Center of money and Travle is on the south Line of Dea. Lovejoys home Lot 40 Rods East of the second Range Road;" that the meeting-house shall stand on Lt. James Head's home lot as near the south-easterly corner as convenience will admit, and that Maj. Samuel McConnell, John Head, and Samuel Daniell, be a committee to buy two acres of land to build it on, and report at the next meeting.

Andrew Robertson was allowed six pounds thirteen shillings and six pence additional, for carrying on a law suit against John Bryent.

A special meeting was held at the Presbyterian meeting-house, August 27, to bring in votes for a representative to Congress. Maj. Samuel McConnell, Dea. William Cochran, and Capt. Benjamin Norris were chosen a committee to attend the general court and assist Daniel Knox in defending the town against the petition of Allenstown "praying for a part of this town to be annexed to them."

1799. The annual town-meeting was held at the Congregational meeting-house, March 4, and 25 pounds were voted to defray town charges, and one day's work on a single poll for the repair of the highways. The town voted to receive portions of Allenstown and Chester, if annexed by the general court.

At a special meeting held November 18, votes were cast for a representative to Congress.

CHAPTER XV.

ANNALS, 1800-1809.

1800. The annual town-meeting was held March 3. The matter of the revision of the constitution coming before the town for its action, eighty votes were polled against it.

At an adjourned meeting, March 11, 77 voted for, and 48 against, receiving a part of Chester and Allenstown. Twenty pounds were voted to defray town charges, and three shillings on a single poll for the highways.

A meeting to bring in votes for a representative to Congress was held August 25.

Again October 27, votes were brought in for the two candidates receiving the highest number at the previous election, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Hon. William Gordon.

The census this year gave 956 as the population of the town.

1801. The annual meeting occurred March 2, and an adjourned one, March 9. It was voted to raise three shillings on a single poll for highway repairs; to raise $50 to defray town charges; and to wall in one half acre on the eighth range for a "burying ground."

A meeting relative to roads was held October 5, when Capt. Solomon Whitehouse, Maj. Samuel McConnell, and Capt. Asa Robinson, were chosen a committee to meet with committees from Concord and Bow for conference.

At the beginning of this new century, Richard Bartlett, Dr. Thomas Adams, and Nathaniel Head were justices of the peace; Anthony S. Stickney, coroner; Nathaniel Martin, deputy-sheriff, and Nathaniel Head, colonel of the Eleventh regiment of militia, Timothy Chandler, first major, and David McCrillis, second major.

1802. The annual town-meeting was held at the Presbyterian meeting-house March 1, when it was voted to raise $75 for town charges, and one day's work on a single poll for repair of the highways, but none for building a bridge below Osgood's Mills.

A meeting was held August 30, to ballot for a representative to Congress to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of the incumbent, and for one to serve two years from March 4, 1803. The town also authorized the selectmen to settle with the attorney employed "in the indictment against s<sup>d</sup> town."

1803. The annual meeting was held March 7, and an adjourned meeting, March 15, when it was voted to raise $100 to defray town charges; and one day's work on a poll to repair the highways, fixing the price of a day's work at one dollar.

At this date thistles abounded, and the selectmen were ordered to cut them twice during the season.

The following citizens of Pembroke, May 21, united in a request to Daniel Knox, justice of the peace, to call a meeting of the legal voters, "to see if the town will vote to abide by & fulfill their vote that was passed in May 1788 relative to union in Ministerial affairs and supporting Rev<sup>d</sup> Mr Colbey according to pole & Estate or pas any other vote or votes relative to said contract in May 1788."

The meeting was called April 11, but no action was taken.

Rev. Mr. Colby gave up his ministerial work May 11, and probably soon commenced a suit against the town for arrearages in salary, serving the writ on Ens. Aaron Whittemore, "as one of the principle inhabitants of said Pembroke," for a meeting was held August 8, to choose an agent to defend the town in the suit. Mr. Whittemore was chosen such agent.

This vote, however, was not passed without open opposition, for the following "members of the Presbyterian Parish," entered "this

A special town meeting was held October 17, and Solomon Wheeler chosen agent of the town to attend the next session of the general court, “to show Cause why part of Bow should not be set onto Pembroke.”

At this date the population of the town was 982.

1804. The annual town-meeting was held March 5.

At an adjourned meeting March 13, $150 was voted for town charges ; and one day’s work, at $1 per day, on a poll, for repair of the highways.

Votes were brought in for a representative to Congress, August 27.

The meeting for the choice of presidential electors occurred November 5. At this meeting the selectmen were authorized to wall in the “grave yard in Buckstreet,” payment to be made in 1805.

The agitation for a new meeting-house culminated in calling a special meeting, December 24. It was voted to purchase one acre of land for the purpose, and John Ladd, Samuel McConnell, Christopher Osgood, Nathaniel Head, James Cunningham, Isaac Morrison, Samuel Emery, John Knox, Jr., and Daniel Knox, were chosen a committee “to Center the money & Travel in the town of Pembroke,” to find the proper location. At an adjourned meeting, December 30, this committee reported the centre “at or near the pound.” The town accepted this report, and also Dea. Nathaniel Lakeman’s offer of one acre on the southeast corner of his lot, near the pound. Isaac Morrison, Samuel Emery, Christopher Osgood, John Ladd, Samuel McConnell, Daniel Knox, and Aaron Whittemore, were chosen a committee to draw a plan of a meeting-house, and “vendue the pews.”

At a meeting held December 3, it was voted to call Rev. Samuel Walker to settle with them in the ministry, at a salary of $400 yearly, but so many of the citizens, “being of a diferant persuasion,” entered so strongly their protest, the vote was reconsidered.

The boundary line between Pembroke and Concord was fixed, December 13, in the middle of Soucook river.

During the year the selectmen “approved” Nehemiah Ordway, Timothy Barnard, Benjamin Cushing, Josiah Sturtevant, Capt. Asa Robinson, Samuel Cochran, Jr., and Benjamin Fisk, tavern-keepers and retailers of spirituous liquors, and Joseph Blanchard and John Calfe, tavern-keepers. The "approbation" held good for a year from date.

As cattle were not then confined to the owner's pasture, as now, the mixing of herds or flocks was inevitable. To prevent dispute as to ownership, and facilitate separation, it was the custom of the people to have their stock-mark recorded in the town's books. We give a specimen :

1805. The annual town-meeting was held at the Presbyterian meeting-house March 4. The town voted to raise one dollar on a poll, and in that proportion for other property ; also $100 to defray town charges.

At a meeting, March 12, to bring in votes for state and county officers, Joseph Blanchard was chosen constable, and Ens. Aaron Whittemore representative.

By vote the selectmen were authorized to procure two new books for future town records, and index the present book. The time for the annual meeting was changed to the second Tuesday of March. The building of a bridge over Soucook river was left discretionary with the selectmen.

At a meeting held September 2, the town voted to meet Concord at the middle of Soucook river and build their part of the bridge, and also the road laid out by a committee of the court, and authorized the selectmen to assess such sum as may be necessary for this purpose.

At another meeting, December 9, Aaron Whittemore, Jr., and Joseph Emery, Jr., were chosen constables.

This year the list of tax-payers was first put on record, and we give it below, as a matter of interest indicating the property holders of the town at the beginning of the century. It is copied seriatim.

1806. At the annual meeting, March 11, it was voted to raise one day's work, at one dollar, on a poll for repairing the highways; and $200 for town charges.

At a special meeting, May 26, an ineffectual attempt was made to authorize the selectmen to make out the ministerial tax, and allow "every person to have the benefit of his own money agreeable to his professions;" and to annex to Pembroke a part of Allenstown, and of Chester.

A meeting was held August 25 to ballot for representatives to Congress.

A post-office was established in Pembroke this year, in the care of Benj. F. Stickney, and was, doubtless, a great convenience to the inhabitants.

1807. The annual town meeting occurred March 10. The account of Ens. Aaron Whittemore for carrying on a lawsuit begun by Rev. Zaccheus Colby, was accepted.

It was voted to raise one dollar on a poll to repair the highways, with labor at one dollar per day; that the selectmen shall repair the "graveyard fence" near the Congregational meeting-house, and bring in their bill; and that highway surveyors shall "destroy the thistles in their Destricts and in the graveyards joining them." A vote was also passed on the revision of the constitution, resulting in 4 for, and 57 against it.

At an adjourned meeting, March 16, it was voted to raise $100 to defray town charges.

Another meeting was held September 14, when the town voted to pay two dollars bounty to the minute-men that had been called for, and $10 per month for rendered service.

At a meeting held December 21, it was voted to raise $100 to defray town charges; and to leave to the discretion of the selectmen the support of Eliphalet Connor<sup>1</sup> and wife.

1808. The annual town-meeting was held March 8. The town voted to raise one dollar on a poll for highway repairs; to allow 12½ cents per hour and eight hours for a day, for work; and raise $150 for town charges.

Daniel Holt, Richard Holt, John Holt, Daniel Knox, and others, were set off to Buckstreet district.

The selectmen were given discretionary power regarding the support of the widow of Eliphalet Connor.

At an adjourned meeting, August 29, Solomon Wheeler bid off the support of Richard Wait till the next annual meeting, at $1.50 per week.

The same day, agreeable to warrant, votes were brought in for representatives to Congress, 177 voting.

On November 4, 183 votes were polled for presidential electors.

As to the matter of furnishing powder, balls, and flints, in accordance with an act of the legislature, it was left to the "wisdom of the selectmen."

Rev. A. Burnham was ordained pastor of the Congregational church, March 2.

This year $304.25 were assessed on the inhabitants of Buckstreet school district, to build a new school-house; $44.14 on property-holders in the "upper" school district on Pembroke street to repair school-house; and $221.21 on those living in the Hill school district to build a new school-house.

1809. The annual town-meeting occurred March 14, and March 27.

Joseph Baker bid off the board of Elizabeth Frye, town pauper, at 23 cents per week, and Solomon Wheeler, that of Richard Wait, at $1.58 per week, the price in each case to include paying for clothing and "doctoring."

One dollar on a poll was voted for repairing highways and one dollar for a day's work of eight hours. Three hundred dollars were voted for town expenses.

The support of Eliphalet Connor's widow was again left to the "wisdom of the selectmen."

This was the last meeting held in the Congregational meeting-house.

At a special meeting held July 19, Col. Asa Robinson was chosen agent of the town to attend the superior court to look after an indictment against the town.

At this date the Merrimack was used as a highway, by the Bow canal, built between "Isle of Hooksett" and Garvin's Falls. The boat-house stood a little north of the mouth of Suncook river.

James Tallant was post-rider through the town, and his coming, as a bearer of news from the outside world, was an event of no small importance.

CHAPTER XVI.

1810. The annual town-meeting was held March 13, and 20.

It was voted to raise $600 for current expenses, and one day's work on a poll for repair of highways; to pay 25 cents bounty on each crow killed—repealed August 6; and to allow Thomas Whittemore $18 for collecting taxes for 1808.

The board of the town's poor was bid off at auction, at prices ranging from 33 cents to $1.92 per week.<sup>1</sup>

At a meeting August 27, ballots were brought in for five representatives to Congress in accordance with the act of June 21, 1792.

A vote was passed uniting the "Pound" and "Middle" school districts. The different districts were also numbered as follows: Lower district on Pembroke street, No. 1; upper, on Pembroke street, No. 2; Buckstreet, No. 3; "Hill," No. 4; "Pound" and "Middle," No. 5; eighth range, No. 6; and "Burrough," No. 7.

The "Cold Friday" occurred January 11. Few ventured outside of their homes, the cold was so intense.

The census of this year gave a population of 1,153.

1811. The annual meeting was held at the north meeting-house, March 12. It was voted to raise $400 to defray current expenses; and one day's work on a poll for repair of highways.

Isaac Morrison, John Knox, Jr., Jacob Emery, Jr., Robert Martin, James Cochran, Asa Robinson, and Timothy Barnard, were chosen a committee "to centre money and travel," and procure a lot for a town-house.

At an adjourned meeting, April 9, it was voted to build a town-house "on or near where the pound now stands," 45 feet long, 35 feet wide, with 13 feet posts. John Knox, Jr., Samuel Cochran, Jr., and Robert Martin, were chosen a committee to superintend the building, and $400 raised for the purpose. At a meeting held April 29, $100 additional were voted.

On June 3, an attempt to raise $200 to repair the north meeting-house, provided that the proprietors grant the town the privilege of holding its public meetings there, failed.

At a meeting held October 28, at the town-house, $80 in money, and $250 in labor, at 12½ cents per hour, were voted to repair the bridges in town, and Gen. Nathaniel Head was chosen to superintend the work.

1812. At the annual town meeting, March 10, Aaron Whittemore, Aaron Mansur, and John H. Merrill, were chosen a committee to settle with the town-house building committee.

It was voted to raise $400 to defray town charges; and one and one quarter days' work on a poll to repair the highways, one fifth to be laid out in winter, if wanted, and if not, not at all.

Joseph Gale was allowed $3.75 for counterfeit money taken for taxes, and $1.20 for funeral charges of David Robinson; and David Holt $8 additional for collecting taxes.

THE OLD TOWN-HOUSE BUILT IN 1811.

At another meeting, August 31, the town refused to vote additional pay to Pembroke soldiers belonging to the militia detached for service, agreeable to an act of Congress. Moody Dustin, Edla Foster, and William Abbot, were members of a company sent in July for the defence of Portsmouth.

Votes were brought in for presidential electors November 2.

At this date Asa Robinson was brigadier-general in the State Militia; Samuel Cofran, lieut.-colonel of the 11th regiment; David Norris, major, 1st, and Asa Foster, 2d battalion.

1813. The annual town meeting was held March 9. The town voted to raise $500 for current expenses; and one day's work on a poll, at one dollar per day, for repair of the highways.

Aaron Whittemore was chosen agent to settle the town line between Chichester and Pembroke.

At a meeting held July 6, the town voted to build a "pound" of stone at "the corner of Mr. Lakeman's Pasture by the town-house," and raise $147.50 for that purpose. Christopher Osgood bid off the contract to build it at $135.

It would seem that the Congregational society found it difficult to pay Rev. Abraham Burnham the $500 promised him for a yearly salary at the time of his settlement, and for the purpose of securing outside help, we find in the warrant for a town-meeting, October 4, the following article: "To see if the town will vote to pay the Rev. Abraham Burnham Salary that he was to have Yearly by the society during his ministry that settled him according to pole and estate with the help that the adjacent towns are pleased to make likewise with the intention to exempt all those persons from taxation that the constitution of the state would exempt; with this provision that the Rev. Abraham Burnham preaches one half of the time in the North Meetinghouse<sup>1</sup> in said Pembroke and the other half in the South Meetinghouse." The town "Voted that Rev. Abraham Burnham be Minister for the town of Pembroke." "Voted his salary be Five Hundred Dollars pr year." "Voted that the meetings be held one half of the time in the south meeting house and the other half in the North Meeting house in said Pembroke."

1814. At a meeting held January 3, the town voted to raise $550 for current expenses; and one day's work on a poll for highway repairs.

At a meeting called for March 14, the warrant was dismissed.

<sup>1</sup>This was afterwards known as the Ambrose meeting-house, from the fact that Dea. Nathaniel Ambrose lived near it on the easterly side of the second range road, and also because he was very active in having it located there, and, as some have said, was financially ruined by the amount of his investment in it. The land on which it stood was deeded December 7, 1802. It was not completed till some years after, for in the warrant for a meeting, June 3, 1811, was an article "to see if the town would vote to raise money to repair or finish the north meeting house, provided the proprietors will allow the town to hold their town meetings in it." Nothing was done, and it is uncertain when, if ever, it was finished.

At a special meeting, August 29, votes were brought in to fill a vacancy in Congress caused by resignation, and to elect representatives for the 14th Congress.

It was voted to raise $100, and one quarter day's work on a poll, to be worked out on bridges. Nehemiah Cochran, David Kimball Jr., and Gen. Nathaniel Head, were appointed a committee to see the work done.

At a meeting held October 17, the town refused to act on articles looking to the compensation of Pembroke soldiers on duty at Portsmouth, and the enlistment of soldiers for service by offering a bounty, or otherwise; but authorized the selectmen to procure for the town 200 pounds of powder, 400 pounds of lead, 500 flints, and 10 stands of arms.

At another meeting held December 19, the vote for the purchase of powder, lead, and flints was reconsidered, and an allowance of four dollars a month more than "Government wages" was granted soldiers in active service, and $17 for the transportation of the baggage of Capt. Fuller's company to and from Portsmouth.

Samuel Ames, Samuel Evans, Joseph Emery, Edmund Holt, and Richard Morse of Pembroke, in Capt. William Marshall's company, were called into active service during the summer and fall.

Capt. Edward Fuller with his company was called to Portsmouth for garrison duty for sixty days, September 26. The following belonged to the company, and were all, or nearly all, from Pembroke:

1815. At the annual town-meeting March 14, the town voted to raise $1,000 for current expenses, and one and one fourth days' work on a poll to repair the highways. Also voted to allow Thomas Knox $20 "for his loss in his Hardy suit concerning Richard Wait."

On June 15, the exclusive right to navigate the Merrimack river with steamboats was granted John L. Sullivan by the legislature.

On June 26, the Congregational society of the town was incorporated.

In September, the town was swept from the east by the memorable "September gale," unroofing barns and sheds, and doing other damage.

At this time Dr. Abel Blanchard was physician; Benjamin Cushing, post-master; Nathaniel Dearborn and Boswell Stevens, lawyers; Daniel Knox, justice of the peace and quorum; James Knox, Jr., deputy sheriff; Nathaniel Head, Asa Robinson, Aaron Whittemore, Jr., Abel Blanchard, Boswell Stevens, and Nathaniel Dearborn, justices of the peace.

The moral condition of the town at this time may be inferred from the formation, March 7, of the "Society for the Reformation of Morals" resulting from a conference of leading citizens "on the state of morals and to adopt measures for the suppression of vice and the encouragement of virtue." The officers were: Rev. Abraham Burnham, president; Benjamin Cushing, secretary; Dr. Abel Blanchard, treasurer; and Christopher Osgood, Richard Whittemore, Moses Haseltine, David Kimball, Jr., Nathaniel Blood, Joseph Gale, executive committee. Besides the officers, the following were original members of the society:

Anthony S. Stickney,
Daniel Moore,
David Ambrose,
Jesse Kimball,
John C. Kimball,
Timothy Gale,

Boswell Stevens,

Benjamin Cushing, Jr.

The constitution adopted declared its object to be "the suppression of immorality of every description, particularly sabbath-breaking, intemperance, profanity and falsehood, and the correction of any customs or practices which have an immoral tendency," and enjoined upon the members the duty "to exert their influence to suppress" all immoralities ; “ to endeavor to reclaim the immoral by friendly admonitions ; to aid and support tything-men and all civil officers in the faithful execution of the law ; and finally to encourage the rising generation in a constant attendance on public worship, and in habits of sobriety, morality, and industry.”

On July 3, the following resolutions were adopted :

Resolved, That it is indecorous for people to stand out of doors about the house of God, after the public solemnities are commenced.

Resolved, That the falling of seats at the close of public prayer is an unnecessary disturbance, and highly unbecoming the sanctuary of the Lord.

On January 8, 1816, the following additional resolutions were adopted :

Resolved, That the sacred observation of the Lord's Day is preëminently adapted to promote the best interests of mankind by averting the judgments and procuring the blessings of Heaven.

Resolved, That we will, by our example and all the influence we possess, endeavor to promote the Sanctification of the Sabbath-day.

Resolved, That those town and county officers who faithfully execute the Sabbath Day Act deserve the approbation and support of their fellow-citizens, and are to be considered the faithful guardians of public sentiments and morals.

Resolved, That the free and common use of ardent spirits is, both in a temporal and spiritual view, a very destructive evil.

Resolved, That for store-keepers to retail ardent spirits to be drunken in their stores or taverns, to townsmen, in ordinary cases, is injurious to the health and interest of individuals, to the peace and comfort of families, and to the morals of the community.

Resolved, That taverners and retailers' shops are objects on which the faithful guardians of public sentiment and morals will ever keep a watchful eye.

Resolved, That we will use our influence that our public houses and stores may be regulated according to the good and wholesome laws of this state.

Resolved, That the public use of ardent spirits at funerals, in ordinary cases, is a useless expense and totally unbecoming the solemnity of the occasion.

Resolved, That we view as justly reprehensible the too frequent practice of urging people to drink from motives of friendship (as though nothing short of intemperance would be satisfactory), and that giving a person on any occasion more than one polite invitation, we consider a great want of civility.

Resolved, That we will endeavor to exert our influence against an open profanation of the Lord's Day; against the shameful vice of intemperance, against falsehood, and the sins of the tongue generally, against vanity and idleness, night revelling and dissipation, as provoking to the Almighty and ruinous to the bodies and souls of men. For “ Godliness is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.”

Resolved, That the public worship of God and a preached Gospel, are ordinances of divine appointment, and eminently productive of the good order, improvement and prosperity of human society, and are means of salvation to the souls of men, and that therefore we will exert all the influence we may be able to command to have these precious ordinances preserved among us and handed down to our posterity.

That the society commended itself to the moral sentiment of the community, is manifest from its growth, the following persons joining from time to time :

John Osgood,	David Kimball,	John Ladd,
John Ladd Parker,	Nathaniel Ambrose,	Jonathan Hutchinson,
Willis Aldar Thompson,	Mark Baker,	William Robertson,
B. G. Boardman,	Daniel Knox,	Timothy Hall,
Joseph Swett,	Aaron Martin,	William Kimball, Jr.,
Charles Rowell,	Josiah Kittredge,	Moses Chamberlain,
Moses Head,	Seth B. Newell,	Robert Fife,
Timothy Barnard,	Asa Head,	Jacob Elliot,
Timothy Ayer,	Jacob Emery, Jr.,	John Thompson,
Jesse Gault,	John Lewis,	Isaac A. Porter.

During the years of its active existence, an annual public meeting was held in its interest, and an appropriate discourse delivered by its president. The character of its members was a guarantee of its influence for good in the community.

This society was finally merged, November 14, 1825, into the Sabbath-school organization connected with the Congregational church, clearly indicating the idea of its members, as to the legitimate work of the Sabbath-school.

1816. At the annual town meeting, occurring March 12, it was voted to raise $600 for town expenses; one day's work on a poll, for the highways; to procure a "burying cloth" to be kept at the house of John Knox, Jr.; to give each soldier who went to Portsmouth for its defence in 1812, $1.50.

It was made the "duty of the selectmen annually soon after they are sworn into office to call on all Justices of the peace Tythingmen and other officers who may be authorized, or known, to have received fines compromises or mulcts for any quitam cases whereof one moiety accrues to the town and to demand said towns share of all such fines and appropriate the sums so rec<sup>d</sup> to the use of the town according to law."

The meeting for the choice of members to Congress and presidential electors occurred November 4.

1817. The annual town-meeting was held March 11. The town voted to raise $500 to defray current expenses; and a day's work on a poll to repair the highways; but dismissed an article to see if the town will "pay the soldiers the money on muster Days which the law allows them in lieu of finding them meats and drinks."

At a meeting held April 21, school district No. 1 was divided into two, Solomon Whitehouse and John Whitehouse, with their home farms, and all the inhabitants of the district living north of them, constituting school district No. 1; and James Wallace, Jeremiah Morgan, and Jeremiah Morgan, Jr., with their home farms, and all in the district living south of them, constituting school district No. 8.

It seems that this division was unsatisfactory, and at a meeting held June 30, it was voted "to disannull all former votes," and restore district No. 1 to its original limits.

1818. At the annual town-meeting, March 10, it was voted to raise $500 for current expenses, and one day's work on a poll for repairing the highways; to "set off & annex" to school district No. 8, Solomon Whitehouse, John Whitehouse, and Samuel Whitehouse, and to constitute Samuel Cochran, Jr., and David Kimball, "a committee to search and find out the defaulters of the town's money for six years past & to take measures for recovering the same."

Such a committee reported later, but instead of Messrs. Cochran and Kimball, the report was signed by Benjamin Cushing and Boswell Stevens. It does not appear from any record how such a change came about.

The report does not show that the town had sustained any financial loss, but the seeming discrepancy arose from "a great want of system" in keeping the accounts of the town, and that this was largely occasioned from the fact that the duties of selectmen and treasurer had been performed by "one & the same set of men." The committee advised that hereafter the two offices be kept distinct.

1819. At the annual town meeting, March 9, it was voted to raise $800 to defray town charges; and one day's work on a poll for highways.

The selectmen were authorized to agree with the selectmen of Chichester in electing a committee to settle the lines between the two towns, and if in this way it cannot be amicably accomplished, to apply to the legislature to appoint a committee "to scan & settle" such line.

The following is the full text of the agreement finally concluded, and bounds established.

We the subscribers Selectmen of Chichester on the one part and the Selectmen of Pembroke on the other part have agreed on behalf of our respected Towns to have the line & bounds established between said towns and agreed to leave it to Hon. During January and February it was so warm there was but little snow, and wheels were in constant use.

The year was made memorable by the dedication, on May 25, of the new building for Pembroke Academy, which had been incorporated on June 25 of the previous year, and by the successful opening of the school.

CHAPTER XVII.

ANNALS, 1820-1829.

1820. At the annual town meeting held March 14, the town voted to raise one dollar on a poll to repair the highways; and $750 for current expenses.

It voted against the formation of a new county, 41 to 28.

Votes were brought in for members of Congress and presidential electors November 6.

According to the census taken this year, Pembroke had a population of 1,256.

1821. At the annual town-meeting, March 13, the usual one dollar on a poll was voted for the repair of the highways; and $700 to defray town charges.

At a special meeting held September 4, Boswell Stevens was chosen agent of the town to defend an action brought by the town of Chichester against Pembroke for the support of the Benson family; also to compromise, or defend, the town against two indictments for not building and repairing the highways.

A tax of one half of one per cent. was this year imposed on the banks of the state for a "literary fund" for the benefit of the public schools.

1822. At the annual town meeting, March 12, one dollar was raised on a poll for highway repairs; and $600 for current expenses.

Timothy Hall was severed from school district No. 4, and annexed to No. 5.

Another vote was taken this year respecting the expediency of forming a new county, which resulted in favor, 142 to 53.

The prescribed meeting to vote for representatives to Congress occurred September 16.

1823. In the choice of officers at the annual town-meeting, March 11, for the first time in the history of the town, no tithing-men were chosen.

Five hundred dollars were voted for town charges for the current year; and one dollar on a poll, and "in proportion upon the estates," for highway repairs.

At this date, according to John Farmer, there were in town "many water-privileges, four paper-mills, the cotton factory of Major Stark, and several mills, together with a flourishing village. The main street extends nearly on a parallel with Merrimack river in a straight course about three miles, and is very pleasant. On this are situated the academy, one of the meeting-houses, and the principal village."

1824. At the annual meeting of the town, March 9, it was voted to raise $1.25 on a poll for repair of the highways; and $500 for current expenses; that the selectmen procure a hearse for the use of the town, and provide a suitable place for keeping it; that Richard Holt and Daniel Holt be severed from school district No. 3, and annexed to No. 5.

James Haseltine, William Knox, and Daniel Knox, were chosen a committee to take into consideration the propriety of purchasing a home for the town's poor, and make report at some future meeting.

Votes were cast, November 1, for presidential electors, and representatives to Congress. But little interest was shown, however, as only 73 voters availed themselves of the privilege.

In February of this year, from the rapid melting of the large body of snow covering the ground, and a heavy rain-fall, the Merrimack river was visited by a freshet, breaking up the ice and sweeping it furiously down stream, thereby completely demolishing all bridges in its pathway.

1825. At the annual town-meeting, March 8, the town voted to raise one dollar on a ratable poll for the repair of highways and bridges; to pass over the article to see what sum should be assessed for current expenses; and to dismiss the one asking the town to raise money for the re-casting of the bell of the "South meeting-house."

In June of this year, General Lafayette, while making a tour of the country, visited by invitation the state capital. Col. A. A. Parker, one of the staff of Gov. D. L. Morrill, met him at the state line, Methuen, Mass., and became his escort. In the party were Gen. Lafayette, the Marquis Gilbert Motier de Lafayette, George Washington Lafayette, his son, Emile Lavosier, his private secretary, his servant, the driver, Nathaniel Walker, and Col. Parker. The equipage consisted of three carriages, a barouche drawn by four horses with flags in their head-stalls, a four horse stage-coach, and a two-horse covered carriage for baggage.

The fame of the general as a friend of the American people, as was natural, had caused his journey through the state to be diligently heralded, and his entire journey was an ovation. Multitudes assembled at hotels, stores, villages, and cross-roads, and showed the cordiality of their greetings, and good-will, with gifts of flowers, so ample as to become encumbrances.

The route lay through Suncook village. Here lived Maj. Caleb Stark, son of Maj.-Gen. John Stark. Having had a slight acquaintance with the general in the Revolutionary war, he had written him to call at his house, as he wished to see him and introduce him to his family. The invitation was accepted, and after his introduction, Maj. Stark seized his hand and began a long speech about revolutionary times, utterly forgetting his family who were standing near awaiting an introduction. In this dilemma, his spirited daughter, Miss Harriet Stark, no longer able to brook delay, came forward, and seizing the general's hand, said, "Permit me to introduce myself to you as the eldest daughter of Maj. Caleb Stark, with whom you are talking, and the grand-daughter of Major-Gen. John Stark, the hero of Bennington, and now permit me to introduce you to my mother, brothers, and sisters," which she accordingly did.

After their departure, the general paid her the compliment of possessing the fire and spirit of her grandfather, and making a heroine, if she had lived in those exciting times.

As the party passed along Pembroke street at the close of that summer day, they found the people wide awake, and Lafayette received from them as enthusiastic a welcome as anywhere on the route. They had been waiting for their approach, and the signal musket, or bugle-blast, brought them speedily into sight. The general shook hands and spake a few words to those near by, irrespective of age. The halt and lame were sitting in easy chairs before the cottage doors. At one cottage an invalid old lady was brought by two men in her arm-chair, to the carriage, and seizing the general's hand in both of hers, exclaimed with tearful eyes, "Bless the Lord!"

They rested for the night at Fisk's hotel, five miles from Concord. Here the general received a hearty welcome from a large concourse of people, shook hands with them, and made a short speech. Afterwards, learning of the general's weariness, they quietly withdrew.

The evening was spent in an agreeable conversation with his escort.

The next day, June 22, a committee of the legislature consisting of Hon. Stephen P. Webster, senator, and four members of the house, came down from Concord to escort him there. The general and Mr. Webster occupied a barouche drawn by six white horses, and were followed by a long procession of carriages. Twenty companies of the New Hampshire militia, under General Bradbury Bartlett, met them at the Concord line.

Extensive arrangements had been made by the legislature and citizens of Concord, to give them a grand reception, and the programme was enthusiastically carried out, with a national salute, music, dinner, levee, and illumination, making the day a memorable one.<sup>1</sup>

1826. At the annual town-meeting, March 14, it was voted to raise a sum of money equal to one day's work on a poll for repairing the highways; and that the selectmen cause the fences around the graveyards of the town be put in repair.

One hundred and eighty-four votes were polled for governor this year, the Democrats leading by a large majority.

Heavy rains in August caused a great freshet in the Merrimack. It was the same storm that occasioned the landslide in the Notch of the White Mountains, by which the Willey family perished.

1827. The annual town-meeting occurred March 13, when the town voted to raise such sum on a single poll for the repair of the highways as is equivalent to one and a half days' work; and $350 for current expenses.

The treasurer was authorized to dispose of the uncurrent money in the treasury, which consisted, according to the article in the warrant, of "several depreciated & counterfeit bank bills," and charge the loss to the town.

Chauncey Cochran, Samuel Robinson, John Knox, David Kimball, and Samuel Whitehouse, were chosen to assist the selectmen in regulating the invoice of taxable property.

As compensation for collecting the taxes of the year $23.50 were voted.

The new school law of the state, enacted this year, provided for a superintending committee, whose duty it was to examine and license teachers, select text-books, inspect schools, and present a written report of their condition to the town at its annual meeting. They were also given authority to withdraw certificates, and dismiss teachers and scholars, on occasion, and receive pay for service rendered.

Prudential committees were to hire and procure board for teachers, furnish fuel, care for and repair school-houses. School districts were given authority to assess taxes for building and repairing school-houses.

November was unusually cold, from 9 to 11, the coldest within "the memory of the oldest inhabitant," for the season, freezing over the rivers. Fifteen successive days of unpleasant weather, and north-west winds.

1828. At the annual meeting March 11, the town voted to raise $350 for current expenses; and such sum as is equivalent to one day's work on a poll, for the highways.

In accordance with the new school law, the town empowered the several school districts to choose their respective prudential committees.

James Mann, John Mann, and John C. Kimball, were set off from district No. 5, and annexed to No. 3.

Two hundred and seventy-three votes were cast for governor, and at the presidential election, November 3, 264. At the latter meeting John Vose was chosen representative to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Hon. Boswell Stevens to become judge of probate.

1829. At the annual town-meeting, March 10, it was voted to raise for the highways one dollar on a poll, "to be expended in labour at 1 dollar per day;" and for current expenses $200.

The selectmen were made a committee "to determine what provision the town will make for the accommodation and support of the poor" of Pembroke, and report at some future meeting.

The selectmen were directed to appropriate $70 of the "Literary Fund" for the benefit of the schools, in addition to other school money.

Four constables were chosen this year.

A special meeting was held March 20, to see if the town would purchase a "poor-farm." Instead it was voted "to put up the maintenance of the poor at auction to the lowest bidder, on the following condition, viz; To support all who now are or hereafter may be chargeable to the town for one year from this day; except Ann Mann and the widow Knowles, whose support is already contracted for; And to free the town from any cost or charge for the support of the poor, or for their funeral charges if any should arise. Their clothing to be left at the end of said term as good as it now is." Norris Cochran was the successful bidder at $234.

The amount expended for schooling this year was $557.05, distributed among the several districts as follows: No. 1, $98.04; No. 2, $63.06; No. 3, $106.40; No. 4, $65.80; No. 5, $38.32; No. 6, $65.39; No. 7, $34.98; No. 8, $85.06.

Mark Fisk, Joseph Emery, Jr., David Ambrose, John, Jr., and Bailey Parker paid $2 each for "a tavern license," and Philip Jones & Co., and Jeremiah H. Wilkins $20 each, for a retailer's license. Lewis B. Titus paid $4 "for license to exhibit wild animals." The state tax was $237.60.

As a matter of interest to some, we subjoin for the year 1829, the name of every tax-payer, with the amount of his tax, which includes state, county, town, school, and highway tax, simply remarking that the highway tax was more than half of the whole, and the school nearly one fifth of the whole.

CHAPTER XVIII.

ANNALS, 1830-1849.

1830. At the annual town-meeting, March 11, it was voted to raise one dollar on a poll for the highways, with labor at one dollar per day; $450 for current expenses; and appropriate $100 of the literary fund for the support of schools.

Aaron Whittemore was appointed agent to act for the town to recover moneys expended for the support<sup>7</sup> of Scott C. Trickey, and the relief of the Grant family.

By vote cattle were prohibited from running at large in the highways between May 10 and October 20. Swine still had their liberty as long as no complaint was entered against them.

1831. The annual town-meeting occurred March 8. Five hundred dollars were raised for current expenses; and one day's work, at the price of one dollar, for repairing the highways.

The selectmen were authorized to pay out of the treasury, if found to be lawful, to Nathan Holt and Nathaniel Holt,<sup>1</sup> their proportion of the school money, to be laid out where it shall be most convenient for them.

This year the town voted that "no horses or neat cattle," from May 1 to October 31, shall be allowed to run at large "in any street or highway within the jurisdiction of the town," under a penalty of one dollar to the owner for each offence.

1832. At the annual meeting, March 13, it was voted to assess such sum for repair of the highways "as shall be equal to one dollar on one dollar & thirty cents the ratable per day;" and $500 for other expenses.

Seventy-five dollars were appropriated from the literary fund for the different schools.

The petition of James Martin and others for the annexation of a part of Epsom to Pembroke, was granted. "By polling the house," Thomas Cochran was set off from school district No. 3, and annexed to No. 8.

The presidential election occurred November 5, and resulted in a tie vote of the two parties.

1833. At the annnal town-meeting, March 12, $1,200 were voted for repairing the highways, with price of labor at one dollar per day; $400 for current expenses; and $78 of the literary fund for schools, to be divided equally among the eight districts.

The selectmen were instructed to investigate the claim of Christopher Osgood for damage to a horse on the public highway, and pay him such sum, if any, as may justly be due him.

By invitation of the legislature, Gen. Andrew Jackson, President of the United States, visited Concord, June 28. The occasion drew together a large concourse of people from all the region around, many of the citizens of Pembroke availing themselves of the rare privilege. The festivities of the occasion made the day a memorable one.

On Sunday, June 23, Pembroke was the scene of a shocking murder. Abraham Prescott, who lived in the family of Chauncey Cochran, with the assurance of an abundance of ripe strawberries in a certain field, enticed the wife, Mrs. Sally Cochran, to accompany him there to pick them. On reaching the field, in a secluded spot, without motive, as far as known, he struck her a fatal blow with a fence stake, dragged her several rods, and left her to die. Soon after, Prescott returned to the house and informed Mr. Cochran of what he had done.

He was eighteen years old, not very strong-minded, and by some not believed morally responsible. His indifference after the deed was done gave plausibility to the idea. However, he was arrested, lodged in the jail at Hopkinton, allowed able counsel, accorded two trials, by both found guilty, and sentenced to be hung. The sentence was carried out, January 6, 1836, witnessed by a vast crowd.

As was natural, the murder created intense feeling in Pembroke and vicinity. Mrs. Cochran was an estimable woman, of attractive person, and the mother of children. Her death was a great affliction to her family, and neighborhood.

The spot of the murder is marked by a granite block about a foot square and three feet high, inscribed "1833."

She was buried in the cemetery at North Pembroke, and a marble slab standing at the head, gives name, age, manner and date of her death.

The following year Mr. Cochran sold his farm and went to Maine.

1834. At the annual town-meeting, March 11, $1,200 were voted for repairing the highways "at one dollar per day;" and $1,000 for other expenses.

Seventy-five dollars of the literary fund were appropriated for the benefit of the schools of the town.

A special meeting was appointed for March 15, to be held at the house of Joseph Fisk, to auction off the poor of the town to the lowest bidder.

At a special meeting held May 29, the town voted to accept the portion of Epsom, for which James Martin and others had petitioned,<sup>1</sup> but refused to grant the petition of others to be constituted into a new school district.

At this date there were in town 18 highway districts.

1835. At the annual town-meeting, March 10, the town voted to raise $1,200 for the highways, with labor at one dollar per day; and $800 for other current expenses. The care of the poor was left discretionary with the selectmen.

1836. At the annual meeting, March 8, the usual $1,200 were voted for repair of the highways; and $600 for current expenses; also $150 of the literary fund for the support of schools. The care of the town's poor was again left to the selectmen.

The town balloted for presidential electors November 7.

1837. At the annual meeting, March 14, $800 were voted for current expenses; and $1,200 for the highways, with the usual proviso. One hundred dollars of the literary fund were appropriated to the several school districts in equal divisions.

The town voted to receive the moneys directed to be deposited with the town, by virtue of an act of the State of New Hampshire, entitled "an act to provide for the disposition of the public money of the United States, which shall be deposited with the state" approved January 13, 1837; and to pledge the faith of the town for the safe-keeping and re-payment of the same. Jeremiah H. Wilkins was chosen as agent to carry out the provisions of this vote, and "receive the money in specie." The amount received was $3,285.75, of which $2,500 were loaned to the town to purchase a town farm for the poor.

1838. The annual town-meeting was held March 13, and $1,200 were voted for the repair of the highways; and $700 for other current expenses; also $100 were appropriated from the literary fund for equal distribution among the several school districts.

The selectmen were instructed to repair the fences around the several "grave-yards" of the town, according to their discretion; also to hire a farm for the support of the poor, if they think best; and likewise, to see how they can purchase one, and report at some future meeting, calling a special one for that purpose, if they so choose.

The town also voted to divide school district No. 3 into two, "the dividing line to be the brook near where the present school-house now stands. The part of said district westward of said bound & northward of Buckstreet road except Capt. Fuller, to be formed into a separate district to be numbered 9;" and that "each district shall have their proportion of the present school-house, and the money now assessed upon the inhabitants of the original district."

At a special meeting held September 10, the town voted to purchase a "poor-farm" at a price not exceeding $2,500, and appropriate the "deposite money" of the United States for this purpose. Aaron Whittemore, John L. Fowler, and Jeremiah H. Wilkins, were chosen a committee to make the purchase. The farm was to be situated in Pembroke, and purchased before February 15, 1839.

1839. At the annual town-meeting, March 12, it was voted to raise $1,200 for "building and repairing" highways, with the price of labor at one dollar per day; and $1,000 for current expenses of the town; also to appropriate $100 of the literary fund, in equal proportions, for the benefit of the schools.

The town also voted to purchase William Abbot's farm for the benefit of the poor; and appropriated $500 more of the "surplus money" to pay for the same. The selectmen were authorized to take a deed, and secure an agent to carry on the farm. The remainder of the surplus money was ordered to be paid into the treasury for the purchase of stock and utensils for said farm.

The town voted to raise $4,000 "to be well and truly paid" by the selectmen to the agent, trustees, or directors of the "Insane Hospital" when $1,000 shall be subscribed in addition by "good and responsible names;" provided that the hospital be located in Pembroke, but not otherwise. If the conditions were met, the selectmen were authorized to borrow the $4,000, and pay in yearly installments of $500 with accruing interest, till all was paid. A committee of nine was chosen to communicate with said officers of the hospital, and secure the subscription of $1,000.

As said "Hospital" was located in Concord, this vote was never carried out.

The town also voted a fine of $2 "for letting horses, or horse kind, mules, jacks, neat cattle, sheep and swine run in any street, highway, or common, or in any public place within the jurisdiction of the town for the ensuing year." Heretofore from the beginning, swine, if "properly ringed," were allowed to run at large, till "complaint" was made.

1840. At the annual town-meeting, March 10, the usual $1,200 for the highways were voted; and $1,300 for other current expenses. One hundred dollars of the literary fund were appropriated for equal distribution among the districts for the benefit of the schools.

The selectmen were instructed to use their discretion in securing "a new & complete set of scales, beams, weights & measures, and of what materials, as standards for the use of said town."

It was also made the duty of the selectmen to furnish 200 printed copies of their report by the first of March each year. The records fail to show any printing of reports earlier.

The town voted that the "Poor-House in said Pembroke, be made and considered a House of Correction, and that two dungeons be prepared, one for the males and one for the females as places for punishment in case that punishment be necessary to preserve good order among the inmates."

It was also voted "that all persons that may be found drunk in the streets or Highways in said town, may be carried to the House of Correction, by any person on his own expense, and at his own risk and responsibility." It will be seen that the town was not yet ready to assume expense for any such police duty.

The amount expended for schooling in each district, this year, including the $100 of the literary fund, was as follows: District No. 1, $107.34; No. 2, $64.12; No. 3, $53.35; No. 4, $59.76; No. 5, $40.03; No. 6, $63.94; No. 7, $40.41; No. 8, $97.24; No. 9, $47.97.

Two hundred and eighty-five votes were polled for presidential electors, November 2. The vote relative to the "Insane Hospital" was renewed, and $5.57 voted to Benjamin Jenness for services in 1829 and 1830.

1841. At the annual meeting, March 9, the town voted to raise $1,200 for the highways, with labor at 12½ cents per hour; and $1,200 for other current expenses; and to appropriate the usual $100 of the literary fund for schools, to be divided equally among the several districts.

The town authorized the selectmen to deed to William Abbot about three fourths of an acre of the town farm, at $25 per acre.

John C. Kimball was set off from school district No. 5, and annexed to No. 3; and Timothy D. Robinson, Jonathan Stanyan, John Richardson, John B. Cutler, Nathaniel Holt, and Richard Worth, of school district No. 7, were constituted a new district, to be known as No. 10.

Benjamin Fowler, William Knox, and William French, were chosen a committee to appraise the property at the town farm during the present March, and again before the next annual meeting, and report at said meeting.

At a special meeting held August 30, the town voted to unite school districts Nos. 10 and 7.

1842. The annual town-meeting occurred March 8, and resulted in the passage of the following votes:

To raise $1,200 for highway repairs; $1,400 for current expenses; and $100 of the literary fund, in equal divisions to the several districts, for the support of schools.

The selectmen were authorized to borrow, if needed, $200 in addition to the $1,400 for current expenses.

Joshua B. Gilbert was set off from school district No. 1, and annexed to No. 8.

The Concord railroad was opened this year, diverting travel from Pembroke street, eventually closing taverns, and, for a time at least, seeming to injure the town by lessening her importance.

1843. The annual town-meeting was held March 14, and the usual routine of business transacted. Twelve hundred dollars were voted for the highways; $400 for other current expenses; and $100 of the literary fund, as usual, for schools.

The hearse, and house for its safe keeping on Main street, were accepted by the town, and the selectmen instructed to put the same in proper repair.

The state tax this year was $292.80; county, $118.45. The amount of the literary fund at the end of the year was $300.69.

1844. At the annual town-meeting, March 12, it was voted to raise $450 for current expenses; and $1,600 for repair of the highways, three fourths to be laid out in summer, and the remainder in winter. The customary $100 of the literary fund were appropriated, to be distributed equally among the several school districts.

The selectmen were instructed to re-district the town for school purposes, distinguishing the districts by "suitable bounds, and so as to include all the territory of the town."

The town refused to consider an article to instruct the selectmen "not to grant any license to sell ardent spirit in said town."

On November 4, 201 votes were polled for presidential electors.

Forty dollars and fifty cents were paid for rations for 81 soldiers. Asa McFarland of Concord was paid $8.75 for 275 copies of the town's accounts.

1845. The annual town meeting was held March 11, and $900 were voted for the highways, with the price of labor at 75 cents per day; and $500 to defray town charges. Seventy-five dollars were appropriated from the literary fund, to be divided equally among the districts for the benefit of the schools.

The division of the town into school districts as made by the selectmen, was accepted, and a vote passed to divide the money among the districts according to property in them.

A meeting was held September 23, to bring in ballots for a representative to Congress; also November 29.

The town voted by a large majority, "polling the house," to receive, agreeable to a late act of Congress, the state's proportion of the sales of the public lands.

1846. At the annual town-meeting held March 10, 246 votes were polled for representative to Congress. The town voted to raise $900 for repair of highways; and $250 for other charges; also to appropriate $75 of the literary fund to be divided equally among the several school districts.

By vote, the appointment of the superintending school committee was left with the selectmen.

A severe shock of earthquake occurred August 25.

1847. At the annual town-meeting, March 9, 283 were present and voted for state and county officers. Three "fire wards" were chosen this year, instead of the usual two of several years previous. The town voted to raise $1,200 for highways, with labor at one dollar per day; $250 for other current expenses; and $75 of the literary fund for the schools.

The town unanimously voted it inexpedient to purchase a farm for county paupers.

1848. The annual town-meeting was held March 14, when $250 were voted for current expenses; $1,200 for repair of highways, with labor at one dollar per day ; and $75 of the literary fund for the benefit of the schools.

It was voted to include in the printed reports of the town hereafter, the report of the superintending school committee ; also to sever certain territory between the sixth and seventh range roads from school district No. 9, and annex to No. 3.

A poll of the house was taken on the question, " Is it expedient that a law be enacted by the general court, prohibiting the sale of wines and spirituous liquors except for chemical, medicinal and mechanical purposes?" resulting in 34 for, and 8 against.

At the presidential election, November 7, only 192 votes were polled.

The Portsmouth, Manchester and Concord railroad, chartered July 1, 1845, and given the right to connect with the Concord railroad at Hooksett, July 10, 1846, was this year granted the right to connect at Candia with Manchester.

1849. At the annual meeting, March 13, the town voted to raise $500 for current expenses ; $1,200, with the price of labor one dollar per day, for the repair of the highways ; and to appropriate $75 of the literary fund and $50 of the proceeds of the sale of public lands, for the benefit of the schools, to be divided equally among the several districts.

The selectmen were authorized to use their discretion relative to the suit against Allenstown for the support of Timothy Ayer ; and the settling of the claim of Nathaniel Lakeman for damages ; also as to the propriety of enlarging the " graveyard " on Pembroke street, ascertain the probable expense, and report at the next town-meeting.

John Richardson and others living north of Chichester line, were set off for school purposes from district No. 7, and annexed to Concord, and their proportion of school money assessed on the property of non-residents allowed them.

State tax this year was $306, and county, 321.87. Forty-six soldiers received $46 for the performance of military duty.

CHAPTER XIX.

ANNALS, 1850-1869.

1850. At the annual town-meeting, March 12, $500 were voted to defray town charges ; $1,200 for repairing the highways ; and $125 of the literary fund for the benefit of the schools, to be divided as usual.

The claim of Epsom, and that of Pembroke against Allenstown, for the support of the " Sargent family," was left to the discretion of the selectmen.

For the benefit of those who may wish to know who were the legal voters at this date, we append a copy of the check-list for 1850.

At a special meeting held October 8, Aaron Whittemore was elected a delegate to the convention for the revision of the constitution of the state.

1851. At the annual town-meeting, March 11, the town voted to raise \$1,000 to pay current expenses ; and \$1,200 for repair of highways, fixing the price at  $12\frac{1}{2}$  cents per hour ; also to appropriate " all the literary fund now on hand and all that may be received this year " to be equally divided among the several districts for the use of the schools.

A vote was passed to make necessary repairs on the town-house, giving the contract to the lowest bidder ; also instructing the selectmen to find out, if possible, " who has broken the glass in the town-house," and, if found, to compel him " to put in four squares for every one broken ;" and " to contract with some suitable person to carry on the town farm one year in advance of the expiration of their term of office."

By vote, all the land lying north and east of the academy road was severed from school district No. 8, and annexed to No. 9.

By a very large majority, the town rejected the fifteen alterations and amendments proposed by the Constitutional Convention.

August 12, hail stones as large as hen's eggs fell in Suncook village, breaking many panes of glass.

1852. The annual town-meeting occurred March 9, and the following votes were passed :—

To raise $700 for current expenses ; $1,200 for highway repairs, with labor at ten cents per hour ; $130 in addition to what the law requires, together with the literary fund, for the support of schools, to be divided equally among the districts ; and $400 for the repair of the buildings on the town farm, to be expended under the supervision of the selectmen.

Two hundred and forty-one votes were polled November 2, for presidential electors.

At this meeting the selectmen were authorized to borrow on the credit of the town, a sum not exceeding $600, at not more than six per cent. interest, to defray town charges and highway repairs.

The easterly and northerly lines of land of Alva Hurd were made the bounds dividing school districts Nos. 2 and 4.

The selectmen were instructed to ascertain the cost of land for enlarging " the burying ground on the street," and report at the next March meeting.

A vote on the question, Is it expedient that the bill entitled "An act for the suppression of drinking houses and tippling shops " be enacted into a law, resulted 95 yeas, and 107 nays.

Nathaniel Lakeman won his suit against the town for damages, receiving $250, with a total cost to the town of $415.

The greatest rise in Suncook river known for years occurred April 21. The Factory bridge, the bridge at Osgood's mills, and Bombay bridge, were swept away.

August was very warm and dry. Fields and pastures dried up, and stock had to be fed from the barn, and driven, in some cases three miles, to the river for water.

1853. At the annual town-meeting, March 8, it was voted to raise $1,300 to defray town charges; $1,200 for repair of the highways, with labor at ten cents per hour; and only what the law allows for schools, in addition to the literary fund.

It was also voted to raise three per cent. on the amount required to be raised for the support of schools, and pay the same to the commissioner of common schools, for a Teachers' Institute, "if the law requires it."

The selectmen were instructed to ascertain the cost of land for enlarging "the graveyard on the street," expense of fencing the same, and how many lots can be sold, and report at the next annual meeting.

They were also authorized to accept the offer of Norris Cochran to give land for enlarging the Buckstreet "burying ground," take a deed of the same, and fence it.

The town voted to adopt "an act providing for the establishment of justice courts, and the appointment of police justices in certain cases," passed January 8, 1853; that "the dwelling-house on the town farm be established as the house of correction for this town; that the overseer, for the time being, be the keeper of the house of correction, and have all powers of such office until otherwise ordered; that the following by-laws and regulations be adopted for the government of the inmates; and that the keeper see that they are enforced:"

I. Every inmate of the house of correction, when able to labor, shall be kept diligently employed under the direction of the keeper.

II. If any inmate shall refuse to obey, he shall be punished by the keeper, but in no case shall the punishment inflicted exceed hard labor, and such reasonable correction as the parent may lawfully inflict on a refractory child, or solitary imprisonment not exceeding forty-eight hours at one time.

The town also passed the following resolutions:—

Resolved, that the public good requires the removal of Hon. Jacob A Potter from the office of county Justice of the county of Merrimack.

Resolved, that our Representative be instructed to oppose all endeavors to tear down the present court building, and build a new court room either separately, or in connection with the town of Concord.

The state tax this year was $316.40; county, $372.08; and town's indebtedness, $735.78.

1854. At the annual town-meeting, March 14, $700 were voted for current expenses ; $1,300 for repairing the highways, with labor at ten cents per hour ; and $150 to purchase land of Mrs. Francis Vose for "enlarging the burying ground."

The literary fund was appropriated for the use of the several schools as usual.

The selectmen were instructed to lay out in suitable family lots a portion, not exceeding one half, of the land purchased for the enlargement of a burying ground, fix a price at the first cost per square foot, and sell the choice of lots at public auction ; and to require the highway surveyors to settle their lists by the first of May in each year, and pay the balance not worked out, if any, in money to the selectmen.

At a special meeting September 27, the town refused, by a large majority, to purchase a fire engine.

The selectmen were authorized to borrow money to pay the balance of the cost of the "Turnpike" or "Osgood" bridge, with interest not exceeding six per cent.

1855. At the annual meeting, March 13, $1,400 were voted for current expenses ; and $1,300 for repairing the highways, with labor at ten cents per hour, and "one sixth less in money." The literary fund was appropriated as usual, to be distributed equally among the school districts.

The selectmen were authorized, if "the report of the Road Commissioners shall be accepted at the next term of Court," to borrow money to pay damages "for the new highway leading from Buckstreet to Suncook village."

It was voted that hereafter "the three selectmen be voted for on one ticket" using the check-list, and an article to this effect be inserted in the warrant : that truant children and absentees from school shall be dealt with according to the law of the state, and "any justice shall have the authority to put the law in force by the complaint of the school committee." That the selectmen shall sell at public auction lots in the Buckstreet "burying ground," not exceeding one half of the new addition thereto, and that all the unsold lots in this half may be sold by the selectmen at private sale "at an average price of said auction sales ;" and that any provision made by the selectmen relative to burying-grounds shall be binding on the town.

The statute law relative to cattle, horses, etc., running in the highways, was accepted by the town.

John F. Vose was paid $234.88 for land to enlarge the burying-ground on Pembroke street.

1856. The annual town-meeting was held March 11, and adjourned to March 15. At the latter date the town voted to raise $600 for current expenses; and $1,300 for the repair of the highways, the amount to be reserved for winter to be left to the discretion of the selectmen. One dollar was allowed on a dollar either in money or labor.

It was voted to divide the literary fund equally among the several school districts.

In accordance with the provision of an "act for the suppression of intemperance," passed by the legislature, and approved July 14, 1855, Amos C. Dow was appointed agent of the town for the purchase and sale of spirituous liquors November 1.

On November 4, votes were brought in for presidential electors.

1857. At the annual town-meeting, March 10, it was voted to raise $1,500 to defray town charges; and $1,400 for repairing the highways, the price of labor and team to be ten cents per hour, and a shilling on the dollar discount to be allowed those who pay in money.

The literary fund was devoted as usual, to the use of the schools.

The selectmen were authorized to sell one or more lots in the burying ground on Pembroke Street, "for a sum not less than the average of those sold." They were instructed also to repair windows and door of the town-house "before another meeting."

The state tax this year was $371, and county $740.13.

1858. The annual town-meeting was held March 9, at which $800 were voted "to defray town charges and pay existing debts," in addition to the money then in the treasury. The usual appropriation was made for the support of schools.

The town also voted to instruct the selectmen, if able counsel so advise in view of all the facts, to commence suit against the town of Allenstown, for the support of Mrs. Holt and family, if pay for the same is refused.

It was also voted that "no horse, mule, ass, neat cattle, sheep, or swine, be allowed to go at large, in any street, highway, or common, or in any public place in this town, from the first day of April to the first day of December in each year hereafter, with the knowledge of the owner thereof, under penalty of three dollars for every such animal thus trespassing," and such animals were liable to be impounded. The penalty was to be forfeited to the use of any legal voter, and no other, who should lawfully "take up and impound such animal."

Edwin Kimball, David L. Holt, and John C. Campbell were granted permission to remove the stone wall on the south side of the burying ground on Pembroke Street, so as to inclose the land purchased by them of John F. Vose, on condition that they build and maintain a fence on the southerly and westerly side of said land.

At a meeting held April 6, the town voted to raise $1,300 to repair the highways, fixing the price of labor at ten cents per hour per man, and for a yoke of oxen, and accepting five shillings on a dollar for payment in money.

1859. At the annual town-meeting, March 8, the town voted to raise $1,000 to pay town charges and existing debts; and $1,400 to repair highways, with price of labor, and discount for money payments, the same as the year previous. The literary fund was to be divided as usual.

The selectmen were instructed to compromise with the city of Concord in the settlement of the award of the county commissioners in favor of the city of Concord, provided they could settle the same by paying one eleventh part, "and to take such other measures as they may deem expedient for the interest of the town." Also to borrow $1,500 at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. to pay current expenses and existing liabilities.

By vote the selectmen were forbidden to appoint an agent for the purchase and sale of spirituous liquors, as had been the custom for several previous years. The report of the town agent was referred to the selectmen with instructions to settle with said agent, and turn the money received into the treasury.

1860. At the annual town-meeting, March 13, it was voted to raise $1,000 for current expenses; and $1,400 for highways, with the usual conditions.

Land of John F. Drew and Scott C. Knox was severed from School district No. 2, and annexed to No. 5.

The regular quadrennial meeting for the choice of presidential electors, occurred November 6, at which 260 votes were polled.

1861. At the annual town-meeting March 12, an ineffectual attempt was made to buy the Gymnasium for a town-house. A vote as to the expediency of calling a convention to revise the Constitution of the State, stood 8 in favor, and 175 against.

$1,000 was voted to pay current expenses. The selectmen were instructed to procure "a good, new hearse" for the use of the town, "locate at the burying-ground on Pembroke Street, and dispose of the old one as they think best."

ster Manufacturing Company from taxation for ten years, from July 3, 1860, "on all manufacturing buildings and machinery for the same, and all capital employed in operating the same," provided that if there be any additional state or county tax, or United States tax, in consequence of such increased capital, said company shall pay such additional tax.

1863. The annual town-meeting was held March 10, and $1,800 were voted for current expenses; and $1,200 for the highways, with price of labor at 10 cents per hour, and 80 cents on the dollar for money payments.

The representative to the General Court was instructed to oppose the purchase of a county farm; and the selectmen, "to put up a Lobby in Suncook Village."

The selectmen were instructed to fit up a building, if a suitable one could be procured, "to be used for a Bridewell in Suncook;" also to investigate the claim of John L. Fowler against the town, for injuries alleged to have been received, and adjust the same, "if they think proper."

On November 8, votes were brought in for presidential electors, and other business transacted as follows:—

On the question, "Is it expedient that a convention be called to amend the constitution?" the vote stood 40 in favor and 55 against.

The selectmen were authorized to bid off certain woodland of Mrs. McCutcheon, if sold at auction at a satisfactory price, and borrow money on the credit of the town to pay for the same. This was for the accommodation of the town farm.

1865. At the annual town-meeting, March 14, it was voted that $6,000 "be raised by assessment upon the polls and ratable estates, and appropriated to defray town charges and pay existing liabilities of the town, and that the selectmen be authorized and empowered to raise by borrowing upon the credit of the town, and give the notes of the town therefor, such additional sum, or sums, as may be necessary, to pay such outstanding notes of the town as may be called for." $1,500 were also voted for the repair of the highways, with price of labor 15 cents per hour, and no discount for money payments.

The selectmen "were authorized and instructed to purchase the Gymnasium and the land connected with it; provided they can obtain the same for a sum not exceeding twelve hundred dollars."

The town, by a unanimous vote, opposed the purchase of a "county poor-house," and instructed the town's representative to vote against it.

The town voted to dismiss an article in relation to the appropriation of money for the support of a teachers' institute.

1866. At the annual town-meeting, March 13, it was voted to raise $3,000 "to defray town charges, and pay existing liabilities;" "and $1,400 to support highways, with labor at 12 1-2 cents per hour; and to borrow on the credit of the town $35,000 "in such sums as may be necessary to pay outstanding notes against the town," at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent per annum.

This year again the town refused to license an agent to sell liquors; and fixed the salary of the police judge at $100 per annum.

The selectmen were instructed to remove all the town paupers to the town farm to be supported in the future.

The town voted "to establish the building built by the selectmen the past year, as a Bridewell."

The Gymnasium having been purchased in accordance with a vote passed the previous year, the town voted to authorize the selectmen "to paint the town hall on the outside, and to make such repairs on, or in, the Town house as they may deem necessary, and also to fit up a room in the south corner of the basement of said building for a Selectmen's Office, where town business may be transacted, and where the town records may be kept; and that hereafter said building shall be known as the Town Hall; and also that they be instructed to repair the fence around the lot."

Also that the selectmen "make such rules and regulations as they may deem expedient in regard to the occupancy of the Town Hall in the future; and also that they appoint an agent to keep the keys, and take care of the same."

They were also authorized, after three weeks' notice, to sell the old town house at public auction.

At a special meeting held April 17, the town dismissed an article with reference to the appointment of one or more night watchmen for Suncook village; but voted to adopt chapter 120 of the Compiled Statutes, with the exceptions of sections 9 and 10;—"provided that the police officers shall not make any charge against the town for their services during the ensuing year."

The town voted to divide the literary fund equally among the school districts receiving less than $100 in school money, "giving to Union district its proportion;" but refused to purchase a safe for the selectmen's office.

The claim of Katie Cook for damage for injury received through defect in the highway, was left with the selectmen to investigate and adjust, as deemed proper. Total indebtedness of the town, $34,982.

1867. The annual town-meeting occurred March 12, and March 14, at which $4,000 were voted for current expenses, $1,000 to be expended on the highways, and the selectmen were instructed to borrow $20,000 on the credit of the town to pay outstanding notes against the town.

It was voted that the literary fund, and $200 of the savings-bank and railroad tax be divided equally among the several school districts having less than $200 of school money; and that $125 of the savings-bank and railroad tax be appropriated towards purchasing maps and charts for all the school districts not now having them, except the Union district, and those having them can have their portion for the purchase of other articles needed. Also that a large globe be purchased for the use of the several schools, and it be made the duty of the superintending school committee "to demonstrate geographical problems therefrom to the several schools in town, and when not in use to be loaned to the academy."

The town voted to accept the land to enlarge the Buckstreet graveyard, and instruct the selectmen to put in a suitable split stone fence in front, and on the remaining sides, "stone posts and braids," also to divide said land into lots, appraise, and sell the same as wanted.

A committee of three was appointed to take into consideration the matter of constructing a reservoir in, or near the village, and report at the next annual meeting. By unanimous vote, John M. Kimball, Aaron Whittemore, and Trueworthy L. Fowler, were appointed a committee to use their influence towards securing the establishment of a Normal school, or a branch thereof, in the town, provided the legislature should create such an institution.

A large majority voted against throwing the entire support of paupers upon counties.

1868. At the annual town-meeting, March 10, it was voted to raise by taxation $4,000 for current expenses; $1,000 to be used in repairing the highways; to borrow on the credit of the town $20,000 to pay outstanding notes against the town; and to divide equally among the several school districts having "less than $200," the literary fund and enough of the savings-bank and railroad tax, to make up the sum of $100.

The selectmen were authorized to procure an estimate of the expense of connecting a pipe and hose with the force pump of the Pembroke Mills, and report at the next meeting. Daniel Holt's farm and taxable property were severed from school-district No. 5, and annexed to No. 9.

The town unanimously voted "to petition Congress to levy a tax on all the bonds of the United States not exceeding one per cent. semi-annually, and make the same a lien upon the coupons and interest of said bonds, and set the same apart as a sinking fund to be applied in the purchase of the debts of the United States in such manner as Congress may direct."

At the presidential election November 3, the town voted, 3 to 1, against calling a convention to revise the state constitution.

The selectmen were instructed to see if they can procure land for a reservoir in Suncook village, at what cost, and the estimate of some suitable engineer, as to the cost of building, of furnishing pipes and hydrants, and of connecting with the company's force pump, and report the same at the next meeting.

Policemen were voted the same fees as constables in all cases where costs do not come out of the county, and there is no conviction in the police court.

William Swain's claim for damages to himself and horse was left for settlement to the discretion of the selectmen.

The selectmen were empowered to hire such sums of money as they deem necessary for the aforesaid purposes; and $30,000 to pay outstanding notes against the town, in either case not paying over six per cent. interest.

1869. At the annual town-meeting, March 9, it was voted to raise $4,000 to defray current town charges and existing liabilities; $1,700 for highway repairs, with labor at fifteen cents per hour; and to appropriate $300 of the literary fund, savings-bank and railroad tax, for equal distribution among the school districts, giving Union district its share.

The selectmen were authorized to raise a sum not exceeding $30,000 to pay outstanding notes and claims against the town. An attempt to pass a vote to fund the debt of the town was unsuccessful.

Charles Williams, Natt B. Emery, and John G. Bartlett, were appointed a committee to see upon what terms land could be procured for a reservoir in or near Suncook village, and secure an estimate from some suitable engineer of the cost of building, furnishing pipes and hydrants, and connecting with the company's force pumps, and report to the selectmen, to be laid before the town at such time as the committee shall request the calling of a meeting for this purpose.

Such meeting was called, and held April 6, when the report was made.

The town voted to accept the motion of Aaron Whittemore in relation to the formation of a fire district in the village of Suncook, which was as follows:

That the town recommend to the inhabitants of said town residing in Suncook Village to organize and establish under the laws of this State a Village fire precinct district, that when such fire district shall have been established and measures adopted by such fire district for the extinguishment of fires and to defray the necessary charges and expenses of the same, the selectmen on application shall call a meeting of the town to see if the town will aid and assist such Village fire district to procure cisterns, sources of water, and apparatus for the extinguishment of fires, and raise or borrow and appropriate money therefor.

At a special meeting held November 9, the town by vote opposed the establishment in certain cases of a state police, as also selling the stock, produce, and farming tools of the town farm at auction.

The selectmen were authorized to borrow, giving notes of the town therefor, $750 to purchase hose and fixtures to connect with the pipe laid in Suncook village for the extinguishment of fires, to be kept and used under the direction of the selectmen, or fire wardens of the town, or some one by them appointed.

It was also voted that the settees in the town hall be collected, repaired, and "not lent except under the direction of the town."

This year the Suncook Valley railroad was completed.

The state tax this year was $3,493.75, and county, $1,431.35.

CHAPTER XX.

PEMBROKE AND SUNCOOK IN THE REBELLION.

The first gun fired on Fort Sumter fired the Northern heart as nothing else had ever done. Every one who had the least spark of manly patriotism in his soul, was deeply stirred to resent this outrage on the flag of his country. There was a thorough arousing, and arising for this. The Granite Hills heard the call to arms, and many offered themselves for this gap of need to save their homes and native land from the menacing supremacy of the slave oligarchy, at whose instigation the cloud of civil war had gathered and was breaking in its fury upon this inheritance of the fathers. Pembroke heard, and responded nobly in her offering of brave and stalwart young men, if such were the need, to be laid in sacrifice on the altars of her country. At the outset rose-colored prophecies of the speedy crushing of the rebellion were many, and may have had something to do with the readiness with which they left the pursuits of peace and loved ones in their homes to go to the front. All eyes seemed to be blinded to the full and far-reaching significance of this uplifting of the red hands of treason, and that in the face of the preparation that was going on so actively during the previous winter. The deep-seated and intense venom of rebel hatred and design was little understood. Only the brave Anderson, the hero of Sumter, and his little garrison had felt the menacing power of their conspiracy against free government. The loyal North had not yet measured swords with them on any fair field, to become acquainted with their stubborn and uncompromising spirit, which was greatly emboldened by their success in the surrender of Fort Sumter, and a little later in the victory at Bull Run.

But rebel successes, while they opened the eyes to the magnitude of the work in hand, and became prophetic of a prolonged struggle, only intensified the loyal feeling, and united the people for any endurance and sacrifice necessary, to meet gun with gun, and sword with sword, till the armed rebellion was utterly crushed out forever, and the flag of the free once more waved in unsullied glory over a united and free republic. The few who were in sympathy with "state rights" and "secession," who "would like to wade knee-deep in Yankee blood," thereby showing that it was the great misfortune of their life to be born on Northern soil, soon learned it was not best to be too outspoken, nor to go too far in demonstrations of joy over rebel victories. The logic of public sentiment was a stern rebuke. In some instances it required a hardihood little short of desperation to face it. But confronted with the greatest discouragements in the field, and opposition at home, Pembroke, in common with almost every town and city in the North, endeavored to show herself equal to the occasion, and do her duty. Public meetings for keeping alive and strengthening a healthy public sentiment, and town meetings, from time to time, to provide ways and means for the pushing forward of the common cause to final and overwhelming victory, were held as the exigency seemed to demand. The officers of the town, whose duty it was, were faithful and strenuous in their endeavors to promote enlistments, and promptly respond to the call for men to the measure of her quota.

Nor were the patriotic women of the town less untiring in doing what they could to minister to the comfort and courage of the brave men who had gone forth to fight their battles for them. Lint and bandages for the wounded in the hospitals, cordials for the sick, and many an other token of their thoughtfulness, found a way to tent and field, as a witness to continued home remembrance and home desire for their courage and good cheer.

But the whole history of that memorable civil war, the like of which we trust will never come again, is still well known, though nearly thirty years have passed away since the fall of Richmond, the unconditional surrender of Lee's army to General Grant, and the winding up of the great rebellion. It is too well known to need, if it were pertinent, enlargement here. The causes of it, also, are well understood. The growing feeling at the North of the wrong of human slavery, and the consequent stain and stigma upon the fair name of a free government, resulting largely from the agitation occasioned by the outspoken and ringing words of such men as Garrison and Wendell Phillips, aroused, as was inevitable, the resentment of the South. They looked upon it as a menace to the cherished institution "by which they had their wealth;" and the arrogant and intolerant spirit which it had long fostered, was at last so wrought up as to lead them to appeal to the arbitrament of war and run the risk of its overthrow, in an endeavor to perpetuate it indefinitely by founding a Confederacy with slavery for its chief corner stone. The election of Abraham Lincoln to the presidency furnished them with the opportunity, for which they were waiting, to throw off their allegiance to the Union, and make the venture. They signally failed, as we have seen, to cross the Rubicon of their hope; and we are still a united, stronger, freer, greater, and more glorious nation for the emancipation thereby accomplished. With such an outcome, the dark shadows of those four long, weary, dreary years seemed illumined with the smile of God.

The details of Pembroke's relation to the Rebellion are a proper matter of record, and we hasten to give them.

It will be remembered that the bombardment of Fort Sumter, in Charleston Harbor, began on April 12, 1861, and that Lincoln's proclamation for 75,000 volunteers, for three months, was issued on April 15. The response was immediate. On April 19, the Massachusetts Sixth, on its way to Washington, was met, in its passage through Baltimore, by an armed mob, and two of its number killed—the first bloody sacrifice of the war. In due time the New Hampshire Second followed. In this regiment were fourteen Pembroke soldiers, as will presently be seen. They naturally became the centre of interest, and awakened in the minds of the people a desire for their own and their families' welfare. Accordingly we find that a town-meeting was held June 8, to take the matter into consideration. At this meeting Aaron Whittemore, Norris Cochran, Moses Martin, Cogswell Dudley, and Solomon Whitehouse, were chosen a committee to draw up a bill and submit to the meeting. The following was presented and passed:

That there shall be furnished to each person, resident of the town, who has, or shall enlist, or be drafted into the service of the United States in the present war for the preservation of the government thereof, and shall actually serve therein, in clothing, or articles necessary for such service not exceeding in amount to each three dollars, and there shall also be paid for the benefit of the wife and children, if any, of said persons during said service, a sum not exceeding in amount twenty dollars to each family,—Provided that the foregoing payments and provisions shall not be in force or extend beyond the next annual meeting of said town, and provided further, that if the Legislature of this state shall at its present session make provisions for the same or similar purposes the foregoing shall be void and of no effect thereafter.

That a sum not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars be appropriated for the purposes aforesaid, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, and paid by the Selectmen in such sums and at such times as the Selectmen may judge best for the interests of the town, and the benefit of the persons and families aforesaid, if required as aforesaid.

The selectmen were appointed a committee to take charge of the funds, or articles furnished, make distribution of the same as seemed proper, and report at the next annual meeting.

The legislature, July 4, having passed an act empowering towns to furnish aid to the families of soldiers, a legal meeting was held September 14, and the following report submitted by Aaron Whittemore, Martin H. Cochran, and John H. Osgood, committee, was accepted:—

First, That the Selectmen are authorized to render aid and assistance to indigent families of those that have enlisted, or may enlist, and be mustered into the service of the United States, that are inhabitants of the town, a sum, at the discretion of the Selectmen, not exceeding one dollar per week for wife, and one dollar per week for each child, or parent of such inhabitant, who, at the time he was called into the service of the United States, was dependent on him for support, provided the whole sum expended shall not exceed twelve dollars per month for all the persons dependent on any one of such inhabitants enlisted and in service as aforesaid.

Second, That the Selectmen shall make full report, certified and sworn to by a majority of them, containing a statement of the names and services of the inhabitants of the town whose families are dependent, have been enlisted, and the relation of such person to such inhabitants respectively, and the sums paid to or for the support of each person shall be made to the state Treasurer on or before the first Wednesday of June annually of the full amount due the town for aid furnished in accordance with the provisions of an act approved July 4, 1861, entitled an act authorizing cities and towns to aid the families of volunteers, and for other purposes; and the Selectmen shall at the annual meetings of the town in March make a similar report and statement to said town.

Third, The selectmen are authorized to draw an order for the payment of the same out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, and all money received by them from the State Treasurer, as aforesaid, shall be paid into the town Treasury. The foregoing may be reconsidered or rescinded by said town at any meeting of the town called for that purpose, and the same shall be thereafter void.

On August 4, 1862, President Lincoln called for 300,000 men to serve for nine months. To meet this call, a town-meeting was held August 22, and the selectmen were "authorized and directed to pay to each person residing in this town who has or shall voluntarily enlist, be accepted, and mustered into the service of the United States as a part of the quota required from this town, pursuant to the recent requisition from the President of the United States, and Governor of this State, the sum of two hundred dollars, to each of said volunteers for three years, or during the war, and one hundred and fifty dollars to each of said volunteers for nine months, to be paid to each of said volunteers, or order, on demand after being mustered into said service as aforesaid."

The selectmen, to meet the demand, were authorized to borrow a sum not exceeding $13,000, at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum, for the payment of enlisting volunteers.

At another meeting held September 17, the selectmen were instructed to pay a bounty of $200 to each of the full quota of volunteers including the nine months' men, provided that each of them "shall enlist for three years, or during the war," and also, to pay "any surplus men more than the town's quota that have enlisted, the same bounty heretofore voted by the town, to be paid after being mustered into the service."

At a special meeting held September 10, 1863, the town voted

That a bounty of $300 be paid by the town to each man being an inhabitant of this town, and a member of the enrolled militia from said town, who has been drafted or conscripted, or may be drafted or conscripted, from said town before the next annual meeting of said town under the laws of the United States to send in the army of the United States, or to each substitute for such drafted or conscripted man, to be paid to such drafted or conscripted man, or substitute, or his order, ten days after he shall have been duly mustered into the service of the United States.

The selectmen were authorized to borrow such sum as might be necessary to pay such bounties, and any outstanding notes or claims against the town, at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum.

At another special meeting held November 12, 1863, the town indefinitely postponed an article in the warrant to see about equalizing the bounties of all the soldiers, wherever enlisted, for three years, who had seen service, died, or been honorably discharged.

But it was voted,—

That the Selectmen of this town be authorized to borrow on the credit and for the use of the town, and give notes therefor in the name and credit of the town, at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum, from time to time as the same may be needed, such sums of money not exceeding in the whole $10,000, as may be necessary to secure the enlistment of the number of volunteer soldiers for three years required to fill the quota of said town under the recent call of the President of the United States, dated October 17, 1863, for 300,000 volunteers, and that the sums thus borrowed be appropriated and expended under the direction of said Selectmen to encourage and secure the voluntary enlistment of a sufficient number of men to fill up the said quota of said town, and that the Selectmen of this town be further authorized and empowered as a means of encouraging said enlistment in behalf of said town, if they shall deem it expedient so to do, to purchase and take an assignment to said town of the claims of the several men, or any number thereof, who may voluntarily enlist and be mustered into the service of the United States for three years to fill the quota of said town under the President's call of October 17, 1863, to the bounties to which they are, or to which they may become entitled by virtue of their enlistment and service from the government of the United States and the State of New Hampshire, and to advance to said several men thus entitled and mustered, the amount of such claims in cash, and to take such other measures that said Selectmen may deem expedient and necessary to secure said enlistment to fill said quota.

At the annual town-meeting, March 8, after a new call February 1, 1864, for 500,000 three years' men, the town voted to dismiss the article in the warrant "To see what bounty the town will pay to persons who may enlist, or have enlisted, or be drafted and conscripted, or the substitute of any drafted or conscripted person, into the military service of the United States to fill any quota assigned this town under the late call of the President of the United States, February 1, 1864, and raise money therefor and make appropriation of the same."

The reason of such action at this time is not apparent.

The call for 200,000 more men, March 14, 1864, led to the holding of a special meeting, April 14, at which the following votes were passed :

That the town pay a bounty of $100 to such persons as have enlisted, or re-enlisted, into the military service of the United States for three years, or during the war, since the first day of June, 1863, and have been allowed, or may be allowed, on the quota of Pembroke under the call of the President March 14, 1864, for 200,000 men for the army, navy, and marine corps of the United States, and have received no bounty from said town therefor; to be paid to such person by the Selectmen in ten days after having received certificates that such persons have been mustered into the service of the United States, and allowed on said quota.

That the Selectmen be authorized to secure the enlistment of a sufficient number of men for three years to fill the quota of Pembroke under the call of the President of March 14, 1864, for 200,000 men, and pay a bounty therefor, provided however that said quota is not now filled.

That the Selectmen borrow a sufficient sum of money on the credit of the town, at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent., for the purpose of paying the bounties to the enlisted or re-enlisted persons according to the votes passed on previous page.

The town dismissed an article of the warrant to see if the selectmen shall be authorized to raise money to pay bounties under future calls, if any, of the President.

On June 23, a meeting was held to see what action the town would take with reference to drafted men, or their substitutes, and adjourned to July 2. Then, no special business being brought before it, the meeting was dissolved.

In view of a call of the president, issued July 18, 1864, for 500,000 additional men, a meeting was called for August 9, at which the following votes were passed :—

That the selectmen be authorized to borrow on the credit, and for the use of the town, such sums of money not exceeding $20,000, and that the sum be appropriated to pay bounties to volunteers, substitutes, and drafted men, under the law of the state, to fill the quota of the town under any call of the president for troops, or in anticipation of any call, previous to the next annual town meeting.

That the selectmen be authorized to pay to each volunteer and drafted man, who may be mustered into the military service of the United States, the bounties authorized by the laws of the state.

That the selectmen be instructed to procure volunteers and substitutes to fill the quota of this town under the recent call of the president, and to take such other measures as they may deem expedient and necessary to fill the quota.

Such action was taken under the law of the legislature approved July 16, 1864, which authorized towns to pay, in addition to the state bounty, $100 for every man enlisting for one year, $200 for two years, and $300 for three years, and to every drafted man a sum not exceeding $200.

In consequence of another act of the legislature approved August 19, 1864, offering state bounties to volunteers, or their substitutes, to fill the state's quota, another town-meeting was held August 27, when it was voted,—

To raise the sum of $18,000 and appropriate the same to pay bounties according to the act of the legislature of August 19, 1864, to facilitate the raising of troops, as follows:

To each person, except those enlisted in, or from, the insurgent states, and such as have heretofore received bounties from this town, who shall be mustered into the military, naval, or marine service of the United States, or since the call of the president of March 14, 1864, and prior to August 19, 1864, have been mustered into said service to fill the quota of this town, under the call of the president of July 18, 1864, whether volunteer enlisted man, or volunteer substitute for a drafted, or enrolled man, a bounty according to the term of his enlistment, of $100 for one year, of $200 for two years, and of $300 for three years' enlistment, and of the same proportionate amount for any other term of enlistment.

To each person who may be drafted for one year from this town, and be mustered into the service of the United States as part of the quota of this town under the aforesaid call of the president, a bounty of $200.

To each inhabitant of this town for three months preceding enlisting on the quota of this town, and actually mustered into the military, naval, or marine service of the United States, under the call of the president aforesaid, a bounty according to the term of his enlistment, of $500 for one year, of $600 for two years, and of $700 for three years.

The passage of an act by Congress providing for agents to recruit soldiers for the Union army in the insurgent states, led to the acts of the legislature of July 16, and of August 19. In view of it, the town voted not to send an agent, or agents, to the insurgent states, to recruit soldiers for the town, but afterwards this vote was reconsidered, and the whole matter left in the hands of the selectmen.

It was then voted, that the selectmen be authorized to borrow such portions of the aforesaid sum of $18,000 as they may, from time to time, think proper, on the credit of the town, and give the notes of the town therefor, and that they be authorized and directed to pay the bounties according to the preceding vote, and take any other measure to fill their quota.

At another meeting November 15, the town voted,—

That the selectmen be authorized to put in men in anticipation of any call for troops, to fill the Eighteenth regiment and heavy artillery, if needed, under the proclamation of the governor, and pay the bounties, according to the law of the state, to wit: $100 for one year, $200 for two years, and $300 for three years' service, and also that they pay the same bounties to any substitute for any enrolled man in said town, provided such men may be allowed on the quota of the town, and that the sum of $5,000 be raised and appropriated for that purpose.

That the selectmen be authorized to borrow money on the credit of the town, not exceeding $5,000, and give the notes of the town therefor.

The last call of the president for soldiers to put down the rebellion was issued December 19, 1864, for 300,000 men, and at the annual town-meeting, March 14, 1865, the town took final action in reference to soldiers in the following vote :

That the selectmen be authorized to put into the service of the United States such number of men as they may deem expedient in anticipation of any call, as to fill any call that may be made on this town for troops, and pay the bounties according to the law of the state, to wit : $100 for one year's service, $200 for two years' service, and $300 for three years' service, and also that they pay the same bounties to any substitute for any enrolled man in said town, and be authorized to raise money on the credit of the town for that purpose a sum not exceeding $5,000.

It will be noticed in reference to the foregoing transactions of the town concerning soldiers, that the "draft" and "drafted" men are mentioned. While the frequency of "calls" and the number of men called for from time to time, seemed prophetic of the probable need of "drafting" to fill the required quotas, it is a note-worthy fact that very few were actually drafted, as will be seen from the following record of the men sent by the town into the army. The fear of being drafted may possibly have led some voluntarily to send substitutes. We give below, first the Pembroke men who belonged to the different regiments of the state, and served for longer or shorter periods during the progress of the war, and afterwards the different men, with details of their service.

Roll of the second company of infantry in the Eleventh regiment, Fourth brigade, and Second division of the New Hampshire Militia, as corrected in April, 1860, and in April, 1861. Names on the roll of 1860 not found on that of 1861 are marked with a star. Those on the roll of 1861 not found on that of 1860, with a dagger.

In accordance with a prevailing custom, the George W. Gordon post, No. 39, Department of New Hampshire, of the Grand Army, was organized out of the veteran soldiers in town and vicinity. In 1883 it had a membership of thirty-six, Joseph Wilkins, quartermaster. After a few years it disbanded.

From the foregoing, it will be seen that a few men making up the quota of Pembroke, deserted; but to the credit of the town, nearly all were substitutes, "hirelings" in the truest sense, who, without doubt, purposed so to do when enlisting, as some did it on their way to the assigned regiment. Coming as they did in the fall of the year previous to the close of the war, there was not the urgent need of the poor service they would probably have rendered had they accepted the opportunity.

The adjutant-general's report for 1865, gives 119 men as Pembroke's enrollment. The United States credits the town with 100, as shown by statement. April 30, 1865. Her quota, under calls from July, 1863, to the end of the war, was 78. There were furnished by enlistments and draft, 84, leaving a surplus of 6, thus going far to offset deserters.

From the narrative of the action of the town during those "times that tried men's souls," as related above, it is manifest that Pembroke was fully alive to the imperilled interests of the nation, and was ready to stand in her lot and place and do her whole duty, till there was no longer occasion. She is certainly entitled to high honor for promptness, perseverance, and efficiency in furnishing soldiers to go to the front for the saving of the nation and winning a great victory for freedom, and as well, in her care for the dependent families left at home.

CHAPTER XXI.

1870. At the annual town meeting, March 8 and 9, $4,000 were voted to pay current expenses and existing liabilities; $1,700 for repair of the highways, with labor fifteen cents per hour; $300 were appropriated from the railroad and savings-bank tax, to be equally divided among the several school districts, Union district, as always, having its share.

Only two voted in favor of calling a convention to revise the Constitution, and 80 against it.

The town voted to dismiss an article relative to the removal of the town-house to Suncook village; also to instruct the selectmen to build an addition to the Bridewell suitable for a police station and court room, or if the present Bridewell is not suitable to receive such addition, that they build a building suitable for a police station, court room, and Bridewell, and appropriate for such purpose such sum as they may deem necessary; also "to establish the Dwelling House on the Town Farm as a house of correction for the Town."

The selectmen were empowered to borrow on the credit of the town, money not exceeding $30,000 to pay outstanding accounts and notes against the town.

Measures were also taken to provide a suitable public cemetery within the limits of the town, at or near Suncook. C. B. Hildreth and B. N. Emery were appointed a committee to act with the selectmen in ascertaining the best location and cost.

1871. At the annual meeting, March 14, the town voted to raise $4,000 to pay current expenses, interest on notes, and so much of the town debt as practicable; and $1,500 for repair of the highways; also to divide the literary fund, and $100 of the railroad and savings-bank tax, equally among the school districts having less than $500 appropriated, Union district sharing according to valuation.

Aaron Whittemore, Moses Martin, and John G. Bartlett, were chosen a committee to act with the selectmen in carrying out the vote of the town to provide for a suitable public cemetery near Suncook village, before the first day of April following.

The selectmen were authorized to borrow, if necessary, money not exceeding $30,000, at not over six per cent. interest, to pay existing liabilities against the town; also to purchase a hand fire-engine, at a cost, in addition to the old one, not exceeding $500.

At a special meeting, May 6, the selectmen were instructed to purchase a fire-engine for the use of Suncook village, and appropriate a sum therefor not exceeding $500, provided that the people of Suncook village will operate said engine without further expense to the town; also to provide a watering trough near the house of Charles P. Morse, at an expense not exceeding $100, and also obtain a lease of the spring of S. A. H. Weeks; also to sell at auction within their official year, the town farm, and property on the farm, in lots, or altogether, as they deem best, and use the proceeds to pay outstanding notes against the town.

1872. At the annual meeting, March 12, 395 votes were polled for state and county officers.

Four thousand dollars were voted for current expenses, interest, and reduction of debt; $1,500 in money for repair of the highways; and $300 of the school money, in addition to the literary fund, to be divided equally among school districts receiving less than $400, and the balance according to valuation.

The town authorized the selectmen to borrow on the credit of the town, not paying over six per cent. interest, $20,000 or less, to pay existing liabilities; also voted to exempt from taxation for ten years, any mill that may be erected or put in operation, for the manufacture of cotton or woolen goods on the privilege owned by Sarah E. Carbin in Pembroke at Buckstreet.

The presidential election occurred November 5, at which the town voted to accept such donations of money as may be made by any person, or persons, for the purpose of keeping cemeteries, or lots in cemeteries, in repair, and that the interest of the same shall be expended for that purpose in such manner as the donor shall direct, and that it shall be the duty of the selectmen annually to inspect the several cemeteries of the town, and direct the necessary repairs, or appoint an agent, or agents, for that purpose.

1873. At the annual town-meeting, March 11 and 13, it was voted to raise $4,000 to cover expenses of the town; $1,500 for repair of the highways; and to devote $300 of the railroad and savings-bank tax, in addition to the literary fund, for the benefit of the schools receiving less than $300, and to turn the rest of said tax into the treasury to be used as other moneys.

The selectmen were instructed to borrow on the credit of the town a sum not to exceed $15,000 to pay outstanding notes and claims of the town.

The town voted to exempt from taxation the buildings and machinery of any company that may locate in town, doing business to the amount of $10,000 per annum, not including dwelling houses.

The selectmen were instructed to make certain repairs on the chimney flues of the town-house to prevent smoking. Winthrop Fowler, the moderator, was honored with a vote of thanks for his "fair and impartial" action.

Suncook village was visited with a serious fire December 5.

State tax, $1,668, and county, $1,946.52.

1874. At the annual town-meeting, March 10, $3,000 were voted to defray current expenses; $1,500 for repair of the highways; and $300 from the literary fund and savings-bank tax to be divided equally among schools in districts having less than $300.

The selectmen were instructed to borrow such sum of money not exceeding $5,000 as might be necessary to pay outstanding notes of the town; also to confer with the "agent or owners of the factory companies" and fix terms upon which apparatus to extinguish fires can be used, if they can do so legally, otherwise to call a town-meeting forthwith, to take such action as may be deemed necessary; also to furnish coats and caps, not to exceed twenty, for the firemen, to be left at the counting room in care of the agent of the mills, provided the needful arrangements can be made for the use of the apparatus.

1875. At the annual meeting, March 9, $2,000 were voted for town expenses; $1,500 for repair of highways; and $300 from the savings-bank and railroad tax, and literary fund, to be divided equally among school districts receiving less than $300.

The selectmen were authorized to "hire a sum of money not exceeding $10,000," to pay notes and claims against the town.

On Monday morning, October 4, Buckstreet was the scene of one of the most atrocious murders of the times. Miss Josie A. Langmaid, daughter of James F. Langmaid living on Buckstreet about a mile and a half from the academy, on her way to school, when within a quarter of a mile of the academy, was waylaid by an assassin, dragged into the woods about ten rods, outraged, and her head severed from her body. As her brother, who went earlier to school, supposed she had decided to stay at home, and her parents, that she was at school, she was not missed till her brother returned home. Then naturally there was anxiety, neighbors were notified, and search made with lanterns, resulting about 8:30 in the discovery of the headless trunk. The agony of the father and brother, as they caught sight of the mutilated form, can only be imagined.

On a renewal of the search the next morning, the missing head was found under some small trees, about 70 rods away in a north-westerly direction. Her school books were found by the roadside, only a few feet from the place where she was dragged into the bushes. Also a red oak club,  $1\frac{3}{4}$  inches square and 3 feet, 8 inches long, with which the fatal blow was struck. One end had been freshly cut off, and the other had the corners whittled off to enable the assassin to hold it more firmly. It was broken in three pieces, witnessing to the strength of the blow.

The post mortem examination, among other bruises, disclosed the print of a heel on her right cheek, and a cast of it was taken as a means of identifying the assassin.

The murder caused great excitement in Pembroke and neighboring towns, and hundreds of people for days, visited the scene of the tragic deed, and the home of the victim. Meanwhile the selectmen, officer Hildreth, and a couple of detectives from Boston, were untiring in their endeavors to find and bring to justice the murderer.

The funeral, which took place at 11 a. m., Wednesday, October 6, drew together a large assemblage, the students of the academy attending in a body, wearing crape on the left arm. The services were conducted by Rev. H. Dorr, and Rev. T. H. Goodwin, clergymen of Suncook. The burial was at Chichester.

On the following Saturday evening, a largely attended citizens' meeting was held at Suncook, at which the following resolution, offered by Geo. P. Little, was adopted :

Resolved, That as citizens of the town of Pembroke, we heartily approve the action of the selectmen thus far in the investigation of the Josie A. Langmaid murder case, and we would instruct and support such selectmen in the continuance of their efforts, calling to their aid such counsel as in their judgment they may need, offering such reward for the capture of the murderer as they may deem liberal; also recommending that they call at an early day, a meeting of the voters of said town for the purpose of legalizing such action as they may have taken, and for raising money to pay the expenses of the reward and investigation.

Efforts to capture the murderer were successful. October 13, Joseph LePage, a French wood-chopper, was arrested and lodged in jail at Concord. On searching his house, evidences tending to criminate him were found, and facts of his history learned furnishing additional confirmation of his probable guilt. After two trials, he was convicted and sentenced to be hung. Accordingly on March 15, 1878, he thus suffered the just penalty of his awful crime.

His victim was nearly eighteen years of age, ladylike, a good scholar and beloved by everybody.

The scene of the murder was the most secluded of the entire road, and without doubt, purposely chosen. A fluted granite shaft surmounted by an Egyptian capital, on its base, fifteen feet in height, marks the spot, which by legislative enactment was cleared of underbrush to prevent, as far as possible, a like recurrence. The plinth bears the name "LANGMAID," and the south face the following inscription :

ERECTED

BY THE CITIZENS OF PEMBROKE
AND VICINITY, TO COMMEMORATE THE PLACE OF THE TRAGIC DEATH, AND MEMORY OF

JOSIE A. LANGMAID,

A STUDENT OF PEMBROKE ACADEMY,
WHO WAS MURDERED ON HER WAY TO SCHOOL, ON THE 4TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1875, AGED 17 YEARS,
10 MONTHS, AND 27 DAYS.

1876. At the annual meeting, March 14, the town voted to raise $1,000 for current expenses; $2,500 for highway repairs; and to appropriate $300 from the literary fund, railroad and savings-bank tax, to be divided equally among the several school districts, "giving Union district its proportion."

At the presidential election, November 7, 409 votes were polled. Aaron Whittemore and Trueworthy L. Fowler were elected delegates to the Constitutional Convention.

1877. At a special meeting held January 30, the selectmen were instructed to prosecute at the expense of the town, all persons guilty of any violations in said town, of any of the provisions of the law, of which they can obtain reasonable proof, relating to the sale of spirituous liquors, or appoint an agent for this purpose.

At the annual town-meeting, March 13, $1,500 were voted for town expenses; $2,000 for repair of the highways; and $300 from the literary fund and savings-bank tax for equal distribution among the schools.

In April the following petition was sent in to the selectmen:

To the Selectmen of the town of Pembroke:

Cochran & John E. Lyon; thence by said line between said Cochran & Lyon's land to the highway, and across the same to land of James Welch; thence by the northerly side of said highway to land of said Cochran; thence by the line between the lands of said Welch & Cochran to land of M. & N. B. Emery; thence by the line between the lands of said Cochran & Emery to land of Betsey Whitehouse; thence by said Whitehouse land the width of said Emery's land; thence by the land between said Whitehouse and Emery's land to Main Street and across the same; thence by the north easterly side of said street to the bound first mentioned.

Witness our hands this 24th day of April, 1877.

Henry T. Simpson, } Selectmen
George P. Morgan, } of Moody K. Wilson, } Pembroke.

A meeting of the inhabitants of Suncook within the limits defined above, was called for May 9, to ratify the action of the selectmen, and adjourned to May 18. If held, and action taken, no record was made.

1878. At the annual meeting, March 12, the town voted to raise $2,000 for current expenses and repairing highways; and to divide the literary fund and dog tax among the several districts according to the number of scholars, "giving to Union District according to its valuation."

Also to allow the First Congregational society to fit up and occupy the middle and eastern rooms on the north side of the town-house, for the purpose of holding social and religious meetings therein, the town reserving the right to terminate such occupancy at any time.

The selectmen were instructed to appoint some person to provide and care for suitable lights for the two bridges in Suncook village as the law requires; also to require the proprietors of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad to establish a proper stopping place for the public accommodation in Pembroke, opposite or near Robinson's ferry.

At a special meeting, April 8, on motion of Hon. Aaron Whittemore, the town voted in favor of a return to the support of paupers by towns and cities, instead of the present system by counties; and not in favor of re-building the county buildings lately burned; also to instruct the selectmen to investigate and ascertain what number of paupers the town can take care of, and what accommodations can be provided, "and report to the officers of the Convention."

Aaron Whittemore, James Dodge, and Isaac G. Russ, were chosen a committee to act with the selectmen in ascertaining what farm, or farms and buildings, can be purchased for the accommodation of the poor, and at what cost, and report at a meeting to be called for the purpose.

The representatives of the town were instructed to act in the county convention and legislature in accordance with the above votes.

At a special meeting, August 22, the town voted not to adopt the law passed by the legislature in regard to the sale of lager beer, on and after September 15; and to postpone till the next meeting the article to see if the town will prohibit the sale of cider.

At a meeting, September 17, the town voted to enforce the law regarding the sale of lager beer by a large majority.

The selectmen were instructed to appoint two night police.

Votes were brought in for congressmen, November 5, and a vote was passed appropriating $6,000 to purchase a steam fire-pump and all other necessary apparatus, and set up the same ready for use, and authorizing the selectmen to borrow such sum as may be necessary on the credit of the town. Daniel S. Jones, William Wainwright, and James G. Fellows, were chosen a committee to act with the selectmen in carrying out the above vote. A condition was imposed forbidding the payment of any money till satisfactory arrangement had been made with the manufacturing company to run and operate the engine and pump free of expense to the town, except coal used for the same during fires. At a special meeting, December 24, the town voted to rescind all votes relating to a steam fire-pump, and to dismiss an article relating to the purchase of fire apparatus.

1879. At the annual meeting, March 11, $2,250 were voted for current expenses, and repair of the highways; and $300 from the literary fund, dog tax, and railroad tax to make up the balance, appropriated for schools, to be divided equally among districts having less than $200.

On motion of William Wainwright, a vote was passed giving the selectmen authority to purchase a steam fire-pump, with all necessary appurtenances, put the same in working order, contract with the Webster Manufacturing Company for steam power for operating the same, and borrow on the credit of the town such sum as may be needed for the purpose, on condition that no money be paid out till arrangement should be made with said company for operating said fire apparatus. Martin H. Cochran, William Wainwright, and George P. Little, were chosen a committee to act with the selectmen in carrying out the above vote.

The matter of appointing a night watchman for Suncook village was left discretionary with the selectmen.

1880. At the annual town-meeting, March 9, an article to see if the town will hold its future meetings in Suncook village, was dismissed by a small majority.

Four thousand dollars were voted to defray town charges, pay existing liabilities and repair highways. The literary fund and dog tax were appropriated for equal distribution among the school districts. Eight hundred dollars were voted to be used by the selectmen in purchasing hydrants and laying water pipes in Suncook village; and $50 to the G. A. R. Post of Suncook, to defray expenses of Decoration Day.

The meeting for bringing in votes for presidential electors, state and county officers, occurred November 2, and 463 votes were polled.

1881. The annual town-meeting occurred March 8, when it was voted to raise by taxation $2,500 for town charges and repair of the highways, the selectmen apportioning to the several districts such sums as may seem necessary; also that all of the literary fund, and $200 of the savings-bank tax, be distributed equally to the several school districts having less than $200, giving Union district as usual, its share.

Five hundred dollars were voted to improve Pembroke Street and sidewalks from Moody K. Wilson's to the brook near Joseph C. Fowle's; also $500 to lower the grade of Broadway St. in front of John H. Morgan's dwelling.

1882. At the annual meeting, March 14, the town voted to raise $3,500 for current expenses and repair of highways; and appropriated the literary fund, and $200 of the savings-bank tax for the benefit of school districts having less than $200 ; and $300 additional were voted for highway repairs in districts Nos. 12 and 16 ; $50 to dig a well and put in a pump in the town-hall yard ; and $50 to the Geo. W. Gordon Post, for the suitable observance of Decoration Day.

Five hundred dollars were also appropriated for the repair of Glass street from Dr. G. H. Larabee's to the grist-mill ; and $100 to grade the hill near Chase F. Drew's.

The attention of some having been called to the importance of a town history, an article was inserted in the warrant to bring the matter before the town, and see what action would be taken. It resulted in the passage of the following vote :

Voted that the early history of the town be prepared and published, that a committee of three be appointed by the selectmen to collect facts relating to such early history, and ascertain the expense of publishing said history when prepared, the number of volumes to be published, and fix upon the price of each volume when sold, and the manner of selling the same, and that the selectmen be authorized to contract with some person, or persons, to prepare and publish such early history as approved by said committee, and that the sum of one thousand dollars be appropriated for that purpose, and that the proceeds of such sale be paid into the town treasury.

In accordance with this vote, Hon. Aaron Whittemore, Trueworthy L. Fowler, and Dr. John R. Kimball, were appointed such committee.

Balloting for congressman and state and county officers occurred November 7.

1883. At the annual meeting, March 13, $1,000 were voted for town expenses, and repair of the highways ; and $300 additional for the highways in districts Nos. 5, 7, and 13, one third in each.

Wilson, one near Pembroke Academy, one near the post-office, one near the blacksmith shop of J. C. Fowle, and one at the corner of the meeting-house road, and to appoint some suitable person to care for them.

The town by a large vote approved of the several amendments to the Constitution proposed by the Constitutional Convention.

On petition of twenty-nine legal voters, a special meeting was held August 31, when the committee on the town history handed in the following letter of resignation:

CHAPTER XXII.

ECCLESIASTICAL—CONGREGATIONAL, PRESBYTERIAN, METHODIST, BAPTIST, INDEPENDENT.

The early proprietors of the plantation did not overlook the religious needs of the settlers. One of their first acts was to provide for the establishment of permanent religious services among them. In fact, the conditions of the charter necessitated the building of a house of worship and settling "a learned and orthodox minister" within five years. Within three years, or a little more, a house was built. The contract was dated April 10, 1733, and the building was to be completed by the first of the following June. It was to be made "of good hewn logs, thirty feet long and twenty-four feet wide, and ten or eleven feet high. The roof to be covered with good; long shingles, well laid on and nailed. One door made and hung. The sides to be covered with good clapboards." When done the builder was to receive fifty-five pounds. It was situated near the northeast corner of the cemetery on Pembroke Street. The brook running across the street near it, for this reason, received the name of Meeting-house Brook. Two years later, this house was enlarged, raised in height, a desk built, and some seats and glass windows put in. A picture of the house as improved may be found on page 32. Here part of the time services were held for several years by such ministers as could be secured.

On February 8, 1738, as will be seen by referring to the record of the meeting for that year, the proprietors extended a call to Mr. Aaron Whittemore of Concord, Mass., to settle in the ministry. Provisions for his support were made as follows: It had been previously arranged by the proprietors, that the first settled minister of the plantation should have an equal share with them in the lands of the town. As the lots of the proprietors, including the parsonage lot, numbered sixty-three, he was entitled to one sixty fourth part. He was also to receive three hundred pounds for a settlement, in accordance with the customary usage of the times, and an annual salary of one hundred pounds for two years; afterward three additional pounds a year till the whole amount was one hundred and forty pounds a year; and, after the number of families in town numbered sixty-one, twenty shillings a year for every additional family till the number reached seventy.

At the same meeting, several presented a formal protest, duly signed, against the settlement of Mr. Whittemore, appending their reasons for so doing.

Notwithstanding this protest, Mr. Whittemore was ordained to the ministry, March 1, 1738, but not without the following remonstrance from the Presbyterians who were of Scotch-Irish descent and strongly attached to their own denomination :

REMONSTRANCE.

To Mr. Whittemore, preacher of the Gospel, and to those members of the church of the Congregational persuasion in Suncook: Brethren,—

We the subscribers, being inhabitants of Suncook, and of the Presbyterian persuasion, understanding that you are about to settle Mr. Whittemore as your minister, judge it necessary to let you know that as we have been baptized and educated under Presbyterian church government, we feel ourselves conscientiously obliged to the utmost of our power to maintain the same, & being that constitution we experimentally find to tend much to our souls' edification.

If, therefore, Mr. Whittemore, and you brethren, will mutually agree to fall in with the Presbyterian scheme in the points of church government, discipline and administration of the word and sacrament, we will cheerfully go hand in hand with you in his ordination and settlement as our minister; nor do we think that this our proposal can be look'd upon as unreasonable, since we are the major number of church members in the town, who, agreeable to your own principles, are the only persons who have a right to be concerned in the calling and settlement of ministers. If this proposal is complied with, it is well; if not, we do unanimously dissent joining in this call and do hereby protest against his being settled as our minister, seeing we design as soon as God in his providence shall give us sufficient ability and opportunity to settle a minister of our own persuasion. We are your well-wishers and brethren in our common Lord.

Andrew McFarland,
William Dinsmore,
James Mann,
Timothy Knox,

Robert White,
William Laghane,
Patrick Garvin,
James Neil,

Hugh Young,
James Moore,
James White,
Tho's Cunningham.

From the foregoing document it will be seen that there were twelve male Presbyterian church members, two thirds of whom were certainly legal voters.

It is supposed that the church was organized at the time of Mr. Whittemore's ordination, with the following male members, including the pastor :

Aaron Whittemore, pastor,
Elias Whittemore, deacon,
Noah Johnson, deacon,
Abner Gordon,
David Lovejoy,

Benjamin Chandler,
David Chandler,
Stephen Holt,
Richard Eastman,
Dudley Bradstreet.

The female members would probably increase the number to twenty or more.

We give herewith the covenant into which they entered :

We whose names are hereafter subscribed, being inhabitants of the plantation called Suncook, in New Hampshire, knowing that we are very prone to offend and provoke God, the Most High, both in heart and life (through the prevalence of sin that dwelleth in us and manifest temptations from without us) do, in the name of our Lord Jesus, the glorious Mediator of the new covenant, with dependence on the gracious assistance of His Holy Spirit, Solemnly enter into covenant with God and one another as followeth :

I. That having taken the Lord Jehovah to be our God we will fear Him and cleave to Him in love, and serve Him in truth with all our hearts, giving up ourselves and our seed to be His people, in all things to be at His direction and sovereign disposal, that we may have and hold communion with Him as members of Christ's mystical body according to His revealed will.

II. We bind ourselves to bring up our children and servants in the knowledge and fear of God according to our best abilities and especially by the use of Orthodox catechisms; that the true religion may be maintained in our families while we live, yea, and among such as shall live when we are dead and gone.

III. We furthermore promise to keep close to the truth of Christ, and endeavor (with affection in our hearts) to defend it against all oppressors, as God shall call us at any time thereunto, which that we may do, we resolve to use the Holy Scriptures as our platform, whereby we may discern the mind of Christ, and not the new-formed inventions of men.

IV. We also engage that we will have a careful inspection over our own hearts so as to endeavor, by the value of the death of Christ, to mortify all our sinful passions, worldly frames, and disorderly affections whereby we may be withdrawn from the living God.

V. We moreover oblige ourselves, according to our best abilities and opportunities, to worship God according to all the institutions of Christ for His church under the gospel administration, to give reverend attention to the word of God, to pray to Him, to sing His praises, and hold communion with each other in the use of both the Seals, Baptism and the Lord's Supper.

VI. We likewise promise that we will peaceably submit to the holy discipline appointed by Christ in His church for offenders, obeying them that have the rule over us in the Lord.

VII. We also bind ourselves to walk in love toward one another; endeavoring by mutual edifying, visiting, exhorting, and comforting one another as there shall be occasion, and warning every brother and sister which shall offend, not divulging private offences, but cheerfully following the sacred precepts laid down by Christ for church-dealing in Matt. 18: 15, 16, 17, willingly forgiving all that manifest to the judgment of charity, true repentance for all misdemeanors.

And now the God of peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make us perfect in every good work to do His will, working in us that which is well pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

The church thus formed under such obligations, began a career of usefulness which has continued with the usual varied experiences to the present time. It has embraced a large portion of the best people in town. With all its imperfections, it has been a nursery of piety, a school for the heavenly life. One after another in the long succession has passed away by the will of God, and left his place for others. Able and good men have died when seemingly they could not well be spared. But by the sparing mercy of God, the church still lives, and will live until "Zion shall arise and shine, the glory of God having risen upon her."

A new framed meeting-house on the ground of the old one, was built probably between 1759 and 1762. Loss of records prevents verification.

At the settlement of Rev. Mr. Whittemore, with the exception of the one at Concord, there was no other minister in the vicinity. He had an extensive parish, and faced hardship and peril enough to test thoroughly his zeal and courage. But here was a wide field of usefulness, and he was equal to the emergency. He was strongly evangelical in his religious belief, and wholly devoted to his work. For thirty years he continued his faithful labors, though not always with the hearty coöperation of the people. The few last years of his work seem to have been fraught with bitter trials, in the way of unpaid salary and active and stormy opposition, as the following record shows:

Town meeting relating to Rev. A. Whittemore, &c.

An act having been passed by the General Assembly exempting Presbyterians from paying for Congregational preaching after they had a settled minister of their own, gave rise to some difficulty in the assessment of taxes to pay the sum recovered by Rev. Aaron Whittemore from the inhabitants of Pembroke. As a way out of the difficulty, Isaac White petitioned the General Assembly to appoint a committee to make the assessment. This was entertained by the House as the following quotation from the Journal's records of the date of November 6, 1766, shows :

The petition of Isaac White of Pembroke in this Province representing that the Rev. Mr. Aaron Whittemore recovered Judgment against the Inhabitants of said Pembroke, and that the greatest part of the Inhabitants are Presbyterians, & Mr. Whittemore was of the Congregational order, that the Presbyterians were by act of Governm<sup>t</sup> exempted from paying any taxes to Mr. Whittemore after they had settled a Minister, that the Taxes can't at present be equally Levied, therefore Prays some suitable persons may be chosen from some other Town to Levy the said taxes, &c.

Aug. 27, 1767, the House took the petition into consideration, and Voted That the Prayer of the Petition be granted and that the Petitioner have liberty to Bring in a Bill accordingly.

On Sept. 3, 1767, an act was duly passed in his favor.<sup>2</sup>

Rev. Jacob Emery succeeded Mr. Whittemore and continued pastor for seven years, poor health leading to the dissolution of the pastoral relation. Prospects at his settlement could not have been very promising. His church was small, and the Revolutionary struggle was approaching. Evidently he shared in the spirit of the stirring times, and must have had much to do in stimulating and inciting the men of the town in making ready for the great conflict. The confidence reposed in him is shown by his selection in 1775 as a delegate to attend the state convention at Exeter, to consider the state of the country. He died soon after, leaving a family whose descendants still live in town.

After the death of Mr. Emery, the church was pastorless for five years, but had preaching part of the time. January 17, 1780, however, Rev. Zaccheus Colby was called at an annual salary of £75 and twenty cords of wood.

As a matter of interest we insert his letters of acceptance :

To the Congregational Society in Pembroke,

Dear Gentlemen, my heart's Desire and prayer to God is that you may all be saved and when I Consider the good Disposition you have shewed towards the truth of the Gospel I am encouraged to hope that your best Interest will be promoted and your Eternal salvation Effected I rejoice that you are so unanimously agreed and forward to settle and support the gospel and ordinances of our blessed and exalted Redeemer I humbly acknowledge myself much in debt to you for the respect and love you have manifested to me as an Ambassador of Christ, tho unworthy, in inviting me to settle with you in so great arduous & honorable a work as the work of a gospel minister. I feel of a willing mind to promote the honor of God to spend and be spent for the salvation of souls and having Considered your situation and that of your neighbors and what it is likely to be while you Remain Destitute of the stated means of Grace. I must according to present appearances Conclude that God in his providence and by his Spirit is calling me to Labour in this part of his vineyard, from which Consideration I Cheerfully accept the invitation thereto which you gave me on the 17th of January 1780. Now I Commit myself & you to the Care of the great shepherd and bishop of souls praying that he would own and bless us and give us his Holy Spirit, whereby we may not only be taught but enabled also to do our Duty toward him and one another, that at last we may give up our account with joy—if it is not the will of God that I should now settle with you and most for the Interest of the Redeemer's kingdom I pray God so to over Rule in his providence that something may turn up whereby it may be prevented, the Compensation which you have offered me for my labours with you is Doubtless as great as can be without injury to yourselves but you are the best Judges of what you are able to do. I am Content with your offers, and think you are willing by generous yet in my Judgment of Gentlemen well acquainted with the necessary expenses of a family the sum offered is as small as with which I Could with prudence live Comfortable and in Character—therefore in my settlement with you I shall expect the sum as Voted year by year and none of it to be taken by Constraint from the poor who are Dependent on others for sustenance you are sensible that he who would do the work of the Lord faithfully must have such support as to be free as possible from the Care of this world and give himself wholly to study—if any are Dissatisfied upon their further Consideration with anything that was transacted at your meeting, they are Desired to make it manifest, at least before I am fixed in this place—should it be the will of God to bring about my settlement with you—I ask one thing of you to wit that on the Day which may be appointed for ordination or in the evening of said Day, there may be no meriment or frolicking Countenanced or allowed of by any member of your society—but that all things may be Done as the solemnities of such an occasion Require—and being willing to promote your Eternal Interest according to extent of my abilities I subscribe myself your affectionate friend and servant in the gospel—

Zaccheus Colbey

Pembroke New Hampshire February ye 8th 1780

To the Congregational Church of Christ in Pembroke,

Honoured and beloved, it having pleased the great head of the Church who has the Disposal of all things and governs the hearts of men as he pleases to call me to labour with you in word and Doctrine for some months past, to unite your hearts one to another to me and mine to you and he having inclined the hearts of the Congregation to give attendance to the word preached and to offer willingly to the support of him that labours in holy things, gives me a prospect of being useful in this place, from which I must conclude tis my Duty to settle with you according to the invitation you have given me, I pray that brotherly love may Continue and Increase that we may may keep the unity of the spirit in the bonds of peace and that the Effusion of the Holy Ghost may be upon you and the Congregation—I earnestly ask your fervent Constant prayers for me who am most unworthy of so sacred an office as that to which you have called me,—well may it be asked who is sufficient—I must expect to reap great advantage from your prayers for me and the Congregation for when Zion travails she brings forth Children, but if the Church pray not for the minister he becomes useless & barren, and the people become hardened—without Christ we Can do Nothing. therefore I Commend myself and you to the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ who is able to do more than we can ask or think—may he give us grace so to Conduct in all things as to save our own souls and the souls of others—I now Conclude myself yours in the faith fellowship & labours of the gospel of our ascended Lord and Master.

Pembroke February y<sup>e</sup> 8th 1780

As nothing happened “to turn up” to prevent, Mr. Colby was ordained March 22. The situation at the time, as described by another,<sup>1</sup> was, in many respects, discouraging. “There was a want of harmony between the two societies in the place. The burdens of the war weighed heavily upon the people. Paper money, which had flooded the country, had become almost worthless. The expectation of national aid from France had been disappointed. The army was distressed beyond measure. ‘Four months’ pay of a soldier would hardly buy a bushel of wheat for his family!’ The elements themselves combined to add to the gloominess of the times. On the 19th of May, 1780, occurred the ‘dark day,’ in which, in many places, it was necessary to light candles in mid-day. Birds ceased to sing, and fowls went to their roost. The following night, we are told, was intensely dark. By this event, it is said, many persons were awakened to seek divine protection.

“But God had not forsaken his people in this place. The first year of Mr. Colby’s ministry there was a revival of religion, and thirty were added to the church. The people of the Presbyterian society became interested in his preaching.<sup>2</sup> Arrangements were made for him to preach in the Presbyterian house of worship and Congregational house alternately, four Sabbaths in each house, and brighter days appeared. By the advice of a committee of four ministers, two of the Presbyterian and two of the Congregational church, mutually chosen, the respective societies agreed to worship together, and support the minister according to poll and estate.”

The final union into one church, however, did not bring the harmony anticipated, as the arrangement did not prove satisfactory to all, fully one half of the church, with the two deacons, not uniting with the “consociated” church, and withholding their support. Mr. Colby’s ministry was, however, quiet and useful, till the difficulties arose leading to his dismissal. The weighty advice of a council, called for the purpose, failed to reconcile and restore harmony, and in three years after, the public disquiet and withdrawal of support led to the dissolution of the pastoral relation. During his ministry, ninety-nine were received into the church, twenty died, and eighteen left town, leaving a membership of one hundred and one.

After Mr. Colby's departure, no effective efforts to secure a settled ministry appear to have been made for several years. Meanwhile various men supplied the pulpit more or less of the time. In 1805 a church was built on the street on the present site; also the North Congregational, or Ambrose, meeting-house on the hill. The location of these houses occasioned much difference of opinion, and some strong feeling. Many, however, became tired of controversy, and out of regard for their families, sought to secure a faithful minister.

In June, 1797, the Congregationalists and Presbyterians had voted to unite, and sixty-one signed a confession of faith prepared for them by neighboring ministers.

About 1807, or 1808, a society was organized in the south part of the town, including some from adjoining towns, pledging to each other aid, according to ability, in the support of a minister. Ninety-eight thus pledged themselves as follows :

This was an important movement, and productive of good.

Shortly after a call was given to Mr. Abraham Burnham to settle with them, at a salary of $500 per annum, and $200 as a settlement, according to the custom of the times. Mr. Burnham accepted, and was duly ordained pastor of the church, March 2, 1808. It was understood that he should occupy the south meeting-house, but the people in other parts of the town proposing to unite with them in his support, asked to have him preach a part of the time in their house. This he did for many years.

Pembroke, Concord, Bow, Hooksett, Chester, and Allentown furnished supporters and an audience. His church numbered fifty-four.

May 5, 1806, a committee was chosen by the proprietors of the Congregational meeting-house to frame a constitution, consisting of Nathaniel Head of Chester, Lieut. Enoch Noyes of Bow, Dr. Thomas Adams, Capt. Asa Robinson, Capt. David Kimball, Capt. Samuel Cochran, Capt. Solomon Whitehouse, Ens. David Norris, and Joseph Emery, Jr.

The result of their labors was the following constitution, accepted June 2 :

Article 1st—It shall be a Congregational meeting-house, and the Presbyterians are to have equal privilege in every respect with the Congregationalists.

Article 2nd—We agree to be in fellowship with all denominations of Christians in regular standing.

Article 3rd—Every proprietor that now is or shall be a proprietor shall have equal privilege in said house agreeably to the Constitution of the State of New Hampshire.

Surely no one could reasonably find fault with the fairness and liberality embodied in such expression.

State of New Hampshire.

In the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifteen.

This act was approved by J. T. Gilman, governor, June 26, 1815.

During Dr. Burnham's ministry of forty-three years, 303 on confession, and 120 by letter, were added to the church. He baptized 654, officiated at 650 funerals, and solemnized 604 marriages. Revivals occurred in 1814, 1816, 1819, 1826, 1831, 1832, 1834, and 1835, increasing the number of the church to 240.

He was deeply interested in everything concerning the intellectual, moral, and spiritual welfare of the people, and wielded an influence not yet outgrown. He was dismissed November 20, 1850.

The same day Rev. John H. Merrill was installed pastor, and dismissed August 7, 1853. Rev. Robert Crossett followed, beginning labor July, 1853. He was installed March 16, 1854, and health failing, closed service October 8, 1855. Rev. Lewis Goodrich began labor May 24, 1856. He was installed May 13, 1857, and continued pastor till 1865. During his ministry upwards of 100 professed conversion, and some fifty united with his church.

After him, Rev. N. F. Carter supplied the church one year, from August 1, 1865, during which time there was special religious interest, with several conversions among the young.

Rev. Benjamin Merrill began labor November 25, 1866, and continued for three and a half years. A revival followed his earnest and faithful service, and fifty-three were received to the church.

Rev. Lyman White was acting pastor from April, 1871, to September, 1875. He multiplied his labors throughout the town, and secured the general confidence of the people.

Rev. Edward P. Stone followed as acting pastor from 1875 to 1877.

Rev. Cyrus M. Perry succeeded him, laboring from 1877 to 1879.

Rev. Cassander C. Sampson began labor October, 1879. He was ordained pastor May 18, 1881, and dismissed February 24, 1885. He gained a warm place in the affections of his people, and his departure to a new field of labor was deeply regretted.

Rev. Franklin P. Wood was acting pastor one year from April, 1885.

Rev. James Edwin Odlin succeeded him, laboring one year, from April, 1886.

Following him, Rev. Arthur N. Ward was acting pastor from April, 1887, to 1889.

Rev. Edward P. Tenney, from June, 1891, to April, 1893.

Rev. Paul E. Bourne followed him, beginning service August 1, 1893, and has so continued to the present time, with the promise of a fruitful pastorate.

This church, whatever have been its imperfections, has done much to shape the public sentiment of the town, and the character of its citizens. It has raised up many able and worthy men, who have gone out from its fold to impress themselves for good upon the world.

We are not able to give a full list of those who have served it as deacons, but the following are known to have held the office, some of them for many years :

Noah Johnson, Elias Whittemore, Joseph Baker, Nathaniel Lakeman, ——— Chandler, David Lovejoy, John Chickering, Joseph Emery, David Kimball, Jacob Emery, Moses Haseltine, Joseph Gale, Nathaniel Blood, Dr. Josiah Kittridge, Francis Vose, Dr. Parsons Whidden, Edward Kimball, William L. Morse, Brainerd Gile, and Isaac Walker, the last two now in office.

A Sunday-school was established in the early part of Rev. Mr. Burnham's ministry, the society for the improvement of the morals of the town, which had a vigorous existence for some years, having been merged into it,—and has continued with commendable success till the present.

A Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was organized May 22, 1889, with the following officers: President, Isaac Walker; vice-president, Charles Gile; recording secretary, Blanche Walker; corresponding secretary, Millie K. Gile; treasurer, Arthur Walker; lookout committee, Charles A. Gile, Charles Holt. H. A. Boomhewer; prayer-meeting committee, W. H. Thompson, Millie K. Gile, Abbie B. Langmaid; social committee, Vesta G. Fowler, Blanche Walker, Sue E. Morgan; flower committee, Lucy Little, Lottie Gile, Mrs. Alice Morgan. The original membership was thirty-two, with subsequent increase.

The present church edifice was erected in 1836, on the same spot as the old one, at a cost of $3,568.33. In 1871, it was improved at an expense of $1,757.22, and dedicated September 1. The same year a new library and new singing books for the Sabbath school were obtained. In 1881 the church edifice was still further improved at a cost of $1,525.04.

Early in the century, a bell was hung in the tower, but proving unsatisfactory, when the new church was built in 1837 the present one was put in its place.

The first church organ was secured largely through the endeavors of James Wilson. The present one was purchased in 1883, at a cost of $1,154.22, and proves very satisfactory.

The following have remembered the church in the way of benefaction: Mrs. Mary A. Holt, Mrs. Betsey Whitehouse, and McConnell Moore, of Pembroke, Justin S. Ambrose, and Mrs. Emily P. Eayrs, of Boston, Mass.

The North, or Ambrose, meeting-house on the hill was constructed of the timber of the Presbyterian edifice, and afterwards used in the erection of the Gymnasium. The building of every one of the three Congregational meeting-houses, and also the Presbyterian, was the result of controversy.

Some of the people of Pembroke from its earliest settlement were of Scotch Irish descent, and strongly attached to the Presbyterian polity. Religious persecutions in Ireland led them to leave their native land for America, that they might here enjoy in peace the faith and worship of their fathers. This, in some measure, accounts for their tenacious adherence to their denominational forms. Some of them first settled in Londonderry, about a dozen years before their removal to Pembroke, and some in other places. With such strong denominational preferences, their remonstrance against the settlement of Rev. Mr. Whittemore as minister of the town, as before stated, was only the natural outcome. As their own forms of worship were very dear to them, and Mr. Whittemore was supported by a tax of the town, they were not satisfied to pay for a minister not of their own church. For this reason, they decided to have a minister of their own faith, as soon as their number was large enough to warrant it. In accordance with this decision, the way opening, in 1760, they called Rev. Daniel Mitchell to be their pastor, and he was ordained as such in December, 1760, at a salary of £37, 10s., and paid by a tax upon nearly one hundred persons.

A little more than two years after, Rev. Mr. Whittemore having sued the town for a heavy arrearage of salary and recovered judgment in his favor, they, taxing themselves to pay their own minister, and only enjoying his services, were unwilling to be assessed, as legally obligated, to pay their share, and through their agents petitioned the General Assembly to be relieved from so doing, as follows:

Shews,

That the Rev<sup>d</sup> Mr Aaron Whittemore as Minister of said Parish by the Consideration of the Justice of his Majesty's Super Court of Judicature, lately recovered judgment against the Inhabitants of said Parish for the Sum of near three thousand pounds of old Tenor, as an Arrearage of Salary for about twenty months from the time of bringing his Action, due to [words torn off].

That at the time said Parish was Incorporated, many of the Inhabitants were Presbyterians bred up according to the form of the Kirk of Scotland, who tho' they joined with the Congregationalists, when they could not obtain and Support a Minister of their Own Sentiments in these matters, yet always Intended as soon as a sufficient number of that Denomination were settled in the Parish to settle a minister of their own, One who was Educated in and professed the Principles of the said Kirk, and accordingly for more than Seven Eighth's of the said time, they had such a Minister, who has continued with them ever since, and is Ordained according to the form aforesaid—That it has been Resolved by the Legislative Authority of this Prov<sup>s</sup> and often Determined by the Executive Courts, that the Presbyterians living in any Parish where the Settled Minister is a Congregationalist, attending Divine worship according to their own way, (either in their own Parish or Elsewhere,) are by the Law of the Province, exempted from paying towards the Support of such Minister, as well as the Members of the Church of England or the Quakers—

That the sum Recovered as aforesaid is Intirely for the Ministers Service of which the Presbyterians in Pembroke had not the benefit, excepting about two Months, and Many of them who have settled there since, not so much as that but having a Minister of their own, all the Rest of said time, are Clearly within the Exemption and Saving of the Law aforesaid; and tho' the Judgment aforesaid, was recovered agt the Inhabitants in General, (it not being the Pla<sup>ts</sup> business to Distinguish those Exempted from the rest, for if there had been fifty Quakers there the Action and Judgment would have been in the same form against the Inhabitants, and yet in that Case nobody woud have tho't such Quakers Liable to pay towards Satisfying the Judgment,) yet the said, Presbyterians conceive they Ought not to pay, for any more than that proportion of time, while they attended Mr Whittemore's Ministry, which they are willing to do, and for more they humbly Conceive they should not be Subjected by Law—but as many trials in that way, would tend to the Ruin of the Parish, they desire to prevent it by some Amicable and Summary Method—and tho Such an Equitable assessment might be made, by the Select men, yet being parties and Interested, as it woud be extremely Difficult for them to be Impartial, so few woud be satisfied and acquiesce, with what they should do in that matter—Wherefore your petition<sup>rs</sup> in behalf of their principals, Humbly pray, that some suitable disinterested Persons, of some other Town or Parish, may be Authorized to Assess said Sum, (which is yet to be Raised,) on the Polls and Estates of the Inhabitants aforesaid, and to adjust and Assess the proportion of the said Presbyterians in Equity, according to the time they Respectively sat under Mr Whittemore's Ministry, after the Incorporation aforesaid, or the time of his Settlement after it—and that each Society may for the future be Considered as a Distinct Parish, and Independ<sup>t</sup> of One Another, as to the Support of the Gospel Ministry And that your Petition<sup>rs</sup> may have leave to bring in a bill accordingly and they will as Duty bound Ever Pray &c—<sup>1</sup>

This petition was duly presented to the House of Representatives, and on June 2, 1763, the petitioners were granted the privilege of bringing in a bill. The Council concurred with the following amendment:

In Council June 3<sup>d</sup> 1763. Read and Concurred with this Amendment that the Presbyterian party pay their Proportion of Judgment Recovered by Mr

Whittemore till they had a Minister Settled by the Presbytery, which is three months and whereas the Parish have Voted to Raise by Tax a Sum of Money to oppose the Prosecution of these affairs, which was as it appears in favour of the Presbyterians, that what ever sum this may amount to, the Congregational party to be exonerated from—,

In response to a petition sent to the General Court by certain interested persons, “a Bill to exempt y<sup>e</sup> Inhabitants of the Parish of Pembroke who are Presbyterians from paying towards the support of y<sup>e</sup> Congregational minister there & to give them power to raise money to supp<sup>t</sup> their own minister,” was passed December 17, 1763.<sup>1</sup>

The following is the full text of the enactment :

Anno Regni Regis Georgii Tertii magnea Brittanicea, Franciea Hiberniea Quarto.

The act was signed by Theodore Atkinson “Junier Sec<sup>try</sup>” and approved by Benning Wentworth, Governor.

In carrying out the provisions of the above act, a difficulty arose as to the just apportionment of the sum to be assessed. This led Isaac White, for the Congregationalists, to petition, as before stated, the

General Assembly to appoint a committee from some other town to make the assessment. An act was passed in his favor September 3, 1767. This was not satisfactory to the Presbyterians, from the fact that they had paid, as they claimed, all their just dues, and had no one of their number present, at the time of the passage of the act, "to contradict and disprove the Capital facts therein alledged." This was the occasion of the following petition:

JN<sup>o</sup> BRYENT, Agent for the Presbytereian Society

Whether or not this prayer of the petitioner was granted, we are unable to state definitely, but probably it was.

Mr. Mitchell continued his labors till his death in 1776. He is supposed to have been an able and faithful minister of the gospel. His house of worship stood on an eminence south of the house of Mr. Trueworthy D. Gault on the west side of the street, nearly opposite the house of Frank T. Cheney. Religious services were probably held in the house for nearly, or quite, twenty years, with more or less regularity. Many attempts made to unite with the Congregationalists in the support of a minister were unsuccessful, till June 1, 1797, when the respective churches, after long consideration, voted themselves into one "consociated church." This was brought about during the ministry of Rev. Zaccheus Colby of the Congregational church. He so succeeded in interesting them, that they soon became warmly attached to him, and were ready to acknowledge him as their pastor, and contribute to his support.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell was the only settled pastor of the Presbyterians. He was one of nine, out of 102, who could not violate his allegiance to the King of England and pledge himself "at the risk of life and fortune, to oppose with arms the hostile fleets and armies of England."

The following served as deacons in the Presbyterian church: James Moore, Thomas Robinson, John Mann, James Robertson, Samuel Webster, Isaac White, and William Cochran. Of these, James Robertson served the "consociated church." He was associated with Dea. David Kimball and Dea. Joseph Emery of the Congregational church.

The following account of the beginning of Methodism in Pembroke is mainly from a manuscript whose authorship is unknown to the writer:

The first Methodist preaching in Pembroke was by Rev. James Cochran, a local preacher from Vienna, Me. In 1804 he sent word to his brother, Col.

Cochran of Buckstreet, that he was coming to Pembroke, and would preach to the people if he would cause a notice to be given. Col. Cochran remarked to his family that he would have the meeting at his own house, and then if his brother should prove to be one of the "bawling Methodists" that he had heard of, he could bawl as loud as he chose, and it would be nobody's business. The preacher came, the house was filled, he preached with power, and several were convicted and converted. Among them was Robert Martin. Mr. Cochran soon left for home, but Mr. Martin went to Poplin, now Fremont, to a quarterly meeting for the purpose of requesting Rev. George Pickering, the presiding elder, to send a minister to Pembroke the next year, which was close at hand. His request was granted and Rev. David Batchelder being appointed to the Poplin Circuit, made Pembroke one of his three preaching places, Poplin and Sandown being the other two. Mr. Batchelder formed the first class in Pembroke in the northeast part of the town, consisting of the following persons: Robert Martin, Mehitable Fowler, Lydia Abbott, Abigail Martin, John Kelley, Joshua Phelps, Nancy Sargent, Benjamin Fowler, Rachel Kelley, Hannah Phelps, Elizabeth Frye.

The class was formed in 1804, and Robert Martin chosen leader. In 1805 Pembroke was connected with the Northfield Circuit, and Rev. Caleb Dustin appointed preacher. The same year the first quarterly meeting ever held in the town occurred at the old Presbyterian Meeting House on the main street, with Rev. John Broadhead, presiding elder. The old church at this time was unoccupied, as Congregationalism had now about completed its triumph over Presbyterianism. Consent had been obtained for holding the meeting there, and the appointment extensively circulated through the surrounding country, but on Saturday night notice came from the elder of the church, that the meeting could not be held there, as they wished to have a prayer meeting on the Sabbath. Rev. Mr. Broadhead replied that as the notice was extensively circulated, it could not be recalled and that they must go to the church on Sabbath morning, and, if there were insuperable objections, they would adjourn to some grove near by, as he had preached the gospel to thousands in the open air and he could do it again, although it was then November. Accordingly they went to the church on Sabbath morning, and what should they find there but one of the old deacons and several of his friends holding a prayer meeting. Some of the Methodists going quietly into the house found the poor deacon in tears. Mr. Martin, class-leader, said to him, "Why, Dea. R., what is the matter?" The deacon replied, "It is hard for us to be turned out of our own house." Said Mr. Martin, "We do not wish to turn you out of your house, and we will give it up if it is really necessary, but as our arrangements are all made, it would accommodate us much to remain, and we shall be happy to have you remain, and we will worship God in peace together." Whereupon the deacon caught up the first hat he could get hold of, which proved to be not his own, and left the house upon a run, saying, "All who are on the Lord's side follow me." Some half a dozen followed suit, and went, it was said, to the Congregational Church, which was near, to hear a young collegiate read a sermon, while the great congregation remained to hear Rev. Mr. Broadhead. The house was thronged, and it was a time of power and glory. The little society made considerable progress this year.

Rev. Abner Clark was the first preacher that visited Suncook village, then called Pembroke village. He formed a small class there in 1810, with Nathaniel Nutting, leader. After a time it was discontinued, and not revived till 1840, under the inspiration of Rev. A. Folsom, who held the first meeting in the school house. This meeting was followed by one hundred others in succession, and resulted in a large number of conversions.

What may be called the formative period of Methodism in Pembroke closed in 1837, when the church on the Hill was erected, and became the centre of its influence in the town.

It will be of historic interest to the denomination to know that the hall of the "Gymnasium" which was built in 1840, was occupied for nine years as a preaching place. In 1841, Pembroke became a separate station of the Conference, and enjoyed the entire service of the pastor. Up to this time meetings were held in school houses in the north part of the town, and at Buckstreet.

From 1837 to 1849, Methodism may be said to have passed the second period of its history in town. During this time it came to have "a local habitation and a name." It had two places of worship, a stationed preacher, and a school recognized as under its patronage, giving it stability, and making evident it was nothing ephemeral.

In 1849, a still further advance was made. Suncook became a regular station, and a pleasant and commodious church edifice was built and dedicated September 13, under the pastorate of Rev. A. Folsom. In 1869, under the pastorate of Rev. A. C. Manson, it was enlarged to make room for twenty additional pews. This was followed by an extensive revival, bringing into the church nearly one hundred new members. In 1870, a parsonage and vestry were built a few feet south of the church. These together with the church were burned on the night of October 10, 1882. It stood on Church street where now is the tenement house of Addison N. Osgood.

The society immediately set about the building of a new church edifice on land successively owned by John Cochran, James Cochran, 3d, Christopher Osgood, Herman Osgood, and Matthew G. Emery, and later occupied by Daniel S. Jones, for a hotel. This in due time was completed, and dedicated July 6, 1884. The cost was about $15,000. A bell was placed in the tower.

Rev. J. L. Felt is the present pastor.

From another source we glean the following facts:

A house and two acres of land where George W. Nixon now lives, was bought and owned as a Methodist parsonage. In 1793, Trueworthy Dudley deeded the same to Jacob Edes, and Mr. Edes, in 1800, to Mark French. As Mr. French bought another farm at Buckstreet in 1810, the inference is, he sold the above about the same time to an association of Methodists for a parsonage, and it was so occupied, a part of the time, at least, for ten, and perhaps twenty years, by the minister in charge. Afterwards it came into the possession of Cogswell Dudley, who deeded it in 1835 to Joanna Cofran. The one furnishing this information remembers when a Mr. Norris lived there, and when Rev. J. Templeton (1823) lived at North Pembroke. There were frequent changes of ministers, and meetings were oftener held in the school house at North Pembroke than in any other part of the town. From 1830 to 1837, but few were held anywhere else. Meetings had been held at Buckstreet a part of the time.

Several attempts had been made to build a meeting house, but failed because those interested could not agree upon a satisfactory location. Finally in 1837, Stephen and Levi Baker agreed to give land for the purpose, and Joseph Baker, an unmarried brother, promised to subscribe $500 towards erecting the building. Joshua Baker, another brother, also made a subscription. Thus these four brothers furnished the lot and nearly, or quite, one fourth of the money needed to build the meeting house. Presumably but for them there never would have been a Methodist meeting house on the Hill. With propriety it might have been called the Baker Meeting house, as the old North church was called the "Ambrose Meeting house."

After the regular place for holding meetings was changed to Pembroke Street, and later, to Suncook, meetings were still held at the North Pembroke school house for several years, sometimes every Sabbath, and sometimes only every other Sabbath, preachers coming from the Biblical Institute at Concord.

We give below a complete list of the pastors from the beginning of Methodism in Pembroke, with years of service of each respectively, commencing in each case with the conference year. Where two and sometimes three are mentioned for a single year it is to be understood that in the earlier days the field was divided into circuits, and two or more were appointed to the same one, who followed each other in regular succession to the different preaching places: David Batchelder, 1804; Caleb Dustin, 1805; James Young, 1806; Hezekiah Field, 1807-8 and 1811; Lewis Bates, 1809; Abner Clark, 1810; Joseph Peck and Jacob Sanborn, 1812; Richard Emery, 1813; Aaron Lummis, 1814; James Jacques, 1815; Noah Bigelow, 1816; Benjamin Burnham, 1817-18; John Lord and Elijah Spear, 1819; Damon Young and Ezra Goodwin, 1820; James P. Felt, 1893-4-.

In 1863, the Baptist State convention, through its prudential committee, instructed Rev. David Gage, its State missionary and financial agent, to establish services at Suncook. Accordingly a meeting was held in Suncook Hall, December 20, 1863. January 24, 1864, a Sunday school was organized in connection with the regular service. Rev. David Gage supplied the pulpit personally, or by exchange, till a permanent organization was effected. The meeting for organization was held at the house of J. W. Salter on May 11, 1865. There were present Jeremiah Austin and Mrs. Mary Austin, from the church in Bow; Mrs. Angeline Robinson, from the Merrimack Street church, Manchester; Mrs. Emeline B. French, from the church in Hopkinton; Wyatt B. Knowles, from the Free Baptist church in Pittsfield; and Mrs. Fanny Salter, joining on confession. After prayer by Rev. David Gage, the permanent organization was effected by the choice of W. B. Knowles, clerk. It was then voted to take the name of the Baptist Church of Suncook, and to adopt the Baptist Church Manual as its declaration of faith.

After the organization, the religious experience of Henry Batchelder, Miss Fanny B. Phillips, and Miss Annie L. Rand was heard, and they were accepted as suitable persons for the ordinance of baptism. At another meeting, May 27, at the same place, Lydia Webster was examined and accepted as a candidate for church membership. The following day the four were baptized according to the established usage of the denomination.

The church also voted the same day to call a council, June 14, 1865, to give public recognition to the new organization. The churches invited were the First and Pleasant Street Churches of Concord, the First and Second in Manchester, the churches in Nashua, Bow, Goffstown, and Hopkinton. At the assembling of the council for the formal recognition of the church, after organization and the usual preliminaries, the following order of service was observed:

1. Voluntary by the choir.
2. Reading the minutes of the council.
3. Reading of the Scriptures by Rev. C. W. Burnham of Hopkinton.

4. Introductory prayer by Rev. John Peacock of Goffstown.
5. Hymn.
6. Sermon by Rev. W. H. Eaton of Nashua.
7. Hymn.
8. Prayer of recognition by Rev. C. W. Flanders, D. D., of Concord.
9. Right Hand of fellowship to the church by Rev. George Pierce of Nashua.
10. Address to the church by Rev. A. W. Chaffin of Merrimack Street Church, Manchester.
11. Concluding prayer by Rev. D. Gage.
12. Voluntary by the choir.

Later in the day another service was held, at which Rev. W. H. Eaton preached from Ephesians 2:20. The services of the day were formally closed with the benediction pronounced by Rev. L. Hayden of New London.

At this time meetings were held in Suncook Hall.

On the 13th of the following August, the Lord's Supper was administered to the church for the first time. The same day, the church voted to apply for admission to the Salisbury Association. J. Austin, C. Dudley, and W. B. Knowles were chosen a committee to carry the vote into effect.

July 1, 1866, George W. Smith was chosen deacon.

Rev. J. M. Coburn succeeded Rev. D. Gage as acting pastor from September 13, 1868, to January 30, 1870. After him Rev. E. E. Cummings, D. D., acted as pastor from September 17, 1871, to June 16, 1872; Thomas H. Goodwin from December 1, 1872, to March 30, 1877; Henry W. Tate from August 8, 1877, to October 29, 1880; Rev. N. D. Curtis from Nov. 28, 1880, to June 28, 1885; Rev. H. A. Stetson from September 1, 1885, to 1890. Rev. Thomas C. Russell, the present pastor, began service December 1, 1891.

At the corner of Main and Cross streets, where now stands the block occupied by Joseph Wilkins, a church edifice was erected in 1870, at a cost of $3,719.91. With the exception of $500, this amount was secured from generous donors abroad, through the solicitation of Rev. Dr. E. E. Cummings, and the house of worship was dedicated, April 20, 1871, free of debt. Rev. Dr. Cummings preached the sermon, and Rev. Messrs. Faunce, Safford, Gage, and Burnham had the remaining parts.

From this time the church began a career of marked prosperity and usefulness. The pews were all rented, and more called for. The house was filled with a young and vigorous congregation, the Sunday school grew in numbers, and the prayer meetings were well attended.

The church edifice was burned August 14, 1878, the lot sold, a new one purchased, and the present house of worship immediately built, and dedicated May 27, 1879, at a cost of $4,249.40. In 1890 it was extensively repaired and frescoed, and a pipe organ placed in it.

April 21, 1869, nearly five years after the organization of the church, George W. Smith, Stephen Hook, Albert Truesdell, James C. Wing, and J. W. Salter united together in forming the "First Suncook Baptist Society." The organization was perfected by the choice of J. C. Wing, president; Stephen Hook, clerk; and Enoch Alexander, treasurer.

In 1885, Enoch Alexander generously gave the society a convenient parsonage.

In 1893, fifty were added to the church, thirty-eight by baptism, making this the jubilee year of its history thus far. A bell has been put in its place as a memorial. The society is out of debt, and united, and the outlook is promising for a long era of prosperity and usefulness.

June 17, 1880, the "First Independent Society of Suncook" was organized at the drug store of Charles F. Hildreth, Rev. Henry F. Campbell calling the meeting to order. Charles F. Hildreth was chosen moderator, and the following officers elected:—Otis S. Eastman, clerk; Charles F. Hildreth, treasurer; Jacob Noyes, David Hayes, Clifton B. Hildreth, executive committee; and Rev. Henry F. Campbell, pastor. Samuel B. Cofran, Moses R. Lake, Clifton B. Hildreth, James Glazier, Jacob Noyes, Clifton B. Hildreth, Jr., David Hayes, Henry Knox, Otis S. Eastman, Mrs. James Glazier, Mrs. Jacob Noyes, Mrs. C. B. Hildreth, Mrs. David Noyes, and others, signed the written compact of the organization, which seems to have been simply a declaration of the existence of the society as a fact. It does not appear to have had any confession of faith, and its active career was brief.

acting pastor at Hillsborough Centre, 1887-93. He began labor at Pembroke, August 1, 1893.

He married Eliza Ellen, daughter of Rev. Israel and Mary Ann (Pike) Downing, at Kennebunkport, Me., September 10, 1883.

Abraham Burnham, A. M., D. D., son of Dea. Samuel and Mary (Perkins) Burnham, was born November 18, 1773, in Dunbarton. He graduated at Dartmouth college, 1804; studied theology with Rev. Elijah Parish, D. D., of Byfield, Mass.; and was ordained pastor, Pembroke, March 2, 1808, and dismissed November 30, 1850. He was a clear thinker, strong and vigorous preacher, direct and practical in his enforcement of truth, deeply interested in the promotion of all social and religious matters, and came to wield an extensive influence in the churches. ### BIOGRAPHICAL—PHYSICIANS.

Alfred Wells Abbott, son of Alfred C. and Judith (Farnum) Abbott, was born in West Concord, May 7, 1842. He fitted for college at Boscawen; was a student in Dartmouth College, 1863-4; then began the study of medicine with Dr. A. E. Emery of Penacook; and graduated at Dartmouth Medical College, 1867. He began practice in Kansas, December, 1867. Afterwards physician, Suncook, 1869-71; Sanbornton, 1871-81; and Laconia, since April, 1881. Was a delegate of the New Hampshire Medical Society to Dartmouth College, 1880. Dr. Edward Abbott of Sanbornton is his brother.

He married Julia A. Clay of Manchester, December 30, 1869, and has three children born in Sanbornton: Clifton L., born January 16, 1871; Blanche N., born April 10, 1872; and Karl B., born August 29, 1877.

Thomas Adams practiced many years in town. He was a prominent man, and town-clerk, 1787-94. He was the son of John and Lucy (Hubbard) Adams, and was born at Princeton, Mass., March 22, 1761. He was a soldier of the Revolution, 1779-81.

He married Sarah ———, had six children, and died May 16, 1808.

Henry Dow Banks lived in Pembroke as early as 1768, somewhere near the residence of the late John E. Kimball. We have no record of his residence prior to his coming into town, nor where he went after selling his place to Peter Green in 1772. Nothing is known of his family history, of his success as a physician, or of the reason of his leaving town so soon.

Richard Bartlett came to Pembroke about 1760, and practised ten or twelve years, then became tavern keeper on the site of what is now known as the old Bartlett stand. He probably was store keeper also. He was among the most noted business men of the town, and honored by it with important offices. He served as moderator, 1785-6, 1789, and 1792-3; town-clerk, 1773-7, and 1779; selectman, 1770-1, 1775, 1780-1, 1783-4, and 1787; representative, 1778-9, 1782, 1790, 1792, and 1796. He was justice of the peace, 1779-1802. He died about 1808.

Abel Blanchard was born in Wilton, October 10, 1782. Studied medicine, and began practice in Pittsfield. He located in Pembroke about 1808. He is represented as a tall, slim man, wearing green glasses. Never marrying, and wishing to do good with his money, he offered a certain sum to the town of Pittsfield for an academy. The town in public meeting declining to accept it for the reason "that it would make the boys and girls proud and lazy," he afterwards made a similar proposition to Pembroke, which was accepted, and Blanchard Academy founded in 1818. He died in Pembroke, October 16, 1817, leaving a will in favor of the Academy.

Nathan Call, son of Silas and Sarah (Eaton) Call, was born September 25, 1827, in Boscawen. Educated at Boscawen, Washington, and Tilton. Began the study of medicine with Dr. E. K. Webster of Boscawen, February 20, 1851. Attended lectures at Dartmouth, Bowdoin, and New York Medical Colleges; dissections with Dr. E. H. Parker of Concord; and graduated at Dartmouth, 1854. Began practice with Dr. E. K. Webster of Boscawen, 1854. Assistant physician, New Hampshire Insane Asylum, March, 1855-9. Physician, Boscawen, 1859-64; Suncook, 1864-75. He was secretary of the New Hampshire Medical Society, 1862-6. Also superintending school committee of Pembroke. He was eminently social, genial, constant in friendship, loyal to duty, efficient, and deeply interested in the cause of education, science, and religion. He died in Suncook, June 15, 1875.

He married Charlotte M., daughter of James and Hannah Colby of Hopkinton, September 4, 1855.

John Cochran was not a regularly educated physician, but acquired considerable note in the practice of medicine and surgery. He was said to be the third male child born in town; was twice married, had several children, and died in 1816.

Samuel Connor was probably the first physician to locate in Pembroke, coming from Exeter, and settling at Buckstreet about 1755, as he took a deed of the Masonian proprietors that year, of the farm on which the late Charles B. Fowler lived. In 1759 he moved to Pembroke Street, occupying the place owned by the late Albert F. Langmaid. He practised in town several years, was married, had several children, among whom was Col. Samuel, who was killed in the Battle of Bennington in 1777; and Eliphalet, who also served in the Revolution, and was afterwards a pensioner. October 1, 1781, he leased to his son Joseph the farm inherited from his son Col. Samuel, and the same day deeded to his five children all his real and personal estate so inherited. He died about 1787.

Hezekiah Eldredge, son of Dr. Micah and Sally (Buttrick) Eldredge, was born in Princeton, Mass., February 6, 1797. He taught school several years in New Hampshire and New York. Studied medicine with his father, and Dr. Cutter of Pepperell, Mass., and graduated at Brown Medical School, Brown University, 1825. Physician, Dunstable, Mass., 1826-33; Pembroke, 1833-40; Amesbury, Mass., 1840-48; and Milford, 1848-70. Was a member of the New Hampshire Medical Society.

As a physician he was careful, prudent, and of good judgment. His unfailing humor added to his success in the sick room. For thirty-eight years he was a member of the Congregational church, a teacher in the Sabbath school, and for three years president of the Hillsborough County Bible Society. He died in Milford January 25, 1870. Twice married.

John Robinson Kimball, son of Jonathan and Pamela Knox (Holt) Kimball, was born December 28, 1844. He was educated at Hebron (Me.) Academy; began the study of medicine with Dr. B. H. Phillips of Pembroke, April, 1866; and graduated at Bowdoin (Me.) Medical College, 1869. Physician, Antrim, August, 1869-73; and Suncook, 1873-93.

He was a member of the New Hampshire Historical Society; New Hampshire Medical Society, serving on its executive committee; and New Hampshire Centre District Medical Society, by which he was honored with various offices, serving as president, 1880-1. He was town clerk of Pembroke, and member of the school board several years, as previously in Antrim. He died at Suncook, January 8, 1893.

He married Clara A., daughter of Dr. B. H. Phillips, June 12, 1872.

Josiah Kittredge was born in Mont Vernon, October 15, 1793. He fitted for college at Phillips Andover Academy, but failing health prevented a collegiate course, and led him to begin his medical studies with Dr. Spaulding of Amherst. Afterwards he attended lectures at Dartmouth Medical College, and in Boston, Mass., graduating at Dartmouth, 1815. The Berkshire (Mass.) Medical College also gave him an honorary degree, 1858.

He began practice with Dr. Blanchard of Pembroke about 1815, and Dr. Blanchard soon dying, became sole physician for fifteen years, and was often called to adjoining towns. Was in practice in Boston, Mass., 1830-5; Concord, Mass, 1835-9; and Nashua, 1839-56. Resident physician, Mt. Holyoke Seminary, South Hadley, Mass., 1856-60; Montclair, N. J., 1860-9; and consulting physician, Glastenbury, Conn., 1869-72.

He was always an officer, or member, of some medical society, deeply interested in civil and educational affairs, and honored with offices of trust. He also took a deep interest in church matters and sacred music. "Gentleness, combined with firmness, was the crowning beauty of his character."

With health always delicate, by his simple, temperate habits, notwithstanding several severe sicknesses, he accomplished much. He died at South Glastenbury, Conn., October 29, 1872.

He married (1) Mary B., daughter of David and Susannah Stewart, of Amherst, May, 1825; (2) Sarah W. French of Bradford, April 3, 1833; (3) Susan Baylies Brigham of Grafton, Mass., May 7, 1844.

George H. Larabee, son of Stephen C. and Cynthia (Sawyer) Larabee, was born in Bradford, Vt., September 15, 1840. He was educated at Edgartown, Mass., and taught a grammar school there six years, meanwhile studying medicine under the tuition of Drs. I. H. Lucas and Edwin Mayberry. He graduated at Harvard Medical College, 1864; was commissioned assistant surgeon of the First Massachusetts Heavy Artillery, fall of 1865; and after his discharge, located in Suncook, where he has since practiced his profession. He is a member of the New Hampshire Medical Society, New Hampshire Centre District Medical Society, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, and Masons, having taken his 32d degree.

He married Susie Elizabeth, daughter of Josiah Kittredge and Malinda (Chapman) Clifford, of Suncook, February 25, 1889.

Benjamin Page was one of the older physicians of Pembroke, coming into town as early as 1780, and establishing himself in the practice of his profession. After the death of Dr. Samuel Connor in 1787, he lived on the Connor place near where John G. Tallant now lives. He sold his place to Isaac Carlton, after a residence in town of eight or ten years, and probably left town. We find no record of his family.

Butler Hubbard Phillips, son of Russell and Polly (Merrill) Phillips, was born in Gilmanton, August 17, 1815. He was educated at Gilmanton Academy; studied medicine with Dr. Nahum Wight of Gilmanton; attended lectures at Dartmouth Medical College; and graduated at the Brunswick (Me.) Medical School, 1841. Physician, Hillsborough, 1841-6. Attended medical lectures at Jefferson College, Philadelphia, 1846-7, and then located in Pembroke, where he had a successful and extensive practice, reaching out into the adjoining towns. In 1874 he changed his residence from Pembroke Street to Suncook. Increasing age led him to curtail his practice, only responding as he was able to calls into families for many years claiming him as their physician. He died May 19, 1893.

He married Huldah P. Woodward, of Tunbridge, Vt., November 6, 1848.

John D. Pillsbury, son of Dr. John, and grandson of John and Judith (Dole) Pillsbury, was born in Pembroke, April 16, 1805, and educated at Pembroke Academy. Studied medicine with his father in 1825, and the next year at the Berkshire (Mass.) Medical School. Afterwards he studied a year with Dr. Renton, a distinguished surgeon of Concord, and later with Dr. William Graves, of Lowell, Mass. He graduated at Bowdoin (Me.) Medical College in 1829, and began practice with his father. Desiring a wider field, he went to Lowell, Mass., and entered upon an increasing and lucrative practice of twenty-five years continuance. He ranked high in his profession, and enjoyed the esteem and confidence of the people. The smile ever upon his face as he entered the sick room gained for him the soubriquet of the "cheerful physician." His kindness to the poor was noteworthy.

He moved to Rochester, N. Y., in 1854, and was warmly welcomed by his professional brethren, but suddenly died of a brain trouble, December 21, 1855.

Stephen Swett probably came to Pembroke prior to 1760, and lived somewhere south from the present residence of Joseph H. Dearborn. Nothing has been learned of the extent of his practice, but as he sold his place to Benjamin Perkins in 1763, the presumption is that his expectations were not realized, and he sought a more lucrative practice elsewhere. We have not been able to learn anything of his family history.

Parsons Whidden was born in Canterbury, May 22, 1801; studied medicine with Dr. Enos Hoyt, of Northfield; graduated at Dartmouth Medical School, 1836, and began practice in Danbury. Afterwards physician in Warner, Northfield, Pembroke, 1847-53, and from 1853-69 in Chichester. Was deacon of the Congregational church, Northfield, now Tilton. He died, Chichester, March 29, 1869.

He married Mary P., daughter of Jeremiah and Mehitable Haynes of Tilton, January 31, 1832. They had one son, George Parsons, born July 3, 1845. His wife was born December 13, 1802, and died October 5, 1875.

William W. Wilcome, son of Charles L. and Harriet A. Wilcome, was born in Chester in 1864. He began the practice of his profession in Suncook in March, 1891, with good prospects of establishing himself eventually in a large and lucrative practice. He died in December, 1892.

Moses Chamberlain, son of Maj. Moses and Rebecca (Abbott) Chamberlain, was born in Loudon, February 7, 1792. Till about twenty-one, his time was spent in the common schools, about his father's farm and mills, and as clerk for Hon. Stephen Ambrose, merchant of East Concord. About 1815 he went to Pembroke, and engaged in trade "on the hill," as partner of Col. Jacob Elliott, and a year or two later, of Dr. Abel Blanchard till his death, the store standing on the west side of the street, half way between the meeting house and Pembroke academy. He was executor of Dr. Blanchard's will, and on his suggestion the bequest which led to the establishment of the academy was made. Mr. Chamberlain was its treasurer till he left town.

About 1819, having purchased the land, he had a store on the east side of the street south of the "Fisk tavern," till, after a few years, he built one on the opposite side of the street. Selling his house and store to Capt. Daniel Sawyer in 1835, and leaving his family in Pembroke, he spent nearly a year in Ohio and Michigan, purchasing in the latter state a large tract of unimproved lands. Returning he was in trade in Concord till the fall of 1843, when with most of his family he moved to Michigan to improve his estate, now in Three Oaks, where the rest of his life was spent.

He was deeply interested in religion, schools, and reforms; like all traders of his time, sold liquors, till convinced of its wrong, and in 1829 gave it up, the first one in the state to do so, it is said, from principle; with others, organized a Congregational church at Three Oaks, which is now the oldest, largest, and strongest of that denomination in southwestern Michigan. He died Feb. 12, 1866, at Three Oaks, Mich.

Ira Eastman of Concord; was admitted to the bar in 1870, and a partner with Hon. James G. Allen of Palmer, Mass., one year; then opened an office at Southbridge, Mass., where he has since remained, and acquired an extensive practice. He is counsel for half the manufacturing corporations of Southbridge, and handles many trust funds. He has served his town as moderator thirteen years; as auditor, three years; library committee, thirteen years; as solicitor; and representative to the legislature in 1880, where he was made a member of the committee on constitutional amendments, woman's suffrage, and dispatch of public business; and chairman of the committee on elections. Asa Fowler, son of Benjamin and Mehitabel (Ladd) Fowler, was born in Pembroke, February 23, 1811. He fitted for college at Pembroke Academy, and graduated at Dartmouth College in 1833. Afterwards he taught briefly the academy at Topsfield, Mass., and later entered the law office of James Sullivan at Pembroke. In March, 1834, he entered the office of Hon. Charles H. Peaslee in Concord, and there completing his studies, was admitted to the Merrimack County bar in February, 1837. He was partner with Gen. Frank Pierce, 1838-45; clerk of the senate, 1835-40; United States commissioner for New Hampshire, 1846-71, and 1874-83; representative five years, and speaker of the house, 1872; associate justice of the supreme court, 1853-61; solicitor of Merrimack county, 1861-5; for twenty years prudential committee, or member of the board of education; director of the State Capital and First National banks, and president of the latter; and director, and several years president, of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad. lishment of the asylum for the insane, the high school, and public library of Concord. As chairman of the judiciary committee in the legislature, "he probably drafted more bills than any other man, living or dead." He died April 26, 1885, in San Rafael, Cal.

He married Mary Dole Cilley, daughter of Robert and Polly Dole (Cilley) Knox, July 13, 1837.

Col. David Gilman, son of Israel and Deborah (Thing) Gilman, was born at Newmarket, June 9, 1735. He came to Pembroke prior to 1764, possibly some years earlier. While a citizen of the town he enjoyed the confidence of his fellow citizens, and was honored with various offices of trust. He served as moderator of the town meeting, selectman, member of the committee to publish the names of persons whose behavior, in the judgment of the majority, raised the suspicion of hostility to the cause of the patriotic colonists, and was delegate to the Continental Congress at Exeter. When General Washington called for a draft to raise troops to garrison Forts George and Ticonderoga, July 4, 1776, the next day he was appointed colonel. His regiment was a body-guard to General Washington, and Washington gave him a sword.

April 21, 1779, he deeded to David Dexter of Haverhill, Mass., sixty acres of land in Pembroke with the buildings thereon of lot No. 6, and seventy-eight acres in Allenstown, his mill built prior to 1767, also grist mill and privilege, and three fourths of a saw mill, mill yard, dam, and privileges.

After leaving Pembroke in 1777, he located in Tamworth, and lived there till death. He represented the town of Tamworth several years between 1783 and 1805 in the legislature. One who knew him says he has no doubt that he was the most noble and talented man that ever lived in Tamworth.

He married Sarah, daughter of Col. Joseph Smith, and widow of Lt. Winthrop Hilton, of Newmarket, July 21, 1778. Descendants are still living in Tamworth.

Lt.-Col. Jeremiah Gilman was a brother of Col. David, and born December 14, 1740. He came to Pembroke prior to 1764, settling on what is known as the Hardy road. February 21, 1772, he deeded land on the east side of Pembroke Street to Jonathan Dix. He served in the Revolution as captain of one of the companies of the Fifth Massachusetts regiment, Col. John Nixon commanding, early in the campaign of 1775, and so continued till the close of 1776, when he was made captain in the First New Hampshire regiment, under Col. Joseph Cilley. April 2, 1777, he was appointed major of the same, joining the regiment at Ticonderoga and remaining till July 5, when the retreat was made to Saratoga. On account of ill health he was sent to Albany, where he was confined by sickness for several weeks. September 20, 1777, he was appointed lieutenant-colonel in Colonel Cilley's regiment, and in the absence of the colonel, during the winter of 1777-8 had command at Valley Forge, also when pursuing the enemy on their evacuation of Philadelphia, and at the Battle of Monmouth. Afterwards he went with the army to White Plains, and later to Hartford. Continued ill health led to his return home in January, 1779, and his discharge March 24, 1780. He was the recipient of a horse from Thomas Jefferson. He was wounded in New Jersey, and became a pensioner. November 2, 1782, he petitioned to the General Assembly for the amount of his loss in wages, due to the depreciation of the currency, on the plea of his enfeebled condition. He was once elected to the New Hampshire legislature, but resigned to accept a government office.

From Pembroke he probably went to Exeter, as March 25, 1778, he gave an order to Noah Emery on Colonel Stickney, for money due him "on the ration roll," dated at Exeter, then to Plaistow, and later to Tamworth, and died there March 24, 1823.

He married Abigail Johnson May, 16, 1762.

Col. Asa Head, son John and Lydia (Merrill) Head, and grandson of John and Mehitable Head, of Bradford, Mass., was born in Pembroke, July 24, 1783. He was appointed captain of the first company of light infantry in the Eleventh regiment, October 24, 1815; major of the Eleventh regiment, May 19, 1820; lieutenant-colonel of the same regiment, December 8, 1820; and colonel, June, 1821, which office he resigned in 1824. He was a farmer, man of integrity, and much respected in the town. He went to Portsmouth in 1814, at the head of a detachment of volunteers. His company was discharged November 11, 1814. He died in Goshen, June 8, 1839.

He married Mehitable Lakeman of Pembroke.

Col. John Head, son of Esquire Nathaniel and Anna (Knox) Head, and grandson of Maj. James and Sarah (Thurston) Head, who was mortally wounded at the Battle of Bennington in 1777, was born in Chester, now Hooksett, May 30, 1791, and always lived in that town. He was appointed captain of the Ninth company of the Seventeenth regiment, June 11, 1814; and lieutenant-colonel of the same regiment May 19, 1820, and resigned June 8, 1822. He was a prominent man in town and died August 7, 1835.

He married Anna Brown of Chester, July 16, 1822.

Gen. Nathaniel Head, son of John and Mehitable Head of Bradford, Mass., and grandson of James and Elizabeth (Atwood) Head of Bradford, Mass., was born in Bradford, Mass., October 9, 1742. He came to Pembroke about 1768, and settled on the farm now owned by Isaac N. Lakeman. He was second-lieutenant in the Ninth company of volunteers from New Hampshire, at Winter Hill in the winter of 1775 and 1776. He was colonel of the Eleventh Regiment of Militia in 1801. Later he was appointed brigadier-general.

He served as moderator of the annual town-meeting more times than any other man, past or present, and was honored also with nearly all the other offices in the gift of the town. He was a man of marked ability and commanding influence. He died October 14, 1823.

He married Abigail Stickney, December 1, 1768.

David Lyman Jewell, son of Bradbury and Lucinda (Chapman) Jewell, was born January 26, 1837, in Tamworth. He is a descendant of Mark Jewell, the first white man that settled in Tamworth in 1772. After a varied youthful experience with meagre school privileges, on the farm, in the mill and machine shop, he entered Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Mass., in 1855. After graduating in 1857, he taught successfully in New Jersey and New York several years, meanwhile fitting himself for a civil engineer. Soon after entering upon active work in that capacity, the rebellion broke out, and though very anxious to go to his country's defence, he was induced to accept the position of draughtsman for the owners of the Pembroke Mills, and prepared the working plans and drawings for the Webster Mill. Meanwhile the agent at Newton Upper Falls, Mass., died, and the immediate care of the mills there was given to Mr. Jewell.

Conducting the affairs so satisfactorily in this position, the agency was tendered him, and after finishing his work at Suncook, he accepted. Under his management the production and quality of the goods manufactured was very much improved. When the erection of the China Mill at Suncook was determined upon, Mr. Jewell was again called to act as civil engineer and draughtsman, and for more than two years, at the request of the agent at Suncook who needed his time to attend to the construction of the new mill, he acted as agent at Newton, and superintendent of the Pembroke and Webster Mills. The agent resigning in 1870, when the China Mill had fairly begun operations, Mr. Jewell was appointed to fill the vacancy, and resigning at Newton, he assumed the management of the triumvirate corporation June 1, 1870. Under his management, various improvements have been consummated, more than doubling the production of the mills, with substantially the same machinery.

Mr. Jewell is a member of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association; was honored by being appointed aide-de-camp, with the rank of colonel, on Gov. Head's staff; is an active member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston; is a Mason, having taken all the Scottish Rites up to the 33d degree. The "Jewell" lodge of Suncook was named in his honor. Mr. Jewell is a man of great executive ability, public-spirited and affable, and has done much for the improvement of the village of Suncook.

He married (1) Mary A., daughter of Ephraim Grover, of Newton, August, 1860, who died October 16, 1862; and (2) Ella Louise, daughter of Lewis Sumner of Needham, Mass., May 31, 1865.

Col. Thomas W. Knox, as a journalist and traveller, is the most noted son of Pembroke, having been born there on a farm on Buckstreet, now owned by Warren D. Foss, June 26, 1835. Educated in the common school, and Pembroke Academy, he was several years a teacher, till in 1860 he began his life of adventure by going to Colorado to dig gold. Not satisfied with his success, he soon drifted into journalism, a work more congenial, became city editor of the Denver Daily News, and afterwards war correspondent of the New York Herald. He was commissioned lieutenant-colonel on the staff of the governor of California, and was wounded in Missouri.

After the war, he joined the regular staff of the New York Herald, and under its auspices, in 1866, began his first journey round the world, accompanying an expedition for the construction, in northern Asia, of a telegraph line. His route was by the way of the Pacific Ocean, Kamtchatka, Northeastern Siberia, Amoor River, Mongolia, Chinese Tartary, Russia, and to France, 3,500 miles by sledges, and 1,500 on wheels. In 1873, he represented several newspapers at the Vienna Exhibition, and afterwards visited the Crimea, Greece, Asia Minor, Palestine, Egypt, Nubia, Spain, Algeria and Morocco, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Holland.

In 1877, he began his second journey round the world, going by way of Japan, China, Siam, Java, Ceylon, India, Egypt, to France, where he served on the international jury at the Paris Universal Exposition in 1878.

Several volumes resulted from his varied travels. As a writer for young people in his peculiar line, he is unexcelled. In 1881, the King of Siam honored him with the decoration of "The Most Exalted Order of the White Elephant," the first ever given to an American, as his testimonial to the merit of his "Boy Travellers in Siam."

Since 1878, Colonel Knox has resided in New York, engaged in literary work. He was one of the earliest members of the Lotos Club.

The following is a list of his books:—Camp-Fire and Cotton Field; Overland through Asia; Backsheesh; Underground; John, or our Chinese Relations; How to Travel; The Young Nimrods in North America; The Boy Travellers in Japan and China; The Boy Travellers

Samuel Trask Parker, son of John, Jr., and Esther (Baker) Parker, was born in Pembroke, September 20, 1814. He was educated in the common schools and Pembroke Academy. When not in school he assisted in the store of his father and uncle, kept under the firm name of John & Bailey Parker. Before he was of age he went into business for himself at Concord. A few years later he went to Boston, Mass., and engaged in the grocery and commission business. He was successful as a merchant, established a reputation for honesty and fair dealing, and accumulated an ample competence. He resided for a time in Boston, but in 1850 purchased a place in South Reading, now Wakefield, Mass., and there made for himself and family a permanent home. Though during the last few years of his life his health was impaired, with a steadfast persistency he continued his business, taking an occasional trip here and there for recreation and recuperation. In this way he visited England, France, Florida, and other places in the United States. While ascending the Hudson river in a steamboat on one of these trips, on his way to Albany, N. Y., he was suddenly stricken at the table, and died in a few hours, June 2, 1879, and was buried in Lakeside cemetery, Wakefield.

He married Margaret, adopted daughter of Moses and Emma (Col-vard) Patten, of Albany, N. Y., October 25, 1849. His wife died March 21, 1887.

Moses Richardson, son of David and Sally (Shackford) Richardson, was born April 29, 1775. He came to Pembroke with his father in 1789, and lived in town till his death. He was a farmer, member of the Methodist church, and, for a time, class leader; a man of unblemished character, and highly respected.

He married Lois K. Garvin of Concord, June 17, 1796, and died July 28, 1870. His wife died December 19, 1856.

Moses Richardson, son of Moses and Lois K. (Garvin) Richardson, was born August 16, 1806. He spent his life on the homestead farm in Pembroke. He was industrious, financially successful, a member of the Methodist church, and an esteemed citizen.

He married (1) Sally Parker of Pembroke, March 15, 1827, who died March 3, 1866; (2) Mrs. Martha Ann (Sargent) Dodge of Pembroke, November 12, 1869; and died August 1, 1881.

Hon. Boswell Stevens was born at Pomfret, Ct., Nov. 10, 1782; graduated at Dartmouth College in 1804; read law with Hon. Amos Kent of Chester, 1804-7; in practice, Pembroke, 1807-36. He represented Pembroke in the legislature, 1814-16, and 1819-27; was intimately associated with Hon. Ezekiel Webster, and with him was always found on the side of law and order. In 1823, he introduced the bill creating Merrimack county; and later, one dividing the state into districts for electing representatives to Congress. He was judge of probate for Merrimack county, 1828-36. The late Judge Nesmith thus testifies to his ability and worth: "In all the stations or positions in life, both private and public, he occupied, he acquitted himself well. As a lawyer he was faithful to his clients, always ranking among our leading members, an ornament to our profession; as a judge, upright and courteous; as a citizen of his town, deserving the honors and trusts so often and so willingly bestowed." Hon. Moody Kent said of him in 1863: "He was exceedingly acceptable as a judge, for his integrity, learning, and industry."

He was one of the founders of Pembroke Academy, and benefactor, leaving it $1,000, trustee and secretary till his death in 1836, a valuable citizen, and highly respected. He died Jan. 15, 1836.

He married (1) Jane, daughter of Joseph Kent of Chester, May 19, 1810; and (2) Catharine Hale, daughter of Noah Emery of Exeter, May 9, 1814.

His youngest son, Ivan, graduated at Dartmouth College in 1842, read law with Hon. James Bell, and Hon. Amos Tuck, of Exeter, and was in practice in Lawrence, Mass., till his death in 1880.

Boswell Stevens, was born in Pembroke March 29, 1815; fitted for college at Pembroke Academy; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1835; studied two years at Andover Theological Seminary; teacher, Hinsdale and Barre (Mass.) high schools, and Worthington Academy; editor, *N. Centennial, 1874; Church and Parish: A Club Essay, 1877; Henry Chapin, as Judge of Probate, 1878; Worcester Churches, 1719-1889; Illustrated Worcester, 1890; The Company of the Mosell: a souvenir of travel; Illustrated, Cambridge, 1891. He died Dec. 13, 1893.

He married Caroline Elizabeth, daughter of Seth Caldwell of Barre, Mass., Sept. 7, 1852.

Edmund Erskine Truesdell, son of Thomas and Mary (Boyden) Truesdell, was born in Jewett City, Conn., March 3d, 1845. Soon after his birth, his mother died at Newton Upper Falls, Mass. He was educated in the common schools, and Comers's Commercial College, Boston. After graduating he re-entered the cotton mill as second overseer of the carding department, and so continued two years, when he was promoted to overseer of the cloth room, and the additional duties of shipping clerk, and assistant superintendent. When the Webster mill at Suncook was started, he was tendered a like position on a much larger scale at the Pembroke and Webster mills, and accepting, entered upon his duties October 20, 1866. When the China mill was started in 1869, his duties were greatly increased, but Mr. Truesdell was able to answer the demands. In 1870, he was appointed paymaster and superintendent of the three mills to fill an existing vacancy, and so continues, faithfully and ably fulfilling the onerous duties of the position.

Mr. Truesdell was town treasurer of Pembroke for four years, from 1878 to 1882; a member of the lower branch of the New Hampshire legislature in 1879 and 1880, and state senator in 1887 and 1888. He belongs to the Masonic fraternity, and is past master of Jewell lodge, which he was instrumental in forming. He has taken all the degrees in the York and Scottish Rites up to the 33d degree. He is also a member of Aleppo Temple (Nobles of the Mystic Shrine); of The New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association; and New Hampshire Club. He is a man of unquestioned ability and enterprise, a member of the Baptist church, deeply interested in all that pertains to the moral welfare of the village in which he resides, and liberal in his charities.

He married Mary Wilkins, daughter of David Austin, June 11, 1872, who is connected with one of the oldest families of the town. By this union they have one son, David E. Truesdell.

Hon. Aaron Whittemore, son of Hon. Aaron and Lydia (Fisk) Whittemore, and great grandson of Rev. Aaron Whittemore, first minister of Pembroke, (then Suncook,) was born in Pembroke, November 4, 1808. He was educated at Pembroke Academy. In early life he was interested in the state militia, and held positions of captain, lieutenant-colonel, colonel, and finally was promoted to brigadier-general of the Third brigade, June 1, 1851. He represented his native town in the legislature in 1849 and 1850, and was also a member of the Constitutional conventions of 1850 and 1876. He was appointed associate justice of the court of common pleas for Merrimack county, July 1, 1853, and held the position until the courts were changed. He was also interested in the establishment of the People's Literary Institute and Gymnasium, and was chosen secretary of its board of directors, and afterwards served as its president. He was elected trustee of Pembroke Academy in 1863, and held the position until his death. He served in every important office within the gift of the town. A high minded, honorable gentleman, dignified, courteous, and hospitable, he was one of those men whose presence gives character and dignity to the community in which they live. Possessed of superior natural intellectual powers, with a thorough acquaintance with men, his practical experience in the management of local and public affairs, always laboring for judicious economy in public expenditures, his influence was strongly felt, and the fact that Pembroke has so long been free from a public debt attests the result of his labors in her behalf, and no man who ever lived in Pembroke has a clearer right to the favorable remembrance of his fellow townsmen. His sound judgment and recognized integrity caused his advice and opinions to be sought not only by his own townsmen, but by those of neighboring towns. He died at Pembroke, March 26, 1890, at the ripe age of 82.

He married Ariannah S. Barstow of Exeter, December 13, 1840.

Hon. Aaron Whittemore, Jr., son of Hon. Aaron and Ariannah S. (Barstow) Whittemore, and the fifth in succession to bear the family name of Aaron, was born in Pembroke, January 18, 1849. He was educated at Pembroke Academy, and Harvard Law School; studied law with Hon. John M. Shirley of Andover, and was admitted to the bar in 1870. Soon afterwards he established himself in Pittsfield. By fair dealing, strict integrity, and loyalty to his clients, he soon secured an extensive law practice, and with it the confidence and respect of the whole community in which he lived. In 1883, he was elected state senator from the Pittsfield district by a popular majority, and served on several of the most important senate committees. Son of a brigadier-general, he himself became active in the state National Guard. He was for five years captain of Company D, Weston Guards, of Pittsfield, of the Third Regiment, and on May 28, 1884, was appointed judge advocate on the staff of Brigadier-General White, with the rank of major. As a lawyer he was a sound and sensible adviser, and a loyal advocate in the interests of justice. As a citizen he was known as a man of broad and liberal habits of thought and expression. and was identified with all the public enterprises that concerned the welfare of his adopted town. He died May 4, 1885, at the age of 36, leaving a widow and three children.

He married Achsah L. Cheney of Bradford, September 27, 1876.

James Wilson, son of Joshua and Dolly Wilson, was born in Andover, Mass., June 27, 1796. He came to Pembroke in 1825, and was trader on Pembroke Street, near the Whitehouse place, till 1841. He was administrator of many estates, and long a leading citizen of the town; serving it as moderator of its annual meetings, selectman, and representative. He was secretary of the board of trustees of Pembroke Academy many years, and active in matters pertaining to education, in supporting religious worship, long did service in the choir of the Congregational church, and was largely influential in securing for it an organ. He was also secretary of the Merrimack Fire Insurance Company, and president of the First Congregational Society. He died in Pembroke, June 15, 1873.

He married Sarah Jane, daughter of Hon. Boswell and Jane (Kent) Stevens, of Pembroke, January 5, 1832.

CHAPTER XXVI.

THE NORTH, OR AMBROSE MEETING HOUSE.

Supplementary to what has been said in the Annals and Chapter XXII, in relation to the building of meeting-houses in Pembroke, and the intimation that every one, save the first and last, was the result of controversy, it seems proper to give in a brief separate chapter, more at length, the details concerning the building of the North, or Ambrose meeting-house, as, after the matter began to be agitated, more than a dozen years elapsed before its completion, during which time party feeling, as will be seen, often ran high, occasioning the calling of meeting after meeting, when votes would be passed only to be afterwards rescinded, till at last, weary of controversy, or, the coming of an era of better feeling, a final vote to locate and build was secured.

It is to be remembered that the first meeting-house in Suncook was built by the proprietors in 1733, near the north corner of the cemetery. The second, built on the same spot, which may be styled distinctively a Congregational house, was probably built about the same time as the Presbyterian house situated nearly opposite the house of Frank T. Cheney. These houses were built about 1760, after Pembroke was incorporated. It is not known whether one or both of them were built by the town; nor is anything known of the controversy between the opposing parties in relation thereto, since the parish records for that period were burned in 1767. As nothing appears on record showing that the town had anything to do with the final disposition of either, we infer that both were built by private individuals, and were private property. The location of these houses at the time they were built was probably as central as practicable, and undoubtedly satisfactory. As will be seen by map No. 1, about half the territory of Suncook was on the westerly side of the Merrimack river, while nearly all of the settlements up to 1759 were on the easterly side of the river, and that part extended from a line twenty or thirty rods above the old Soucook, or Head's mills, southerly to a line somewhere near Martin Otterson's in Hooksett.

When Pembroke was incorporated in 1759, only that part of Suncook on the easterly side of the Merrimack, and between the Suncook and Soucook rivers, was included. The remainder of the town was made up of Buckstreet, and the southeasterly part of ancient Bow. As, in time, the settlements were extended in the central and easterly parts of the town, the old meeting-houses could in no sense be considered centrally located, and the people were dissatisfied with their accommodations. After the old meeting-houses had been built some thirty or more years, and perhaps needed repairs, the subject of building a new one was agitated. At an adjourned town meeting holden May 28, 1792, the town voted to build a new meeting-house within forty rods of the pound. As might have been expected, this location, though near the centre of the town, was not satisfactory to those who had lived in the immediate vicinity of the meeting-houses, and places of holding town meetings. Nothing more appears to have been done during that year. February 4, 1793, a meeting was called "To vote the Spot of ground where the new Meeting house shall be built, and if not agreed upon by vote to see if they will choose an impartial committee to prefix the plan for said house to stand" and "To see what method they will take to build said house." It was undoubtedly intended that the impartial committee referred to should come from outside the town. From the action taken it would seem the majority of the town were inclined to do their own work. At the meeting it was "Voted to set the meeting house on Mr. Nathaniel Lakeman's land, forty rods from the corner of the road opposite the pound on the west-erly side of the third range road." At an adjournment of this meeting "Voted that the meeting house be built by sale of pews" "Voted to build the meeting house sixty feet by forty five" "Voted to choose a committee of seven to draw a draft of s<sup>d</sup> house and pew ground."

The meeting was then adjourned to October 1, 1793. It was then "Voted to accept the plan exhibited by the committee for the floor of the meeting house." At a meeting February 4, 1794, "Voted and chose a committee of five to number the pews as presented in the plan by the committee last fall as then made" "Voted and chose a committee of seven to make Sail of the pews at publick auction and receive security for the same, for which s<sup>d</sup> committee shall be accountable to the town."

Dr. Thomas Adams, who was then town clerk, entered upon the town records his protest against the proceedings of this meeting. After several adjournments the town met March 31, 1794, and chose a "committee of three to notify and wait upon the committee chosen to fix a place for the new Meeting house." It is not known what committee is here referred to, but we judge it was a committee chosen by those who were opposed to building the meeting-house near the pound.

At an adjourned meeting May 24, 1794, "Voted to accept the plan for the new meeting house agreeable to the recommendation of the committee." This vote seems quite vague, as it does not appear what plan is meant, or what committee recommended it. We have no knowledge that anything more was done during that year toward building a meeting-house. In the warrant for a meeting March 3, 1795, was an article "To see if they will establish the place to set the new meetinghouse near Mr. Ambrose, or if not voted near Mr. Holman's, if not voted at the place formerly pitched upon near the pound and this shall be considered to superceed all former votes respecting building s<sup>d</sup> Meeting house." Under this article "Voted to set the new meeting house near the pound." No other action was taken by the town for nearly two years in relation to building a meeting-house. In the call for a meeting January 23, 1797, were the following articles :

To see if they will vote to proceed by vote to build a new meeting house agreeable to a vote of said town and upon the plan that hath been exhibited to said town by the committee and if not voted

3<sup>ly</sup> to see if they will agree upon a new plan to better suit the good people of said town by building said new meetinghouse on the southeasterly corner of L<sup>t</sup> James Head's land where it best convenes for said house to stand south of Nathaniel Ambrose's house : and if not agreed upon by vote

4th to see if they will agree by vote upon any spot of ground in Pembroke to build said meeting house on and if any spot be agreed upon then

5th to see what other method they will take relative to building said meeting-house

The ifs of this warrant are significant as indicative of the public feeling on the subject.

The meeting, January 23, was adjourned to February 6, when it was "voted to build the meetinghouse on the plan that has been exhibited." "Voted to build the new meeting house on the southeasterly corner of L<sup>t</sup> James Head's land or as near that place as convenience will admit of." They voted also that Solomon Whitehouse, Maj. Samuel McConnell, Capt. David Kimball, Col. Nathaniel Head, and Dea. James Mann be a committee to buy the land ; and that Capt. Nathaniel Whittemore, Richard Bartlett, Esq., Daniel Knox, Esq., Dea. Nathaniel Lakeman, and John Knox, Jr., be a committee to make sale of the pews. Nothing more appears to have been done in relation to building the meeting-house till the annual meeting, March 5, 1798, when it was "voted to choose a committee of thirteen to divide money and travel of all those that paid according to poll and estate to find a place to set the new meeting house and report back to this meeting." Deacon Cochran, Major McConnell, Esquire Knox, Colonel Head, Esquire Adams, Lieutenant Bartlett, Caleb Foster, Isaac Morrison, Esquire Noyes, Nathaniel Head, Robert Martin, Daniel Mann, and Esquire Daniels were chosen for that committee. The meeting then adjourned to March 15, when they "voted to proceed to find a place to set the new meeting house," and adjourned to March 19, when they "voted to accept the report of the committee." The committee reported that "the centre of money and travel is on the south line of Dea. David Lovejoys home lot 40 rods east of the second range road." They then "voted that the meeting house stand on Lt. Head's home lot, as near the southeast corner as convenience will admit," and "chose Maj. McConnell, Esq. Head, and Esq. Daniels, a committee to buy the land and report at the next meeting."

We find no further mention made of this meeting-house till a warrant was issued for a meeting, December 24, 1804. The reader will remember that the controversies in relation to the line between Pembroke and Allentown, and in relation to the bridges over Suncook river, as related in our chapter on bridges, commenced about 1798, and were at their height during the interim between 1798 and 1804 ; hence the reason for cessation of internal hostilities. The line between Pembroke and Allentown having been established, the bridges over the Suncook built, that part of Bow east of the Merrimack annexed to Concord, and the line established between Concord and Pembroke, the combatants were again ready for the strife. At a legal meeting, December 24, 1804, a committee was chosen "to determine where money and travel will centre in the town for a spot to build a meeting house on." Then they adjourned to December 30, when the following report was made :

We the subscribers being chosen a committee to centre the money and travel in the town of Pembroke after due examination find it to centre at or near the pound. Signed Samuel McConnell James Cunningham John Ladd John Knox Jr Isaac Morrison Saml Emery Christopher Osgood.

It was voted to accept the report. Nathaniel Lakeman agreed to give the town one acre of land on the southeast corner of his lot near the pound, if they would build a meeting-house there. The town voted to accept it. They then chose a committee of seven "to Draw a plan of the house and vendue the pews." It would seem by this time that a portion of the town were determined they would not help build a meeting-house near the pound, and that another portion were determined they would help build no where else. The above, however, is the last mention in the records of building a meeting-house. By the records we find that, December 26, 1802, Nathaniel Ambrose, Chandler Lovejoy, John Knox, Jr., and Daniel Knox purchased of James Head one acre of land where the meeting-house was afterwards built. It is not known when it was built. The first town-meeting called in it was for August 11, 1809. We think, however, the house was commenced in 1805, and built by private enterprise, Dea. Nathaniel Ambrose being the largest contributor. The house was probably never properly finished, for, in 1811, there was a town-meeting called "to see if the town would raise two hundred dollars to repair or finish the house provided the proprietors would allow the town to hold their town meetings in it forever." It was not voted, and the town proceeded to build a town-house, as they had previously voted to do.

The Ambrose meeting-house was not distinctively denominational, but rather a union house.

In regard to the Congregational meeting-houses, we have no hesitation in saying that the first house built where the present house on Pembroke street stands, was built in 1807, for the reason that the annual town meeting for 1808 was called to meet at the "old Congregational meeting house," showing conclusively that there were then two Congregational meeting-houses, whereas before they were called to meet in "the Congregational meeting house," showing that there was but one.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SCHOOLS IN PEMBROKE—HIGHER EDUCATION.

Filled with the spirit and following in the footsteps of the Pilgrims, the early settlers of Pembroke, after making provisions for the regular preaching of the gospel, speedily adopted measures looking to the education of their children. The church and school, the meeting-house and school-house, were deemed indispensable to the public welfare, and given early prominence in their associated action. Ignorance, as well as bad morals, was to be avoided. Though the best schools they were able to furnish under the disadvantages of their times and surroundings, in most respects, would compare very unfavorably with those of the present with their ampler facilities and helpful appliances, and hardly be tolerated for a day, at the time they served well their purpose, and graduated many who rose to a commanding influence and made their mark upon the world. They were necessarily brief on account of the smallness of the general average of wealth in the community, and the consequent demands made upon the children at an early age to render assistance to their parents for the gaining of a livelihood, continuing, at the most, no longer than two terms of a few weeks each for the year. During the Revolution, owing to the extreme sacrifices inevitable in the struggle for independence, for some years no appropriations were made for them, and consequently the schools were suspended, the greatness of the need for supplies for the army, for the time becoming paramount in importance. Hence in the emergency the only instruction the children received was generally what parents could give them in the home. When the conflict was over, however, the schools were again resumed, and have continued with varying success to the present.

The teachers of those primitive times would hardly come up to the present standard of requirements in the way of qualification for the important and responsible office, but they served well their generation according to opportunity, and had much to do in moulding and shaping the character of those entrusted to their care. Possibly teachers of the present day, in their places, and with their advantages, might not do much better. The teachers and the schools were not to be despised, nor disparaged. They were surely the germs out of which the schools of to-day have been evolved. Gradually has the common school, where rich and poor have equal advantages, attained its present eminence in appliance and advantage for the successful prosecution of its normal work. Year by year under the growing pressure of demand for greater facilities and better teachers, there has been slow and steady growth and improvement, and the end is not yet! They are the sure fruitage of the wisdom that maketh wise, and are indispensable to the prosperity and perpetuity of our free republic. Palsied be the hand that would ruthlessly assail them for their destruction!

During those early times the people were so scattered, for the better accommodation of their children, it was necessary to divide the town into school districts or "quarters" as they were originally called, each having its own school-house and teacher. At the outset, the division was into four districts, which accounts for the name "quarters," then into seven, presumably because of increase of population, then successively into eight, nine, and ten, and afterwards again into nine, a part of one in the north part of the town having been set off to one in Concord, which was called "Union" district, so often mentioned in the annals, in the division of money annually appropriated for schools. This continued the prevailing custom for more than a hundred years. Each district was officered with a clerk whose duty it was to keep a record of the action of the district at its regular and special meetings, and a prudential committee to look after the school-house, furnish fuel, procure and pay the teacher. Later a law was passed requiring a superintending committee to be chosen annually by the town, or be appointed by the selectmen, to have the care of all the schools of the town, examining the teachers to ascertain their qualifications, visiting regularly the schools to note their condition, suggesting improvements looking to their greater efficiency, and having authority, for sufficient cause, to suspend or expel refractory pupils, and dismiss teachers. This committee was required to make annual reports to the town of the condition of the various schools, and their needs. The earliest reference to such report in the records of the town occurred in 1840, when the town voted to accept the report of the superintending school committee, place it on file, and return thanks to them for their services. The names of the committee making this report appear, but are not given for the three following years. In 1848 this committee were first paid for their services. In the absence of any record, we have no evidence to determine whether or not this committee made report to the town prior to 1840.

This was the established order till 1886, when by an act of the legislature the district system was abolished, and what is known as the town system created in its place. By this arrangement the whole town constitutes a single district, having graded schools, and under the care of a school board of three, one of whose members goes out of office each year to give place to a new one required to be chosen annually. This board has the entire control of the educational and financial interests of all the schools. This system, though by no means perfect, has decided advantages over the old, in that all may have equal privileges, save in the matter of distance, and a wise and liberal policy of administration ought to be fruitful in better teachers and better and longer schools. The schools of to-day are themselves an assuring testimony.

It would be pleasant and instructive to give, if we were able, a complete history of the common schools of Pembroke from the beginning, but this is impossible, and we must content ourselves with this meagre outline, simply premising that the town's action in reference to them year by year will be found in its appropriate place in the annals, and turn to a discussion of the higher education, the need of which early began to be felt.

In 1789 every town of fifty householders, or upwards, was required to provide a school-master to teach children to read and write, and every town of one hundred householders, to have a grammar school, kept by "some discreet person of good conversation, well instructed in the tongues."

About 1802 a movement was made to increase the educational interests of district No. 1, which then extended from the Meeting-house brook on the north, southerly to Allenstown line, there being then but one road through that part of the town where Suncook village now is. An association was formed, and June 22, 1802, Moses Foster deeded to the proprietors of the new school-house, land for a school-house containing 3,000 square feet, the bounds "beginning thirteen feet southeasterly from the southerly corner of the old school-house now standing on the premises." During that year the Columbian school-house was built. We present the following document :

We the subscribers being chosen a committee by the proprietors of the new School house standing near David Pinkertons on the Main road in Pembroke known by the name of the Columbian School house, to form a constitution by which said house shall be governed and the proprietors become subjects, do present the following articles

Pembroke January 24 1803 Signed Asa Robinson Christopher Osgood Joseph Swett Anthony S Stickney Solomon Whitehouse, Committee

The records do not inform us whether the working of this system was satisfactory or not, but it remained in full force till 1817, when the district was divided. At a legal town meeting held April 21, 1817, it was voted "That School District No. 1. be divided into two districts." "Voted that Solomon Whitehouse & John Whitehouse their homes farms and all the inhabitants living north of them constitute School District No. 1. and that James Wallace (who lived and kept store where James Wilson afterward traded) Jeremiah Morgan and Jeremiah Morgan Jr with their home farms and all the inhabitants of said district living South of them shall constitute School District No 8. in said Pembroke"

A meeting was called for May 13, 1817, "To see if the town will set off or annex Capt Solomon Whitehouse and Lt Samuel Whitehouse to village or lower school District." At the meeting voted to dismiss the article. Another meeting was called for June 30 following, "To see if the town will vote to set off or annex Capt Solomon Whitehouse Lieut Samuel Whitehouse & Joseph Seavey or either of them to School Dist No 8 in said Pembroke and to pass any other vote or votes relative to School Districts No 1 and No 8 that shall be thought proper when met" At the meeting "voted to dismiss the second article." Then "voted to dis-annul all former votes which have passed respecting the division of School District No 1, and that School districts No 1 and No 8 be considered one district." This vote had no effect, as there was no article in the warrant to unite the two districts. It only showed the feeling of the town. However, at the annual meeting in March 1818, there being an article in the warrant for the purpose, it was "voted that Solomon Whitehouse John Whitehouse and Samuel Whitehouse be set off and annexed to School District No 8 in Pembroke" This division of District No. 1 necessitated the building of two new school-houses, one to accommodate each district. Houses were built in each district where the present school-houses stand. We have no record which shows us what disposition was made of the Columbian house. To show the amicable feeling which existed we introduce the following documents.

there fore we the subscribers, being proprietors in said house hereby signify our assent and consent, that the same may be disposed of in such way and manner as shall be agreed upon by a majority of those proprietors who shall attend said meeting and we hereby engage to ratify and confirm whatever shall be done by the majority of said meeting. Kimball Daniel Noyes.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the Columbian school was a private enterprise and wholly controlled by the proprietors, or by their committee. They assumed responsibility for the necessary finances, but the selectmen were allowed to appropriate money for its benefit under certain restrictions, as specified above. The "Master," however, was to be chosen by the "Directors." All children and apprentices of the families living within the district could avail themselves of its offered privileges. Every tax-payer who was a proprietor, having no children or apprentice of his own to send, was given the right "to procure and send one scholar if he pleases."

We have no means of knowing why the name "Columbian" was given the school, what advanced studies were included in its course of instruction, nor the length of its school year, only that it was continued as long as the public money lasted.

It is to be noted that this school was given up, and the sale of the school-house authorized about the time the academy was projected as shown below. Though we are not certain that the matter had been thought of, or openly broached, previously, yet, if so, we can readily understand how the promise of larger and better facilities for instruction to be thereby afforded, may possibly have led the proprietors of the Columbian school to such action. In such case the unanimity indicated such growing desire for greater educational advantages, as led them to acquiesce the more readily in the new movement, and give up the old for the new. If other reasons influenced such decision, we have no intimation of what they were.

In 1807 the assessment for school purposes was increased, and the law requiring grammar schools to teach Latin and Greek was repealed. From that time laws have, with great frequency, been passed regulating educational matters. The act repealing the law requiring towns to have instruction given in Latin and Greek was probably owing to the fact that prior to this time nine academies had been incorporated. But whatever the decisive cause, it is evident that the class of work attempted by the Grammar schools was now left to academies. It appears that very early was felt the need of a classical education, and so the same spirit which had originated the previous enactments, led to the founding of institutions of a higher grade. In accordance with the law referred to above, the town had established a grammar school in a house located on land between the dwelling house of the late William Fife and the Ferry road, so called, one house then accommodating the people of Suncook and Pembroke street. Thus early in the history of Pembroke was evinced a desire to give to its youth a higher education.

About this time (1807) three men came to Pembroke, Dr. Abel Blanchard, Rev. Abraham Burnham, and Boswell Stevens, Esq., who, doubtless, had the shaping of the academy.

It was peculiarly fortunate for Pembroke that three such men should become identified with its interests. Dr. Blanchard did not possess a vigorous constitution, and his health began to fail about 1817. He died March 15, 1818. It appears that during his last illness he had a conversation with Rev. Mr. Burnham about the disposition of his property, and at his suggestion,<sup>1</sup> in his will dated January 15, 1818, Dr. Blanchard having no family of his own, after making bequests to his friends, left the residue of his property to found a "public school or academy in Pembroke."

The school, although for many years called "Blanchard Academy," was incorporated June 25, 1818, as Pembroke Academy. The first board of trustees, appointed by Dr. Blanchard, consisted of Rev. Abraham Burnham, Boswell Stevens, Esq., Daniel Knox, Esq., John H. Merrill, Timothy Barnard, Dea. Moses Haseltine, William Haseltine, Capt. Jacob Elliott and Rev. Jonathan Curtis.

In his will Dr. Blanchard expressed the desire that the people of the town raise funds adequate for the erection of a suitable school building. With this end in view, on the Fast-day following Dr. Blanchard's death, Rev. Mr. Burnham preached a sermon from the text, "Behold I set before you an open door and no man can shut it," and a subscription of $800 was then taken for this purpose.

The foundation was laid in October, 1818, and the building dedicated May 25, 1819, Rev. Jonathan Curtis of Epsom preaching the dedicatory sermon. The building was changed to its present external form in 1841. The interior was remodelled in 1866, and since has been repaired from time to time. At present it is in fair condition. A new one, however, complete in all its appointments after our modern standards, as a memorial gift of some prosperous graduate, or son of Pembroke, would be very timely and acceptable.

The school was opened with 48 students, May 26, 1819, under the instruction of Amos W. Burnham, afterwards pastor of the Congregational church at Rindge, and Miss Francis Newell. Thus was instituted a school which, with varied success, has never failed to open its doors regularly to welcome those who have sought instruction. Its stated object is "for the purpose of improving the rising generation in science, morality, and religion; also for the education of youth in the English, Latin, and Greek languages, writing, arithmetic, and other branches of literature commonly taught in the public schools." The aim of the trustees and teachers has been to carry out the object of the founder. It ought to be said that Rev. Dr. Burnham ever looked upon the institution as his child. He was president of the board of trustees from the establishment of the school until his death in 1852.

We insert here a list of the trustees from the beginning, with date of term of service as far as now known. The year followed by a hyphen indicates that the person is still in office.

Boswell Stevens, in 1836, $1,000; donation of Mrs. Mary T. Wilkins, widow of Jeremiah H. Wilkins, former treasurer of the board of trustees, $1,000; legacy of John C. Knox of Pembroke, a former trustee, $2,544; donation of Mrs. Betsey Whitehouse of Pembroke, in 1874, $1,000, and legacy in 1877, $2,000; legacy of Samuel P. Langmaid, Esq., of Somerville, Mass., a native of Chichester, in 1880, $5,000; of Hon. Asa Fowler, of Concord, a native of Pembroke, in 1885, $1,000; donation of Miss Sarah P. Eayrs of Boston, Mass., in 1892, $500; and of Ephraim Locke of Allenstown, for the benefit of indigent young men of Epsom, in 1892, $1,000.

In 1885, Guy T. Little, of Bismarck, North Dakota, a former student, bequeathed to the academy several thousand dollars, but it has not yet come into possession.

The academy has a library, which, though not as large as it should be, is constantly, by purchase or gift, receiving additions through the kindly remembrance of its friends. It was established in 1839.

A room in the academy has been set apart for an art gallery, in which may be found already several photographs and portraits of the alumni. There is also a collection of curiosities, useful in illustrating the customs and manners of former days.

The school has three courses of study, Classical, Academic, and English, fitting students for college as well as for a business life. Since 1877, classes have regularly graduated.

April 6, 1884, a post-graduate association was formed, including all persons who have regularly graduated and received diplomas. Also in 1887, an alumni association.

The board of trustees was so changed in 1863, as to include the friends of the People's Literary Institute and Gymnasium, an institution founded in 1841, and for some years a rival of the old school. Since this change there has been a union of sympathy and effort in the support of the academy.

PEOPLE'S LITERARY INSTITUTE AND GYMNASIUM.

Owing to some misunderstanding or differences of opinion, the relation of Isaac Kinsman, as principal of Pembroke Academy, in 1840, was dissolved, and he established a private school in rooms over the store of the late Jacob Sawyer. His friends rallying around him, formed an association, and erected the building now known as the Pembroke town hall. An act of incorporation was granted June 28, 1841. The following were the members of the association :

Joseph Baker,	Levi Baker,	Thomas Brickett,
James Carr,	Ruel L. Cram,	John C. Dearborn,
George W. Doe,	Benjamin R. Dow,	Joseph Emery,
Joel Fife,	Robert Fife, Jr.,	Seth Emery,
William Fife, Jr.,	Joseph Fisk,	Gardner Flagg,
Benjamin Fowler,	Thomas M. French,	Matthew Gault,
Jonathan Hamlet,	William Haseltine, Jr.,	Charles P. Hayward,
Francis Killam,	Joseph Kidder,	John E. Kimball,
Thomas Kimball, Jr.,	Joseph Knox,	Moses Haseltine, Jr.,
John K. McConnell,	Daniel Moore, Jr.,	James Moore,
Asa Morrill,	Samuel F. Hay,	Charles Noyes,
George Noyes,	Nathan B. Osgood,	John B. Paine,
William Parker,	Moses Richardson, Jr.,	Sterling Sargent,
Daniel Sawyer,	Jacob Sawyer,	David Webster,
Benjamin White,	Aaron Whittemore, Jr.,	Eleazer M. Wilson,
John C. Walcott,	John Wood,	Aaron Whittemore.
Oliver A. Woodbury,	John Yuran,

The capital stock of the association was divided into shares of ten dollars each, and any person of good moral character contributing one, or more, shares to the funds could become a member. The object, as set forth in section III, of the Act of Incorporation, was the establishing of an "institution of learning for the education and instruction of youth of both sexes in all the fundamental and liberal branches of education." It was further provided, "that in the choice of teachers for the institute and gymnasium, and in the bestowment of favors upon students, no preference shall be shown to any Christian sect or denomination, nor to any political party; nor shall any teacher or other officer in his official intercourse with the students be permitted to exert over them any sectarian or partizan influence."

The first meeting of the association was held August 25, 1841. Aaron Whittemore, Jr., was chosen chairman, and William Haseltine, secretary. The act of incorporation was accepted, and the following persons were chosen directors: Aaron Whittemore, Jr., William Haseltine, Jr., E. M. Wilson, Jacob Sawyer, Joseph Emery, Hall B. Mann, Francis Killam, Matthew Gault, Sterling Sargent, George W. Doe, Robert Fife, Jr., Moses Richardson, Jr., Benjamin Fowler, Joseph Kidder, James Moore, and William Parker.

For a few years the school was largely attended, and its friends were enthusiastic in its behalf. At one time considerable attention was paid to military tactics, introduced by Capt. A. Partridge, well known from his connection with the military school at Norwich, Vt., of which this school was made a branch in 1850.

After a time, the enthusiasm abating, and having no permanent fund, the school was allowed to suspend operation.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

ROADS IN PEMBROKE AFTER ITS INCORPORATION.

After the town was incorporated in 1759, it is probable that settlements were made more rapidly than before, and that more roads were needed to accommodate the settlers. As we have shown, the first settlements at Buckstreet were made between 1750 and 1755, four or five years, at least, before the incorporation of Pembroke; and, as a bridge had been built over Suncook river at Buckstreet, it is very probable that the main Buckstreet roads were fixed and traveled very near where they are now, before the town was incorporated. We are ignorant of the number and location of the roads laid out during the first eight or nine years after incorporation, by reason of the town records having been burned in the house of Thomas Robertson, the parish clerk, in 1767. At the next annual meeting, March, 1767, an article for that purpose having been in the warrant, "Voted that all the roads in said parish shall stand as they were formerly laid out and improved."

In the following chapter the dates, so far as can be ascertained, of the laying out of all the roads in town, except those that in a former chapter we have shown were laid out by the Suncook proprietors, will be given. All roads may be considered laid out by the selectmen, unless otherwise indicated. In describing roads we shall not be confined to language used in the records, but use such terms as will enable the reader to understand where the roads are, with such additional explanation as we deem necessary. In the records the words "established," "perambulated," and "opened," are used with nearly the same meaning, when applied to roads which had been laid out before, or to range ways. We shall use the term "laid out" in all cases where action was taken by the selectmen.

August 25, 1767, the cross road was laid out from the fourth range road, easterly by where Charles Fisher now lives (1894) to the fifth range way, thence northerly on said range way to the cross road, and on said cross road easterly to the sixth rangeway, near the Fuller place, so called, now owned by A. B. Foss. June 12, 1770, the road now called the "Hardy road" was laid out, leading from Buckstreet road, near Frank Thompson's house, to the sixth range road, a little north of the Fuller place. This road was laid out from Buckstreet northerly "between Samuel Jenness' house-lot on the west, and land of Jeremiah Gilman on the east, to the northerly corner of said Jenness' land, the road, two rods wide, all taken from Jenness' land. From said Jenness' corner, it runs north 7° east, through Peter Gilman's land, to a stake about two rods west of said Gilman's house, thence running north  $22^{\circ}$  west to the range road between Gideon Piper's and Nathaniel Gilman's land, and is two rods wide all the way." This laying out shows where Samuel Jenness, Peter Gilman, Nathaniel Gilman, and Gideon Piper lived in 1770. Samuel Jenness lived where Frank W. Stevens lives, Peter Gilman at the turn of the road northeasterly from the northerly corner of said Stevens's land, Nathaniel Gilman on the easterly side of the road north of the Fuller place, and Gideon Piper on the westerly side of the road, on land now owned by Warren D. Foss.

June 12, 1770, a road was laid out "from James Connor's house, till it comes over the brook to Benjamin Holt's land, lying and being on the road as now fenced out and improved." From this laying out it would appear that James Connor owned and lived on lot No. 12, part of which now constitutes a portion of the Asa Ames farm; and that Benjamin Holt owned and lived on lot No. 13, part of which now constitutes a part of Bliss Charles' farm.

November 26, 1770, a road was laid out, "beginning at the bridge betwixt James Connors and Lieut. Benjamin Holt's land from thence running about a northerly point as the road is marked, till it comes to an old logging path, and from thence running about a north westerly point, as the road is marked, till it comes to a white oak tree, marked, upon Epsom line." These two pieces of road constitute the road as now traveled from James Connor's house, somewhere north of True S. Pettingill's house, across the brook, northerly and northwesterly, to Epsom line near Whitehouse's bars, so called. The last piece mentioned was undoubtedly laid out to accommodate the travel from Epsom, to avoid passing up and down Martin's hill, as there is no mention that Pembroke laid out any road to connect with it till 1819, nearly fifty years after, when a court's committee laid out a road from the last mentioned road, across this part of Epsom to Pembroke line; and the selectmen of Pembroke laid out a road from the seventh range way, near Timothy Drew's house, to meet the Committee road, thus opening a new route of travel from the eighth range, or "Poor Town," as sometimes called, to Buckstreet.

November 25, 1771, the cross road leading westerly from the third range road, near where Isaac N. Lakeman now lives, to the second range road, near where Dea. John Mann then lived, was laid out. Ephraim Blunt owned the land and lived on the northerly side of said road, and Lieut. (afterward Major) Samuel McConnell owned the land and lived on the southerly side. Dea. John Mann lived on the west side of the second range road.

June 27, 1772, the second range road was re-established, beginning against the northwest corner of Joshua Kimball's land thence north-west till it comes to the cross road leading to where the meeting-house now is, then easterly to the range way, then northerly by the range way to the cross road leading easterly to the third range way near the pound. Joshua Kimball then lived on the east side of the second range road, south of the Academy road. We find no record of the laying out of a road from Joshua Kimball's land southerly to Buck-street road. Several times articles were inserted in the warrants for town meetings in relation to the matter; but from the action taken it would appear that Solomon Whitehouse, who owned the land, was opposed to the laying out of the road.

August 31, 1774, the "Borough" road, from somewhere near where Daniel Moses lives, was laid out to Chichester line, near the site of Simon Knowles' house, or near Hiram Stanyan's house, in Chichester.

March 24, 1775, the cross road leading easterly from the third range road, near John K. Robinson's house, to the fourth range way, and northerly on the fourth range way, to the cross road between the Haggett and Hall places; and that cross road, and the cross road called the Flag road, to the sixth range road, were laid out.

October, 1779, the seventh range road was laid out, beginning on Epsom line about one hundred and twenty rods southerly from Winthrop Fowler's house, thence northerly to the upper corner of lot No. 12, upon which Trueworthy L. Fowler now lives. Neither the northerly nor southerly part of this was ever used for a road, and the central part was afterwards laid out again.

November 3, 1786, the range road was laid out, leading northerly from the Haggett place to the cross road leading by the Hill school house. March 7, 1788, the cross road leading easterly by the house of Isaac N. Lakeman to the fifth range road, was laid out; and July 8, 1790, a road was laid out from the southwesterly part of Chichester, through Knox's "Rowell land" (which afterwards constituted part of the Pembroke poor farm) through the McCutcheon place, and the southerly part of Winthrop Fowler's farm, then owned by Nathan Piper, to said Piper's house, and thence to the seventh range way. The land owners, except Piper, gave the right of way. The town voted a portion of the seventh range way to Piper as compensation. It does not appear that this road was ever traveled much, and the exact location is not now known.

July 20, 1790, a road was laid out from near where the school house on the eighth range stands, northerly by where Trueworthy L. Fowler now lives, and by where Andrew Farmer then lived, on the hill northerly from the Snell place, then to the northerly side of "John Kelley's land," about sixty rods southerly from Charles S. Adams's house.

In October, 1785, Dea. James Robertson of Bow petitioned the selectmen for a road to a ferry which had been established to him on Merrimack river. A meeting was called "to see if they will vote to lay out a road from the main road to said ferry, where it will best convene the publick and said ferry." At the meeting, a committee, consisting of Maj. Samuel McConnell, Captain Head, and Captain Norris, was chosen "to view the several places for a road from the main road to Merrimack river, to know the terms the owners of said land will agree to." As no report is recorded and no further action taken in relation to a road in that direction for some years, we judge they were not very successful. In the warrant for a meeting, March 1, 1790, four years afterwards, there was an article "to see if they will vote that the selectmen shall lay out a road from the main road in Pembroke, in the most convenient place for the public good, to the old ferry place, known by the name of Baker's ferry, or to any place convenient." The record is, "voted that the selectmen lay out a road agreeable to the article." At a meeting in August, 1790, in the warrant was the following: "Whereas it was voted at the last annual meeting that the selectmen should lay out a road from the main road to Merrimack river, where it should best convene, between the widow Elizabeth Gould and Ensign Aaron Whittemore, this therefore is to see if they will vote that s<sup>d</sup> road shall be opened at the expenses it may be had for and if voted to see if they will vote money to purchase said road." At the meeting "voted to leave the 5th article discretionary with the selectmen to lay out the road and voted money to purchase s<sup>d</sup> road."

In the warrant for a meeting April 18, 1791, was an article "to see if they will vote that the selectmen shall assess the money that was voted last year to open the road from the main road to Merrimack river." The record states, "12th article voted." Notwithstanding the selectmen had thus been practically three times instructed to lay out the road, it appears they still hesitated, for the road was not laid out till December 25, 1792, when the following road was laid out: "From the main road to Merrimack river one rod each side the line between Ens. Aaron Whittemore's land and the wid<sup>w</sup> Elizabeth Gould's land,<sup>1</sup> from the main road on s<sup>d</sup> line one hundred and fifty two rods, then west 71° north on the said Widow Gould's land twenty rods, two rods wide, then north 79° west fifteen rods on Mr. John Knox's, two rods wide, then south 56° west thirty six rods to the river one rod each side the line between Mr. Jonathan Elliott's land and Mr. James Head's land." All the owners, except Ens. Aaron Whittemore, signified their satisfaction with the amount received from the town, and signed the report. Mr. Whittemore afterwards took the money which had been retained for him in the treasury. It is not known whether the ferry here mentioned, Baker's ferry, was where the first ferry was established by the Suncook proprietors, or whether there had been another ferry called "Baker's ferry," or whether Robertson's ferry had been established where Baker's ferry had formerly been. It is certain that Robertson's ferry was not at the site of the ferry established by the Suncook proprietors. The road above described served to accommodate Robertson's ferry, as we do not learn of any other road laid out to it.

As a matter of interest, to show the manner of laying out roads at that early date we give a copy of a petition, and the action of the selectmen under it, as recorded :

To the Select Men of Pembroke, Gentlemen there is a small Piece of Land Laying between my house and the Main Road, Running two and a half Rods on the Road, from the North westerly corner of Land that Joseph Swett Jun<sup>r</sup> Bought of Doct<sup>r</sup> Page, and one and a half Rods Easterly from s<sup>d</sup> Road to my house, the Lawful owner or owners is unknown to altho Lt Asa Robinson Pretends to Claim s<sup>d</sup> Land and has fenced the same so that I Cannot Pass from my house and Barn to s<sup>d</sup> Road, this is therefore humbly to Request you as soon as may be to Lay out a Road from my house to the Main Road upon the cost of the Petitioner so that I may Pass without Trespassing on any Persons Land. Caleb Bartlett then lived in the house afterward owned and occupied by Boswell Stevens, which stood where George P. Little's house stands. As the road then laid out, has never to our knowledge been discontinued, Mr. Little has a good right to pass from his house to the Main Road. The strip of land described in Bartlett's petition, as two and a half rods long and one and a half wide, was deeded to Jonathan Dix by Jeremiah Gilman in 1772 with a blacksmith shop on it, and in 1774, when Jonathan Dix deeded the house and land on the opposite side of the road, where Mr. Spaulding's house now stands, to his father, Jonathan Dix, of Littleton, Mass., he also deeded this strip of land and shop with it.

The land spoken of as being land bought by Joseph Swett, Jr., of Dr. Benjamin Page, was one acre of land that Doctor Page, who owned the Doctor Connor place or part of it, sold Swett upon which to build a store, and when Swett, in 1804, sold the house and land on the opposite side of the street to Benjamin Cushing, he sold this acre of land and store on it to Cushing. It afterward came into Asa Robinson's hands, and was again united with what was afterward known as the Haseltine place, and later, as the Langmaid place, now owned by John G. Tallant.

March 23, 1801, the range road northerly from near Mark Richardson's house was laid out, and May 28, 1801, the southerly part of this range road was laid out. On the same day the road from the northerly end of the third range near where William Simpson now lives, was laid out to the old Concord road, near where John H. Nixon then lived on the easterly side of said road about 20 or 30 rods northerly from where Emery Clough now lives.

November 7, 1801, the road leading westerly from the old Concord road, at the foot of the hill where said road turned northerly, was laid out about 12 rods to the Pembroke line. "to meet a road laid out by a Committee appointed by the Court of Common Pleas, to lay out a road from Concord Bridge to Pembroke." At this time Pembroke claimed the southeasterly bank of Soucook river as its northwesterly boundary line, hence they say "Pembroke line," instead of "Soucook river," or "Bow line." After that part of Bow east of Merrimack river was annexed to Concord, and the line between Concord and Pembroke was fixed as a centre of Soucook river in 1804, the road was built by Pembroke, and the bridge by the two towns jointly. The bridge was afterward called the "Elliott Bridge" because near the Elliott homestead. The road has since been discontinued, and the bridge has been gone many years.

January 5, 1802, a road was laid out "from a point opposite Richard Morse's house in a straight course across Suncook river below Osgood's saw-mill, to meet the road that comes down the hill from Chester and Allentown a sufficient width for public travel." In consideration of said road crossing Mr. Osgood's land, the selectmen gave Mr. Osgood that part of the old road which was then improved, between the ditch which conveyed the water to Mr. Osgood's mills and the river, Mr. Osgood agreeing to the change. The return was signed by Christopher Osgood, with Caleb Foster and David Kimball, two of the selectmen. The validity of this trade was afterwards questioned. In 1813, however, after the town had consented to accept the bridge built in 1802-3, the selectmen gave Mr. Osgood a deed of the land referred to, saying in the deed "it is part of the land conveyed to the Proprietors of Suncook for a road by John Coffrin by his deed bearing date, February 26, 1740, reference to which being had." We think this deed fully substantiates the position we have taken in relation to the location of the first bridge built over the Suncook river, the road leading to it, and the location of the first mills built at Suncook. Richard Morse's house stood where Emery's store stands, Osgood's saw-mill near where now is the Factory Company's cloth-room, the grist-mill a little east of the saw-mill, and the old road and bridge a little east by south east of the grist-mill. The ditch spoken of conveyed the water from the pond, or dam which was a considerable distance farther up river than the southeasterly end of the Webster Mill, to carry Mr. Osgood's grist-mill, and perhaps saw-mill. The road laid out was practically where the present road is, and crossed the river at the site of the present "Factory bridge." The road spoken of as coming down the hill from Chester (now Hooksett) and Allenstown, came down very nearly where the road now does, till a point was reached near the river, where it turned abruptly to the right, passed up river a short distance, and again turned to the left, passed over the river across the old bridge to the easterly side of the river, and then turned again to the left, passing northerly by the grist-mill and saw-mill to the present Main street. The first bridge built where the new road was laid out, was built in the winter of 1802-3 by private individuals.<sup>1</sup>

April 5, 1801, a road was laid out for the second time from a point southwesterly from Winthrop Fowler's house northerly to a point near the school-house. It was done the first time in connection with pieces north and south of it. In 1802, there was a petition to the Court to lay out a road from Buckstreet bridge to Soucook river, where the road had been laid out in November, 1801, on the route from Portsmouth to Concord, as nearly straight as the land will permit. This was to be a new road almost the entire width of the town. As it would be little used by people of the town, and would take travel from the Main street and Buckstreet, the town opposed it to the bitter end. Though never built, its history deserves notice. The town appointed Anthony S. Stickney an agent to oppose the sending of a committee to lay it out. It was laid out, however, in 1803, but never built, and not discontinued till 1822. The town was indicted for not building, and in July, 1807, Nathaniel Dearborn, a lawyer in town, was chosen agent to defend the town against the indictment. In December he was instructed "to pursue the discontinuance of the road." In April, 1808, the town voted to lay out a road from Soucook Hill to the Hill road, near John Head's, where Charles Glidden now lives, then down the Hill road to near the corner of the Lovejoy land, now owned by D. T. Merrill, thence to Buckstreet road, near Samuel Emery's, now William Goss', provided the new road be discontinued. In July after, the town instructed Dearborn to petition the Court for a committee to alter the road, or lay out a new one. In August, 1809, the town chose Col. Asa Robinson as agent to attend to an indictment against the town for not opening the road. In September following, the town "voted to open the road laid out by the selectmen in 1807, and discontinue the road laid out by the committee, and ask the Court to discontinue said road." In August, 1810, the town chose Asa Robinson an agent, "to quash the proceedings of the Court's committee in laying out a road over the Hill in 1803." In 1811, Robinson was again chosen an agent "to oppose the indictment." In January, 1814, Boswell Stevens, a lawyer in town, was chosen an agent "to defend the town against the petition for a road over the Hill," and again September, 1821, "an agent against the indictment," also January, 1822, an agent "to defend the town," and at the same time "advised the selectmen, with Aaron Whittemore, to run lines and look out new routes as a substitute for this road."

At the annual meeting in 1822, Mr. Stevens was chosen moderator, representative, and first selectman, in recognition of his executive ability and sound judgment. During that year the road over the hill was discontinued, and the Academy road laid out as a substitute. September 16, 1822, the town voted to raise $600, to build the Academy road, and fifty cents on a poll; also to raise $50 in addition, to defray the costs of the petition. The selectmen paid for costs $154.-83, and land damages for the Academy road, $480. It is probable the road was not built until the next year, as no tax was assessed, and the selectmen did not pay anything for that purpose till the next year.

In 1796, the first New Hampshire turnpike, extending from the Federal bridge in Concord to Piscataqua bridge in Portsmouth, was chartered and built, running through the extreme northerly part of Pembroke crossing Soucook river about 50 rods northerly from what was then Morrill's Mills, afterwards owned by Enoch Dickerman. The bridge was built and the road kept in repair by the Corporation till the company surrendered their charter.

In June, 1804, the Chester turnpike was incorporated authorizing the company to build a road from Chester street to Chester line in the direction of Pembroke. In December following the grant was extended to Pembroke street, just northwest of George O. Locke's house, near the brick school house. During one of the hearings, it is said that a Pembroke man claimed that if the road was laid out and built, it would be all the way down hill from Pembroke to Chester. When asked by a by-stander how it would be the other way, said it would be about the same. We are inclined to think the traveler would reverse it, and think it was all the way up hill both ways. The road was built the following season where now travelled. Simon Heath of Epsom built the first mile and a quarter from Pembroke Street, except the bridge, for $2.12½ per rod. Asa Robinson contracted to build the bridge over Suncook river for $1,000. Samuel Cofran, Asa Robinson and David Kimball, all of Pembroke, contracted to build a tavern house at the upper gate in Hooksett, for $1,990, and a stable for $450. These buildings have been burned, and the land where they stood is now owned by heirs of Jesse Gault. That part of the turnpike within the limits of Pembroke was laid out for a public highway, November 19, 1838, the proprietors having surrendered their charter.

March 19, 1805, the cross road was laid out leading from the main street, near the Brickett school-house, to the eighth range near the brick school-house. This road had previously, at different times, been laid out in pieces. December 28, 1808, the cross road was laid out leading easterly from the brick school-house at the eighth range to Chichester line, near Asa F. Hutchinson's house, and November 24, a piece of the sixth range was opened opposite Samuel Kelley's land, now owned by Brainard Gile. November 2, 1813, the sixth rangeway was laid out from near where William W. Fife lives, southerly to the cross road leading to Winthrop Fowler's, but never much traveled. May 24, 1814, the road leading from Buckstreet, near D. S. Batchelder's house, northerly to the cross road leading by where Charles Fisher now lives, was laid out. October 17, 1814, the road was straightened near the Noah M. Cofran house, the new road running south of the buildings, while the old ran north of the same. The change was made with Samuel Cofran, who then owned the farm. August 9, 1816, the road leading from Concord line, a little south of Dickerman's, now Richardson's, mills, by Mailand Prescott's house, and near William L. Robinson's house, to the old road near the Darius Snell house, was laid out. December 10, 1806, a road was laid out from near Winthrop Fowler's to Epsom line, near the McCutcheon place. The road, however, was not built, nor the laying out recorded till 1816. August 15, 1814, the northerly end of the fourth range road was straightened.

December 13, 1817, Glass street, leading westerly from the turnpike bridge to Main street, near the Factory bridge, was laid out. Part of this street had been reserved for a road by Mr. Osgood, when he sold for building lots. August 30, 1819, the road now traveled, was laid out from the seventh range road, northwest of Timothy Drew's house, southerly to Epsom line, to meet the road laid out by the Court's committee, referred to in the former part of this chapter. October 22, 1822, the Academy road, so called, was laid out, leading from Buckstreet road, near Mrs. Jane Lake's, to Main street, near the academy. October 25, 1822, the road was laid out from Allenstown line, near Charles Lovejoy's house, to Buckstreet road, near Bliss Charles' house. November 19, 1838, the Main street was widened and straightened from near the brick school house in Suncook, northerly to near George P. Morgan's house, taking the land from Jeremiah Morgan for that purpose. Mr. Morgan was awarded $60 for damages, the town to remove the wall to the new line in a workman-like manner. November 8, 1839, the road from the seventh range road near the brick school house to Chichester line, was widened on the southerly side. November 8, 1839, a road was laid out from the "Borough" road near William Simpson's house, on the northerly side thereof, to the sheep road. It was never much travelled. October 10, 1853, High street, in Suncook village, was laid out from Front street, northerly 648 feet. September 22, 1859, the road leading northerly from the cross road, by where Charles Fisher lives, to the fifth range road, was laid out. September 27, 1861, the road was laid out, leading from Buckstreet road near the house of D. T. Merrill, northerly to the old road. October 14, 1861, the road leading by George B. Colby's was widened from the cross road north of said Colby's, southerly to near where Norris C. Stevens lives, and also the road from there to Buckstreet road. October 24, 1863, Glass street was widened from the turnpike westerly. November 7, 1864, Depot, or Front, street and Exchange street were laid out. May 26, 1866, the Academy road was widened on the northerly side, beginning at Main street, and extending easterly. October 6, 1866, Kimball street, in Suncook village, was laid out from Main to Glass street. October 5, the road was laid out leading westerly from the "Borough" road, near Daniel Moses' house, to the "sheep bridge" so called. July 14, 1868, Glass street was widened from Main street easterly to the junction of Church and Glass streets. The selectmen awarded Joseph Emery, Joseph M. Emery, and Natt B. Emery $300 for land damages. They appealed, asking for an increase. The county commissioners awarded them $549.54. December 5, 1868, Broadway street in Suncook village was laid out. September 21, 1868, the Academy road was widened at the easterly end, near Buckstreet road. February 17, 1870, the road leading westerly from the Loudon road, about forty-five rods northerly from Emery Clough's house, to the "Doyen road," so called, at the top of Soucook hill, was laid out. October 25, 1871, Pleasant street in Suncook village was laid out. June 22, 1874, the Main street and Broadway roads were widened and straightened at their junction near Natt B. Emery's house. October 22, 1874, Glass street was widened on the southerly side from Main street, easterly to a point near the house of Cynthia A. Osgood. June 4, 1875, the cross road leading easterly from the Congregational meeting-house to the second range road, was widened on the northerly side. December 18, 1875, Glass street, from Church to Kimball street, was widened on the northerly side, and Church street, on the easterly side, from Main to Glass street, on the westerly side, from Main street southerly eighteen feet. Also the road leading from North Pembroke to Buckstreet, on the westerly side, from a point near where the Epsom road, by the house of Samuel Martin, intersects said North Pembroke road at the foot of Martin's hill, southerly and south-westerly, to a point near Hiram Batchelder's house. March 10, 1876, Main street in Suncook village was widened south of J. M. Emery's house. July 10, 1876, Maple street in Suncook village was laid out. July 10, 1876, Pine and Prospect streets in Suncook village were laid out. Also Union street leading from Main to Prospect street, south of the Methodist church. November 1, 1876, the road leading around Simpson's hill at the Borough was laid out. Also the road leading easterly from where Norris C. Stevens lives, was widened on the southerly side. September 23, 1878, Main street in Suncook village was widened on the easterly side from near the house formerly owned by Mrs. Mary T. Wilkins, southerly to near R. H. Paine's store. July 24, 1882, the old Buckstreet road leading by the house of J. H. Dearborn was widened on the southerly side from a point nearly opposite where the second range road intersects said road, westerly to the northwest corner of the land then owned by David Austin. August 18, 1882, the road passing by the house of Warren Hall was widened from a point eighty-eight feet from the northeasterly corner of James Dodge's land, westerly about twenty rods. May 17, 1883, Union street, leading westerly from Main to Prospect streets, was widened on the northerly side. The selectmen awarded the Methodist church $422.40 land damages.

May 12, 1884, permission was given the Webster Manufacturing Company to construct and maintain a railroad track across the highway in Suncook, "provided they will construct and maintain the same so that it shall not obstruct said highway, or render it unsuitable for the travel thereon, and provided also that they will at their own expense provide a flagman to be at the crossing of said highway at all times when cars and locomotives are passing across said highway, and provided also they will give the town of Pembroke a bond of $8,000 to do and perform the things to be done and performed by them as aforesaid, and to indemnify said town and save it harmless from all losses, costs, expenses, and damages to which it may be subjected by reason of any defect, or insufficiency in said highway accruing from the construction and maintenance of said railroad track across the same."

December 1, 1884, High street was extended northerly 429 feet. September 25, 1886, a road was laid out leading southerly from Glass street, near the house of Mrs. Ann Labontee to the Webster Manufacturing Company's land, 223 feet. November 11, 1889, a road was laid out from the road leading by Buckstreet mills westerly to land of Retyer M. Davis.

Early, when selectmen neglected, or refused, to lay out roads petitioned for, petitions might be presented to the county court to lay them out. The court appointed a committee of three to act upon such petitions, and report their action to the court. Such roads were said to be laid out by the "Court's Committee." Later, the office of "Road Commissioner" was created, and still later, "County Commissioner." These boards consisted of three members, whose duty it was to act upon petitions for roads. The following roads were laid out either by "Court's Committee," "Road Commissioners," or "County Commissioners." In 1825, the road leading from the old turnpike in Concord to Pembroke Street, on petition of Bradbury Tibbets and others, was laid out by "Court's Committee," and named, by those who opposed it, "Sheep Road," and the bridge over Soucook river, "Sheep Bridge," because, as they said, the principal use of it would be to enable its advocates, who were accustomed to drive their sheep on to the plains for summer pasturage, to have a better route for their sheep in going to and from their summer quarters, predicting that there would be very little other travel over it. This would have proved pretty accurate, had not a saw mill been erected soon after, just above the bridge, and other roads laid out to and from this road. In 1832, on petition of James McCutcheon and others, the road leading from the old road near the McCutcheon place, now owned by Winthrop Fowler, to the school house in Epsom, was also laid out by a "Court's Committee."

We here digress to notice the erection of the Free, or Middle, bridge at Concord, the first free bridge ever built over Merrimack river, because several of the roads to be mentioned hereafter were an outcome of the building of this bridge, and because of the important part Pembroke people took in the matter. They contributed liberally towards raising the necessary funds, and one of the most active of the building committee was a Pembroke man. We also notice it, because building this bridge was the primary cause of the decline and removal of the toll-bridge monopoly. The people of Merrimack county on the easterly side of Merrimack river, and especially those in the immediate vicinity of Concord, had for a long time felt aggrieved that they should be obliged to pay toll when passing to and fro from their place of business. Concord had secured the state house, state prison, county court-house, and jail, which meant all the courts and county offices. The Asylum for the Insane was also located there, and in 1838, was secured the northern terminus of the principal railroad in the state, thus drawing all the public business, especially of the eastern part of Merrimack county, to that place. Hence the people were dissatisfied to be obliged to pay tribute every time business called them in that direction. It was useless to appeal to Concord. Many of the principal citizens owned stock in one or more of the toll-bridges, and opening a free passage into town would be, like a two-edged sword, cutting both ways. It would not only lessen their income, and in the end probably ruin their interest in the bridges, but increase their taxes in the same inverse ratio. In the fall and winter of 1838-9, these complaints materialized in the form of subscription papers, which were circulated through the towns of Loudon, Pittsfield, Chichester, Epsom, Allenstown, and Pembroke, and perhaps others. A few of the people in the central part of Concord contributed liberally. The contributors met at Gass' Hotel in Concord, and chose John Gass and Nathan Call of Concord, Cyrus Tucker of Loudon, and Bailey Parker of Pembroke, a building committee. Nathan Call was master-builder. Four thousand three hundred and eighty dollars had been contributed. The next summer the bridge was built. After the contributed funds had been expended, the committee jointly advanced $1,300 of their own money to complete the bridge.

In the fall of 1839, two petitions for roads were presented to the court, one by Ira Osgood of Loudon and others, for a road from Loudon to Concord street over the new bridge, and the other by E. M. Wilson of Pembroke and others, for a road from Pembroke street over the new bridge to Concord street. The court appointed Henry Y. Simpson of New Hampton, Jonathan Gove of Acworth, and John Woodbury of Salem, a committee to act upon both petitions. Concord opposed both routes to the last extremity. Both were laid out, the one to Loudon first. Damages were awarded to 415 persons, to each who contributed, half as much as he contributed, awarding to Messrs. Gass, Call, Tucker and Parker, jointly, $650 for the money they advanced to complete the bridge. The committee's bill of costs for the Loudon road was $354. Owing to a neglect to notify one of the land-owners, the return for the Pembroke road was not accepted till March, 1840.

The Pembroke road was laid out where is now the traveled road to Concord, across the Soucook to the top of Soucook Hill in Concord, from there in direct line to the head of the gully in Concord, and then down the gully and across the bridge to Concord street, as the Loudon road had been laid out. The road in Pembroke has been called the "Doyen road," and the bridge the "Doyen bridge," because Franklin Doyen lived near the junction of this road with the old road.

In 1840, a road from North Pembroke, leaving the old road a little northwest of Frank P. Robinson's house, to the head of the gully in Concord, was petitioned for by Trueworthy L. Fowler and others. The court appointed Ira A. Eastman of Gilmanton, John Carr of Goffstown, and Horace Chase of Hopkinton, a committee. Pembroke now took a hand in opposing the march of improvement. The selectmen employed Deacon Fletcher, a lawyer of Concord, to oppose the road. The petitioners employed Franklin Pierce and Asa Fowler to act in its favor. A hearing was appointed at the North Pembroke school house. Witnesses were introduced by both parties, and counsel made arguments, Franklin Pierce making one of his ablest efforts. The road was laid out in 1840, and built in 1841. It was called the North Pembroke road, and the bridge, the Davis bridge.

In January, 1841, the Free bridge was carried away by an extraordinary winter freshet. Although the road and bridge had been laid out for a public road more than a year, still Concord refused to pay the award and take possession. By some of the people the freshet was regarded a blessing, believing and hoping it would be the means of getting the road discontinued. Not so the builders. They pluckily contributed again, and the same committee rebuilt the bridge, probably during the summer and fall of 1841. At a town meeting April 11, 1842, the following vote was passed: "Voted that in the opinion of the legal voters of the town of Concord the Free Bridge over Merrimack River, is in its conception, location and construction, impolitic, unequal and oppressive, and ought not to be continued at the expense of the town."<sup>1</sup> It is no wonder that this new bridge was considered an innovation, and a trespass upon the rights of the old bridges. It had been built about midway between them. The Concord bridge was first built in 1795, and the Federal bridge in 1796, each bridge to take the place of a ferry. They had enjoyed the monopoly nearly fifty years, and their owners felt that the outside public were bound, or should be bound, to support them for all time. The town was, however, indicted, and the matter carried before the court, with decision against the town. During 1842, the town paid the awards and assumed the ownership of the bridge and road, but were not satisfied. At the annual town meeting in 1843, the town chose a committee of ten men to procure the passage of a law by the legislature to allow the town to own all the bridges over the Merrimack river in Concord, and charge toll enough to pay the interest on the cost and keep them in repair. It was, however, too late for such action. Public opinion was opposed to toll-bridges, and in favor of free bridges, so the project failed. The Federal bridge was made free in 1850, and the Concord bridge in 1857. The county commissioners made the award that Pembroke should pay $1,000 towards making it free. Pembroke people, though believing it to be an unjust decision, were obliged to submit. Had the question been submitted to an impartial tribunal, we think the decision would have been different.

In 1844, the road leading from the old Buckstreet road, near the house of Hiram Batchelder, to Short Falls, was laid out by the "Road Commissioners," on petition of William Knox and others. The same year the road leading from Pittsfield to Concord line, at "Soucook Bridge," or "Turnpike Bridge," was laid out by "Road Commissioners," on petition of William Treat and others. It comprised as much of the old turnpike as is included within the limits of Pembroke. We have not learned when the old turnpike was first made a public road. We find the town expended money on it as early as 1824, from which we judge it may have been laid out as a public road before 1823, when Merrimack county was formed.

In 1847, the New Dover road, so called, leading from the old turnpike in Pembroke to the old "Canterbury Road,"<sup>1</sup> in Loudon, near the New Dover school-house, so called, was laid out by "Road Commissioners," on the petition of Andrew Seavey and others. In 1854, the road leading from the old Buckstreet road, near Martin H. Cochran's house, to Suncook Village, near the grist mill, was laid out by "County Commissioners," on petition of Norris Cochran and others. In 1859, the old Buckstreet road was widened and straightened from a point near the Hiram Batchelder house, to a point near the house of M. H. Cochran, by "County Commissioners," on petition of Rodney Carlton and others.

The reader will remember that in the account of the journey of the committee of the General Court of Massachusetts from Haverhill to Penny Cook, in 1726, it is said they "traveled in a cart path from Nutfield to Amoskeag Falls, from Amoskeag Falls along by the Merrimack river to Hooksett Falls and Garvin's Falls, fording the Suncook and Soucook rivers, then across the plains to Sugar Ball plains."

This was then the only traveled route through this part of the state. The same year a road was cut through the wilderness, from Chester meeting-house to Penny Cook, the nearest and best way, which, it appears, passed through Pembroke. Several years after the Provincial Government of New Hampshire made provision for a road from Durham, through Epsom and Chichester, to Canterbury. These were then the only roads leading northerly from Massachusetts and the southerly part of New Hampshire, through this part of the state. From this time roads were laid out as occasion required, and the ability of the people to support them increased. In time the country became more generally settled, and there was greater necessity for communication with the seaport towns for trade and other purposes. The people began to look about for better roads for travel, and easier methods for transportation. During the latter part of the last century the building of turnpikes for travel, and the navigation of the Merrimack river with boats for transporting goods, were agitated. In 1794, the legislature gave McGregor and Duncan the exclusive right to cut canals and navigate the Merrimack river "from the Isle of Hooksett to Winnepesoke pond." The time for completion was extended December 13, 1803, June 17, 1806, June 11, 1808, and June 3, 1810. "Blodgett's Canal Company," at Amoskeag, was incorporated December 24, 1798. The name was changed June 24, 1815, to "Amoskeag Canal Company." June 11, 1808, "Bow Canal," to go around Garvin's and Turkey river falls, was incorporated. The "Merrimack Boating Company" was incorporated June 18, 1812. June 16, 1815, John L. Sullivan was given the right to run steamboats on Merrimack river. June 27, 1817, the "Concord and Boston Boating Company" was incorporated. July 2, 1823, the "Boston and Concord Boating Company" was incorporated. June 17, 1836, the right to run steamboats to Plymouth was granted.

"The first boat, loaded with freight from Boston to Concord, through the Middlesex canal, arrived in Concord June 23, 1815."

We are not sure when the citizens of Pembroke first availed themselves of boat navigation on Merrimack river. In the deed by which Mr. Osgood conveyed land to the Pembroke Cotton Factory Company in 1811, a landing near the mouth of Suncook river is mentioned, but not the boat or storehouse. There was afterwards a storehouse there, where the boating company could unload and store goods till the owners could take them away. The landing mentioned may not have referred to a boat landing, but a place where timber was drawn to be put into the river and floated to market, as was the custom in former times. After the advent of canals and locks, by means of which boats could be taken up and down the river by the falls, timber was cut into logs of suitable length, sawed into boards, piled, and fastened together in cribs, as they were called. The cribs were fastened together in rafts, and the rafts were floated down the river to the head of the falls. Each crib was then put through the locks and canal, by the falls, and again put together in rafts, and floated to the head of the next falls. Sometimes when there was no canal around the falls, the cribs were made of such size that they could be loaded on wheels, by backing the wheels into the water and floating the crib upon the axle, and firmly binding it there. It was then drawn by oxen by the falls, and unloaded into the river again. This was done at Buckstreet and Suncook. Boards were put into cribs at Buckstreet Mills, drawn by the falls, put into the river, floated to Suncook, again loaded on wheels, and drawn to the landing at the mouth of Suncook river, where the raft was to be formed. The people of Pembroke, in common with others, enjoyed these increased facilities for travel and transportation of goods some thirty or forty years, till the advent of railroads towards the middle of the present century.

PORTSMOUTH & CONCORD RAILROAD.

The Portsmouth, Newmarket & Concord Railroad was chartered July 1, 1845. By an act of the legislature in 1846, Newmarket was dropped from the name, and it was called the Portsmouth & Concord Railroad, and chartered as such January 20, 1850. It was built from Concord, through Pembroke, Allenstown, Hooksett, Candia, Raymond, and Newmarket, to Portsmouth. It was completed in 1852, with a station at Suncook Village. The road was greatly embarrassed with a large debt from the start, and issued a large amount of bonds. July 14, 1855, the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad was chartered, and in 1857, purchased the railroad from the trustees of the bondholders of the former corporation, and has owned it ever since. Soon after this purchase, the Concord & Portsmouth Corporation leased it to the Concord Railroad. This corporation and its successors, under contracts made from time to time, have since operated it.

To accommodate the travel to Manchester, Nashua, Lowell, and Boston, a road was built from Suncook Village to Hooksett Village.

In 1861, the rails were taken up between Suncook and Candia, thus compelling the travel from Suncook to Portsmouth to pass through Hooksett and Manchester to Candia. In 1875, the station at Suncook was burned, taking fire from the engine. The present larger and more convenient one was soon after built, by the company, some fifteen to twenty rods northerly from the old site.

The Suncook Valley Railroad, though not passing through Pembroke, greatly improved the railroad accommodation of the town. It was chartered January 4, 1849, and, that charter expiring, again July 1, 1863. It was built from Pittsfield through Chichester, Epsom, and Allenstown, to its junction with the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad, a little south of Suncook Village. It was completed in 1869, and a station established in Allenstown, near Buckstreet Mills and East Pembroke postoffice. Regular trains to Pittsfield began to run December 6, 1869. The Suncook Valley Extension Railroad was chartered July 6, 1849, and now runs to Barnstead Centre, and ere long, it is hoped, will be extended to Alton Bay.

CHAPTER XXIX.

BRIDGES IN PEMBROKE AFTER ITS INCORPORATION.

In former chapters we have shown when the first bridge across the Suncook river, and the first two across the Soucook, were built, and also that in 1750 there was a contract made between the Masonian proprietors and persons proposing to settle at Buckstreet, that a bridge should be built over Suncook river there, within one year, and that said bridge was probably built before 1755. We will now proceed to give other facts in relation to these, and dates when others were built.

As no mention of bridges is made in the town records for the first twenty years after its incorporation, we infer that they were kept in repair by highway labor, and rebuilt, if ever, in the same way. In September, 1779, the town voted to raise $1,000 to build a stone abutment at Suncook bridge. This was during the Revolutionary struggle. The money then in use was issued by the Provincial government, and in such quantities that the people had small faith in its ultimate redemption, and so deemed it of little value. In March, 1780, the town "voted to raise nine thousand dollars to repair highways and labor to be nine pounds per day." In 1781, the town "voted to raise twenty thousand dollars to repair highways and labor at fifty dollars per day."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> After the settlement of the Provinces currency was a necessity for the transaction of business. In 1690, the Province of Massachusetts issued 7,000 pounds of paper currency in different amounts, in which New Hampshire shared the benefits. Between 1690 and 1741, there were eight other emissions of bills of credit, or fiat money. In 1741, the Provisional government took measures to redeem all bills of credit that had been issued, and decreed that they should be valued at only one fourth of their original face value, and they were styled old tenor. In 1742, the government made another issue of bills of credit, which were styled new tenor. Hence it was necessary when making a contract, or selling property, to state whether the debt should be paid in old or new tenor money, one pound of the latter being worth four of the former. These bills gradually depreciated. In 1720, an ounce of silver was equal in value to seven shillings and six pence in currency; in 1740, to 120 shillings, or sixteen times as much. After the commencement of the Revolutionary war, the Provincial Congress at Exeter, in June, 1775, issued 10,050 pounds of currency or bills of credit; and in the July following, 10,000 more; and in 1776, 2,000 more. In July, 1776, the Continental Congress at Philadelphia issued bills of credit to the amount of 2,000,000; and 40,000 pounds of this issue was assigned to New Hampshire. In December following, 3,000,000 more of the same currency was issued. For some time this money passed readily at par, but, for various reasons, it gradually depreciated in value, till it became worthless.

After the close of the war there was a change. In March, 1785, the town "voted to raise three days' work to a single poll and in that proportion on all ratable estate to repair highways," and also, "that those that worked at the bridges over Suncook and Soucook rivers last fall, have credit out of the aforesaid tax for what work they then did, said labor to be set at three shillings per day." Thus will be seen the great change in the value of money, from 1781 to 1785.

It will also be remembered that at that time there were only two bridges over Suncook river, at Suncook and Buckstreet, and two over the Soucook, one where is now the Thompson bridge, and the other near Head's mills. The records do not show upon which of these bridges the work had been done the fall before, nor the occasion of their requiring the labor, but we are led to believe they had been badly damaged by a freshet, and perhaps some of them were carried away, leading the people to volunteer work to repair, or rebuild them. Buckstreet bridge stood, however, for we find in October, 1785, at a special meeting, it was voted to raise 150 days' work to repair it, and at an adjourned meeting, 150 days' work additional were voted for the same purpose.

In the call for a meeting October 20, 1794, was an article "To see if the town will vote to repair Buckstreet great bridge, so called, for the future."

The town, however, took no action. Such results seems to indicate that they were inclined to leave the care of this bridge to Allentown, regarding them as not within the limits of Pembroke. August 3, 1795. Frederick Foster was chosen to attend court "to answer to the complaint against the bridges." It would appear from this that the town had been indicted for not repairing the bridges. In March, 1796, the same matter came before the town, but no action was taken. Another meeting was called in June, 1796, "to see what method the town will take other than has been taken in relation to the presentment of Bridges." No action was taken. In August, 1797, at a special meeting, Maj. Samuel McConnell and Ens. Aaron Whittemore were chosen to defend the town against this presentment.

From the foregoing action and the circumstances following, it would seem that the town had been successful in warding off the support of the bridges over Suncook river, a decision giving them the right in point of law.

The result of such action of the town, and decision of the court, led the inhabitants of Allentown, in June, 1798, to present to the General Court the following petition :

To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> The Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened at Hopkinton on the first Wednesday of June A D 1798

Humbly Shows The inhabitants of Allenstown in the County of Rockingham, that in the year 1759 a township was incorporated in said County by the name of Pembroke bounded westerly by Merrimac and Suncook rivers Northerly upon Chichester and Epsom, Easterly and Southerly by Suncook river, that when said Pembroke was incorporated about one mile was taken off from the westerly part of Allenstown and included in Pembroke. That the inhabitants of Pembroke have unreasonably refused and still neglect and refuse to build or keep in repair any part of the bridges over Suncook river under pretense of their not being liable by law to build said bridges, nor any part of the same, said town being bounded by Suncook river in the act of incorporation, by reason whereof your petitioners are in danger of being compelled to build and keep in repair all the bridges across said Suncook river, a burden which your petitioners in their present situation are wholly unable to bear on account of the fewness of their number, and expense of maintaining and keeping in repair the other roads and bridges through their own town, that the public have a long time suffered much inconvenience and danger for want of good bridges over Suncook river and that said bridges are now in a ruinous condition, the lives of passengers being daily endangered in passing the same.

Your petitioners further show that if that part of Pembroke which was taken off from Allenstown with the inhabitants, was to be re-annexed to said Allenstown it would not be more than their just proportion of the Highway tax of said town to build and keep in repair the bridges over Suncook river.

Wherefore your petitioners Humbly pray that that part of Allenstown with the inhabitants thereof which is included within Pembroke by said act of incorporation may be disannexed from Pembroke and Joined again to that tract of land known and called by the name of Allenstown; That they may thereby be enabled to build and keep in repair the roads and bridges aforesaid or that such other relief in the premises may be afforded to your petitioners as your Honors shall think Just and proper. And they as in Duty bound will ever pray

At the same time another petition from sundry inhabitants of Pembroke was presented to the General Court, as follows :

Humbly Shews, Certain of the inhabitants of that part of Pembroke which was taken off from Allenstown in the County of Rockingham, that they and the public have long laboured and still labour under many and great inconveniences by reason of the badness of bridges over Suncook river. That the town of Pembroke have refused and still refuse to render any assistance towards building and repairing said Bridges, thereby in effect endeavoring to compell the town of Allenstown to build and keep in repair all the bridges across Suncook river which we conceive to be very unreasonable and unjust considering the fewness of the inhabitants and the expense of making and repairing their other roads and bridges. And being informed that the inhabitants of Allenstown are about petitioning your Honors to have that part of Pembroke afores<sup>d</sup> which was formerly Allenstown re-annexed to Allenstown for the purpose of enabling them to build and repair the bridges over said river Your petitioners therefore humbly pray your Honors that the aforesaid petition of the inhabitants of Allenstown may be granted that they and the public may no longer suffer for the want of safe and convenient Bridges over said river. And as in duty bound they will ever pray

The next November, John and James Cochran, Jr., signed and presented a petition of recantation in which they say they "would not have signed said petition had they rightly comprehended its meaning when presented them, they supposing the Petition had nothing further in view than only to request some assistance towards rebuilding and keeping in repair the bridge over Suncook river and for that intent only your petitioners put their names to said Petition without considering with that attention they would have done had they had any suspicion of the true meaning of said Petition; so they pray to be considered as never having signed it with an intent so injurious to themselves and the town of Pembroke at large." They were both prominent and influential men in town. They were Dr. John and Maj. James Cochran.

At the fall session of the General Court for that year, the following petition was presented:

Humbly shows The Inhabitants of that part of Pembroke in the County of Rockingham known by the name of Buckstreet, that the granting of two petitions presented to your Honors at the last session of the Honorable General Court held at Hopkinton on the first wednesday of June last (the one by the Inhabitants of the town of Allenstown in the County aforesaid, humbly praying to have annexed to said Allenstown a tract of land with the inhabitants thereof which they in their petition pretend to say was taken off from the westerly part of Allenstown and included in Pembroke when said town was incorporated, it being about one mile and the same tract of land which is called Buckstreet; the other by a few of the inhabitants living on said tract of land, praying that the aforesaid petition of Allenstown might be granted) would be greatly injurious and oppressive to your petitioners; that your petitioners never understood that the above mentioned tract of land was ever at any time esteemed a part of Allenstown, or that the inhabitants thereof had ever at any period of time any claim upon the same, by any grant whatever, or that Allenstown has as yet ever been incorporated, that by annexing the above mentioned part of Pembroke to Allenstown, Pembroke would be greatly injured as the necessary town charges would fall more heavily on the remaining inhabitants and they would be necessitated to class with some other town for the purpose of choosing a representative, as the number of inhabitants that would remain would be insufficient according to the constitution for the purpose, That the inhabitants of Allenstown can with far less inconvenience support the bridges over Suncook river than your petitioners having already a considerable extent of highway to maintain and by reason of the fewness of their number, find it exceedingly difficult to keep the same in proper repair for the accommodation of travelers and should the repairing and keeping in repair the bridges over Suncook river be added to what they already have to do in regard to the reparation of public roads they must inevitably sink under the burden and the public remain unaccommodated. That but two of the persons who signed the other petition said to be presented to your Honors by the inhabitants living on the before mentioned tract of land, were freeholders in said town of Pembroke, that in their petition they have stated that the inhabitants of Pembroke have refused and still do refuse to render any assistance toward building and repairing the Bridges over Suncook, which is altogether untrue; And it can evidently be made to appear, if necessary, by a number of respectable witnesses that the inhabitants of Pembroke, although obligated to do so, by no law whatever, the same being without the limits of their town, have invariably for the space of twenty years last past been at more than half the expense in keeping the aforesaid bridges in repair. That your petitioners together with the other inhabitants of Pembroke have ever heretofore approved themselves true friends and lovers of their Country in the most difficult times and have ever demeaned themselves as good citizens of the State and borne with cheerfulness their proportion of all public expenses and are still ready to sustain their part in whatever may conduce to the public good. Your petitioners therefore humbly pray your honors not to do them so incomparable an injury as to annex the above mentioned tract of land or any part thereof to Allenstown by granting the prayers of the aforesaid petitioners, which can be of but little advantage to said parties or the public at large in comparison of the vast disadvantage it will be to your petitioners and the town of Pembroke. And your petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray.

The foregoing petitions show so clearly the circumstances connected with the subject under consideration, the feeling and temper of all parties interested, for or against, the action which the General Court was asked to take, that further explanation is unnecessary. Although the General Court did not decide to grant the prayer of the petitioners directly, undoubtedly knowing that the grounds taken by the petitioners in asserting that when Pembroke was incorporated a strip of land was taken from Allenstown to make up the town of Pembroke, was an erroneous statement, they did pass an act making the easterly and southerly bank of the Suncook river the easterly and southerly line of Pembroke, giving the following reasons:—"The bridges across Suncook river adjoining said Allenstown are much out of repair and almost impassable; that the town of Pembroke did not conceive themselves under obligation by law to build said bridges or any part of the same; that the inhabitants of said Allenstown were few in number and by no means able to build and keep in repair said Bridges aforesaid." "Wherefore they prayed for relief by the establishment of such boundary line."

Whatever may be thought of the reasons for this action, it surely cannot be deemed strange that the people of Pembroke should be dissatisfied when they knew that the inhabitants of Allenstown were entirely relieved from all support of the bridges over Suncook river, and the whole burden thrown upon Pembroke. Had the decision made the centre of Suncook river the southeasterly line of Pembroke, as in 1804 the centre of the Soucook river was made the dividing line between Pembroke and Concord, throwing the support of the bridges equally upon the adjoining towns, Pembroke undoubtedly would have been satisfied; but as it was, the people felt that a great wrong had been done them, and they resolved not to submit to it, hoping that in the future they would be relieved. This hope, however, proved futile, and in the end, quite expensive. We think subsequent events have conclusively proved the decision wrong. At the present time Pembroke is supporting the whole of four bridges across the Suncook, and half of six over Soucook river, while Allenstown is supporting only one bridge of any account, that being the one over Bear brook, near the Ela place. It is sometimes argued in defense of this wrong, that Pembroke has the right to tax the mill privileges and mills on the southeast side of the river, which may in part be true, but of what account is it to Pembroke, or has it been? At the time of the passage of the act, there was but one set of mills on that side of the river. Now there are two, but how do the taxes received from these mills compare with the thousands of dollars which the town has paid for building and repairing the four bridges over Suncook river?

There is a well authenticated tradition that the representative to the General Court from Pembroke for 1798 was greatly alarmed on account of the petitions presented, fearing the prayers of the petitions would be granted, and Pembroke would lose that part of the town called Buckstreet, hence he voluntarily made the proposition that Pembroke would support the bridges over Suncook river, making the southerly bank the southerly bounding line of the town, averring that Pembroke would be satisfied with such action. If this tradition be true, less censure would attach to the General Court for its action; and little blame could fall on Allenstown for accepting favor thrust upon it thus unexpectedly.

Acting in accordance to the resolution referred to above, a meeting was called November 18, 1799, "to see if they will choose an agent to attend the General Court at its next session to act in behalf of the town in regard to the bridges over Suncook river, with such instructions as they shall think proper to vote for them." No action was then taken, but at an adjourned meeting, they chose Daniel Knox an agent to defend the town against the indictment of bridges, and instructed him to employ Jeremiah Mason, Esq., or any other of the best counsel that can be had. A meeting was called January 27, 1800, "to see what method they will take in regard to the indictment served on each of the Selectmen in behalf of the town in regard to the bridges over Suncook river." Maj. Samuel McConnell was chosen "to answer the indictment against the bridges over Suncook river."

Another meeting was called April 14, 1800, "to see what shall be done in regard to repairing or rebuilding the bridges over Suncook river." It is inferred from this that the agents chosen for that purpose, had not been as successful in warding off the indictments of bridges as before the act of the legislature, fixing the southeasterly line of the town. At the meeting, Maj. Samuel McConnell, Maj. James Cochran, Capt. Solomon Whitehouse, James Cunningham, Robert Martin, Robert Moore, and Dea. Nathaniel Lakeman, were chosen a committee to find a place to build a bridge over Suncook river as they think proper, but at an adjourned meeting the town voted "that the Selectmen repair the lower bridge over Suncook river, as they think proper." This must have been the bridge at Suncook, near Osgood's mills. They also voted that the selectmen should "warn a meeting to prepare a way for getting clear of the bridges." The meeting was called May 26, 1800, "To see what method they will take in prosecuting a review before the General Court in June next in regard to our incorporation being enlarged over Suncook river." Also, "to see what they will vote in regard to building a bridge over Suncook river and in appointing a place for said bridge and if voted and agreed upon, to see what method they will take to build said bridge whether by a committee for that purpose, or by vendue to the lowest bidder," and "to see how much money they will vote to build said bridge." At the meeting, Daniel Knox, Esq. was chosen "to regulate the business at the General Court." At an adjourned meeting June 25, 1800, the town "voted to build a bridge over Suncook river at the old place at Buckstreet Mills, by the mill owners finding the saw to saw the plank for covering both bridges, and likewise keeping the small bridge covering in good repair at their own expense, giving bonds to the town for the same." Joseph Swett, Jr., Samuel Emery, Ens. James Cochran, John Knox, and Maj. Samuel McConnell, were chosen a committee to build the bridge. They also voted to raise $50 in money, and $300 in labor, to build it.

At another meeting held July 31, 1800, Isaac Morrison, Ens. Aaron Whittemore, Maj. James Cochran, Robert Martin, and Josiah Haggett, were chosen a committee "to view the river and find a place to build the bridge." At an adjourned meeting the committee reported, "That they had measured the river at three different places. That at the lower end of John Ayer's land—now owned by D. S. Batchelder—they found the river sixty eight feet wide and good banks. At the bridge between the island and Allentown seventy feet, between the island and the bank this side, one hundred and seven feet, at the lower end of the island, judged one hundred and fifteen feet, and a little above the island, one hundred and two feet. They judged that a bridge could be built for one third of the money at the lower end of Mr Ayer's land, that it could at the old place; that it could be built at either of the other places for three quarters of the money that it could at the old place; and that in their opinion the lower place was the best." No action was taken.

Notwithstanding the above report, the following August, Samuel Daniell and Thomas Kimball bound themselves in the sum of $400 "to find the saw and mill at Buckstreet to saw the plank for the bridges, to be erected near said mills, at the place where the old bridge stood and to keep the little bridge covered at their own expense, and secure the island where the great bridge stands so as to warrant the bridge shall not be lost."

The bridges were probably built during the summer and fall, mostly by highway labor. The bond has a peculiar history, remaining in force from 1800 to 1824. Samuel Daniell, a prominent business man of the town twenty-five or thirty years, and holding nearly every important office, moved away and became poor. Thomas Kimball, with a perseverance worthy a good cause, sought to be released from the bond by securing the insertion of an article in the warrant for the annual meetings in 1809, 1813, 1819, 1820, 1823, and 1824, and for special meetings August, 1810, April, June, September, October, 1811, and December, 1822. Not till March, 1824, was he unconditionally released.

After providing for the building of the Buckstreet bridges, only the one above, and near Osgood's mills was a bone for contention to the town. In October, 1800, the selectmen issued a warrant for a meeting to act upon eight articles; of such a character and so clearly showing the feeling of the town, we give them entire: "To see if they will vote to build a bridge below Osgood's Mills," "If voted To see if the town will choose a committee to agree with Mr Osgood for the road to pass through his land and perform said business of building said bridge" "To see if the town will raise any money to perform said business, and if voted To see how much." "To see if the town will vote to call on any part of the delinquent Surveyors to work out their list of taxes to build any part of said bridge this fall." "To see if the town will inquire concerning a report in circulation that the selectmen gave unlimited orders to surveyors to work on a bridge without the limits of the town." "To pass any other vote respecting the building of said bridge." The town voted to pass over all the articles.

At a meeting called in April, 1801, "To see if the town will vote to build a bridge over Suncook river near Osgood's Mills as the old bridge is condemned as not safe to pass on longer, and if voted To see whether they will have it below the mills or where it now stands," both articles failed of a passage. In explanation, we add that Osgood's mills were what had been Cochran's mills, and stood where John Cochran<sup>1</sup> built the first mills in town. The saw mill stood near, or northwest of the factory company's present cloth room, and the grist mill a little farther east, or southeast, and the road and bridge still farther east, or southeast. In January, 1802, a complaint was made to the selectmen that the bridge near Osgood's mills was dangerous, and they called a meeting February 1, 1802, "To see if the town will vote to build a bridge over Suncook river at the foot of Osgoods Mills straight across to meet the road that comes from Chester and Allenstown down the Hill." "To see how much money and labor they will raise and to choose a committee to see that the money and labor is laid out to the best advantage." This article also failed of a passage.

By consulting the chapter on roads, it will be seen that the selectmen laid out a road January 5, 1802, from a point opposite Richard Morse's house straight across the river where it was then proposed to build a bridge. It will also be remembered that Richard Morse's house stood on the spot now occupied by Emery's store, and that the place at the foot of Osgood's mills, where it was proposed to build the new bridge, was where now stands the Factory bridge, and that the old bridge spoken of was up the river from Osgood's saw mill and grist mill.

At the annual meeting March, 1802, it was voted "not to give any money to build a bridge below Osgood's Mills." At another meeting March 29, 1802, the town voted to repair the bridge near Osgood's mills, and raised $10 in money, and $20 in work, but the following April another meeting was called "to see if the town would vote to build a new bridge at the foot of Osgoods Mills and to see how much money and labor they would raise for that purpose." The article failed to pass. At a meeting October 11, 1802, "to see if the town will vote to build a bridge over Suncook river below Osgoods Mills and to see what method the town will take in regard to the petition and order of notice thereon served on the Selectmen for the town not voting to lay out a road below Osgoods Mills," the town refused to build the bridge, and chose Isaac Morrison an agent to attend court and oppose an agent being sent to lay out a road below Osgood's mills.

It appears that the town was determined neither to repair the old bridge, nor build a new one, for between October 11, 1802, and March 7, 1803, private individuals built a bridge below Osgood's Mills, where the present Factory bridge now stands. Among the old papers of Isaac Morrison is a statement showing the amount of labor and materials used, and by whom contributed. We give the names of some of the largest contributors, with amount contributed by each :

Christopher Osgood,	56	18.00 and rum
David Pinkerton,	14	.34     “
Capt. David Kimball,	32	1.00

Maj. James Cochran,	28	1.00
Capt. Asa Robinson,	10	7.00 and rum

Others contributed one day's labor and upward. Whole number days' labor contributed, 517. Materials contributed, $50.11. This shows a good degree of public spirit even now worthy of imitation.

At the annual meeting March 7, 1803, the town refused to accept the above as a town bridge. At a meeting October 3, 1803, relative to accepting this bridge, and selling the old one, no definite action was taken. The records make no further mention of this bridge till October, 1811, when a meeting was called to see if the town will vote to repair the bridge below Osgood's Mills. Voted to pass over the article, yet empowered the selectmen to settle with Mr. Osgood, and the other proprietors of Osgood's bridge, so called, and make the exchange of land where the old bridge stood, and the new one is standing. In February, 1812, Boswell Stevens, a lawyer in town, was chosen agent to defend the town against the indictment for not keeping the bridge below Osgood's Mills in repair. In August, 1812, a meeting was called to see if the town will accept and repair the bridge over Suncook river, near the factory where it now stands, or whether they will erect one in some other place. The article was dismissed. Afterwards a committee was chosen to examine the several votes that had been passed.

At a meeting held November 2, 1812, “to see if the town will direct the selectmen to lay out a public highway from Christopher Osgoods to Allenstown line in a direction to Philip Sargents as the road is now traveled across Suncook river, also to authorize the selectmen to settle with claimants for building the bridge which is now standing over and across said river and for such part of the road as they shall find to be private property,” and “to see if the town will authorize the selectmen to dispose of and transfer such part of the old road from Christopher Osgoods to Suncook river as is not now occupied for a high way, in such manner as they shall think proper," the town voted to dismiss both articles.

At the annual meeting in 1813, it was "voted that the selectmen be empowered and directed to settle the whole business and make conveyances and receive grants of land relative to the Osgood bridge and their report being recorded, to be final and conclusive." This would seem to be the most comprehensive and sensible vote passed by the town during all this bitter bridge war, lasting more than fifteen years. We find no report recorded, but the first charge in the selectmen's account that year was for paying Christopher Osgood for the bridge near the factory, and repairs on the same, $50. We judge there was little else to report, as the road had been laid out in 1802, and an exchange of land made at that time by Mr. Osgood and the selectmen, both parties, as will be seen in the chapter on roads, signing the report.

In accordance with the report referred to above, we find on June 18, 1813, the selectmen deeded to Christopher Osgood "that piece or parcel of land that lies between the ditch that conveys water to the saw-mill now owned by the Pembroke Cotton Factory Company in said Pembroke, and Suncook river in said Pembroke, it being a part of the land that was conveyed to the original proprietors of Suncook, for a road, by John Cofrin by his deed bearing date the 26 day of February 1740, reference being had." This deed from the selectmen of Pembroke fully substantiates the position we have taken in our chapter on "Roads, Bridges, and Ferries in Suncook before the Incorporation of Pembroke," viz., that the first and second bridges built over Suncook were a little southeast of the Factory company's cloth room, and that Cochran's mills, built in 1738, were in the immediate vicinity, a little north or northwest, of said bridge.

The "Chester Turnpike" was chartered by the legislature in 1804. The "Turnpike Bridge," now sometimes called the "Osgood Bridge," was built for the "Turnpike Company," by Asa Robinson of Pembroke in 1805, for $1,000. The company supported the bridge till 1838, when, by the action of the selectmen, it became the property of the town, and since has been supported by it. Pembroke built a bridge in 1823, near where Charles Lovejoy lives, known since as "Upper Buckstreet," "Bombay," and "Lovejoy" bridge. This was carried away by a freshet in the spring of 1843, and a meeting was called "to see if the town will vote to discontinue the road," and also "to see if the town will vote to re-build the bridge." Both failed of a passage. The next fall the town was indicted for not rebuilding the bridge. In 1844, the town rebuilt the bridge, and has since supported one there.

As before shown, in 1737, the Suncook proprietors built a bridge over Soucook river, where the "Thompson Bridge" now is. After the incorporation of Pembroke, this bridge was left within the limits of Bow. For nearly fifty years after, little is known about its support. After the part of Bow east of the Merrimack was set off to Concord, and the line between Concord and Pembroke was fixed, in 1804, at the centre of Soucook river, all the bridges over the Soucook were built and supported by the two towns jointly.

In 1840, a road was laid out from the Free bridge in Concord to Pembroke Street, and the "Doyen Bridge" built in 1841. This bridge was carried away by a freshet in 1855, and rebuilt in 1856, Pembroke putting in the permanent stone abutment now there, that on the other side having been put in by Concord since. The "Elliot Bridge," next above, was built in 1805, and discontinued in 1860.

Very little is known of the two bridges next above the "Elliot." Neither is specifically mentioned in either the Suncook or Pembroke Records. The only reference is a vote passed in 1785, allowing "the men who worked upon the bridges over Suncook and Soucook rivers the fall before," credit on the taxes then raised. As then there were no bridges over the Soucook, except that where the Thompson bridge now is, and one of these, probably reference was made to the one near Head's Mills, and Pembroke people aided in building it. It is also very probable that the upper one, built by "Penny Cook" proprietors in 1731, had passed away before, or soon after, Pembroke was incorporated. Nothing is known when or by whom the one near Head's Mills was built, though undoubtedly early, to take the travel over the old Penny Cook, or Concord road; and that a road led from it directly to the old ferry over the Merrimack river, just above the Concord bridge. It was kept up more than twenty years after the building of the Elliot bridge. Mark Richardson, now deceased, said it was there in 1826, when he owned half of Head's Mills, or Soucook Mills, as they were then called; and that the flume that carried the water to the grist mill, passed under the bridge.

The first bridge, where "Sheep," or "McConnell's," or later, "Clough's," bridge now is, was built jointly by Concord and Pembroke in 1825, the year after the "Sheep" road was laid out, and has always been supported in the same way. The "Davis" bridge, next above, was so built in 1841, the year following the laying out of the North Pembroke road, and jointly supported since. "Dickerman" bridge, next after that, was built in 1817, after the laying out of the road to the eighth range road, so called, below what was then "Dickerman's" now "Richardson's" Mills. This bridge was carried away by a freshet in 1828, and during the summer and fall, a new one built above the mills, where the bridge now is, and a road laid out to it from the old road, though we are unable to find the record of it.

The next above, and last in Pembroke, is the "Turnpike" bridge. The "Turnpike Company" built the first bridge in this place in 1796 or 1797, and supported it many years. We find no record that the "Turnpike" was laid out as a public highway till 1844, when the county commissioners laid out a road from Pittsfield to Concord line at Soucook bridge, over the portion of the "Turnpike" road within the limits of Pembroke. Ever since the bridge has been supported in part by Pembroke.

CHAPTER XXX.

MERCHANTS OR TRADERS IN PEMBROKE.

Very little is known, or can be known now, of the early merchants or traders in Pembroke. The first of which we have any positive knowledge was John Cochran, afterwards known as Dr. John. He commenced trade before 1770, and was in trade till after 1790. We learn this from one of his account books which we have examined. From it we learn something of the nature and extent of his trade. He made potash, having two establishments for that purpose. He traded not only with his own townsmen, but with people from the adjoining towns of Bow, Allenstown, and Epsom; and in some instances with people from a greater distance, buying ashes of them and paying in goods from his store. Nearly all the credits were for ashes, with occasionally a little butter, corn, rye, peas, flax seed, and flax. He kept a large assortment of goods, consisting of hardware, West India goods, crockery, and groceries, including rum, molasses, tea, coffee, and sugar. We find no charge for tobacco, but in one or two instances a tobacco box was charged. From this we infer that when tobacco was used it was raised by the consumer. It will be remembered that at that time there were no railroads or boat navigation to bring goods into the country, no turnpike roads or horse teams to be used for that purpose; but that goods were drawn from the seaport towns of Portsmouth, Newburyport, Salem, and Boston by ox teams. Horses, when kept, were kept for horseback riding. These ox teams were loaded down with boards, oak lumber for ship building, hoops bound in bundles, shooks (staves fitted for casks and bound in bundles), and potash, with occasionally a little farm produce, including the housewife's domestic manufactures, such as stockings, or feelings, stocking yarn, tow-cloth, and diaper, as it was called, that is, cloth for towels, table covers, and other purposes.

Mr. Cochran appears to have been a man of enterprise and capacity for business, though he made no pretensions to an education, having been born and bred in a place, and at a time when schools were not in fashion, but rather Indian wars and hard work. Suncook was settled under the auspices of the "Suncook Proprietors." While they were careful to build a meeting-house, settle a minister, and provide for the payment of his salary, schools, school houses, or school masters are not mentioned in their records. If there were any schools in Suncook before Pembroke was incorporated, they were private schools supported by private contribution. We have seen no mention of such schools, hence say he was bred where there was no common school to acquire the rudiments of an education, no academy or high school to perfect such education if he had acquired it, and no business college to fit him for business.

We introduce some extracts from Mr. Cochran's account book to show the character of his business, and the habits and customs of the people at that early date. If the reader should find bad spelling, we ask him to consider the circumstances under which he had been reared, and remember that this man, uneducated as he was, had the capacity to acquire knowledge which enabled him in after life to become a noted and skillful physician. The writer well remembers, when a boy, hearing aged people tell of Dr. Cochran's wonderful skill.

There is a tradition that Mr. Dix traded in town before the Revolution in what was afterwards called the Merrill house, taken down by M. L. Spaulding to make room for his new house. Tradition does not state how long he traded there, or who traded there before him. We know a store was kept there many years afterward by John H. Merrill. In 1776, Thomas Morse, trader, deeded to Dr. Richard Bartlett the farm where H. T. Simpson lives. Morse had not traded there long, because John Knox had sold the same farm to Ebenezer Frye in 1772.

Morse's store was on the east side, and Bartlett traded there many years afterwards. Timothy Barnard commenced trade in town as early as 1799. It is supposed he commenced in Bartlett's old store. In 1800, he bought land and built the house owned by Joseph Warren, and afterwards traded there. Richard and Aaron Whittemore commenced trade at the Vose place as early as 1797. Richard remained in trade there several years after Aaron built his house, and kept tavern. Caleb, son of Richard Bartlett, was in trade several years. He lived in the house afterwards owned by Boswell Stevens, which he is supposed to have built, as well as the store which stood in the corner, south of the Congregational meeting-house, Bartlett sold his place there, ten acres of land with the buildings, to Zaccheus Colby, and Colby, in 1802, sold the same to Asa Robinson, and Robinson, in 1814, sold the house, one acre and 110 rods of land, to Boswell Stevens. From 1802 to 1804, Asa Robinson was in trade, as is supposed, in the store he bought of Colby. Joseph Swett, Jr., was in trade from 1800 to 1804, and perhaps longer. It is supposed he traded at first in the Merrill house where he lived. In 1804, when he sold to Benjamin Cushing what was afterwards called the "Merrill House," he also sold one acre of land on the easterly side of Main street with a store thereon, which land he says he bought of Dr. Benjamin Page. From this fact we think Mr. Swett built and traded in the above mentioned store. In 1797, Benjamin Fisk kept store and tavern at the same time. As the old store which stood northwest of where the late G. S. Blanchard lived, was on Fisk's farm, it is reasonable to suppose he traded there. Benjamin Cushing and Josiah Sturtevant commenced trade in town in 1804, and traded till Sturtevant's death in 1806. Cushing traded one year or more afterwards. It is probable they traded in the store Cushing bought of J. Swett, Jr., in 1804. In 1807, Mr. Cushing sold the house he bought of Swett to John H. Merrill who, it is supposed, built an addition to the house, fitted up a store in the same, and traded there many years. Barnard Brickett also traded in town in 1805-6. It is believed his store was near his father's house, where James Dodge now lives. David Pinkerton traded in 1800, but it is not known where. He lived near where Brainard Gile lives. As early as 1808, Aaron Mansur traded in the store which stood in the corner nearly opposite George P. Morgan's small house. Mansur's family lived in the house adjoining the store, as did Wallace's family afterwards. James Wallace traded there afterwards, and was followed by Isaac A. Porter. James Wilson traded in this store from 1825 till 1849. Moses Chamberlain traded in town from 1816 till 1835, when he sold out to Daniel Sawyer, Jacob Sawyer's father. Chamberlain traded one year with Jacob Elliott on the hill, and afterwards alone, first in the store at the corner south of the meeting-house, and later in the old store near where G. S. Blanchard lived, till he built a new store on the west side of the street. Joseph Noyes moved the old store across the street, and fitted it for a dwelling house. It was occupied by his son-in-law, Ruel L. Cram. It stood a little north of where the Sawyer family live, and was removed from there to Suncook village many years ago.

We think Joseph Farnum Foster kept the first store in Suncook village in 1813. The store in which he traded stood a little north of where Stephen A. Bates now lives. It was at one time used for a blacksmith shop, and later, by Stephen Bates for a bakery, and burned when Mr. Bates's house was burned in 1832.

Jeremiah H. Wilkins commenced trade in Suncook village in 1815, and continued till 1830. Those who have traded longest in Suncook village are, J. H. Wilkins, David Austin, M. B. Hazeltine, Eleazer Baker, William L. Morse, J. E. Chickering, R. H. Paine, and the Emery Brothers. The latter were in trade continuously from 1859 to 1890, and have been since as Emery Brothers & Co.

John and Bailey Parker commenced trade at North Pembroke in 1816, and continued till 1835, and Bailey till 1856. John Buss commenced business at Buckstreet in 1810. He traded in an old store on the southerly side of the road north of I. G. Russ's tenement lot. Buss deeded the store to Stephen Holt, Jr., in 1811. We are not sure he was the first to trade there. He was followed by Stephen Holt, Jr., David Ambrose, William Knox, Albert G. Pearson, J. C. and J. B. Cram, and Isaac G. Russ. Knox was in trade from 1817 till 1836, Pearson from 1834 till 1851, and Russ from 1860 to 1895—35 years, and so continues.

Jacob Elliott commenced trade on the hill, in a store which stood in the corner east of the old meeting-house, about 1810. John Knox, 3d, was in company with him two years, and Moses Chamberlain one. He was followed by Seth B. Newell, Benjamin Holt, Jr., and John K. Moore.

Below we give an alphabetical list of the several traders, and of firms who have engaged in legitimate trade since 1805, so far as we are able, with dates of time in trade. Where one date is given it indicates that the person, or firm, was in trade part, or all, of that year. If two dates are given it indicates that the person, or firm, was in trade part of both years with the intervening time. When this * mark precedes a name it indicates that the person traded outside of Suncook village. This † mark indicates that while the person probably traded outside of Suncook we are unable to fix with certainty the place. All others were in trade in Suncook. A dash following the figures indicates the person or firm as still in trade.

CHAPTER XXXI.

MILLS, MILL PRIVILEGES, AND MANUFACTORIES.

Mills on Suncook River: The first mills in ancient Suncook were built on the Suncook river a little north or northeast of where the factory bridge, so called, now is, by John Coffrin, or Cochran, as he afterwards spelt his name, in the year 1738, as appears by the following vote passed May 17, 1738.

"Voted that this committee should have power to pass a deed of the "mill lot" or "lot No. 1" with the stream according to agreement in case s<sup>d</sup> Coffrin Doth complete and finish his agreement with the committee of Suncook concerning Building Mills in s<sup>d</sup> Suncook and enter into obligation to saw for sixteen shillings per thousand to lay on logs and take off boards according to custom."

The proprietors of Suncook gave him a lot of land called "Lot No 1" or the "Mill Lot." It was given him as an inducement for him to build a saw-mill and grist-mill to accommodate the settlers. It extended on the northerly side of Suncook river, from a point a little north of the Webster dam, westerly to the Merrimack river, and contained 68 acres and 177 rods, as shown by the proprietors' plan and record. Within its bounds is now the most important part of Suncook village. In 1760, John Cochran, mill-wright, deeded to his son Thomas one half of his saw-mill and privilege. In 1768, Mr. Cochran deeded the "Mill Lot" to his two sons, Robert and James 3<sup>d</sup>, without reserving the half of the saw-mill which he had deeded to his son Thomas. In 1773, Samuel Daniell owned a fulling-mill<sup>1</sup> with privilege there. We could find no deed recorded conveying the privilege to him. In 1789, Daniell deeded his fulling-mill and privilege to Joshua Clement of Salem, Mass. In 1796, Clement deeded the fulling-mill and privilege, and one half the saw-mill and privilege, to Robert Chase of Haverhill, Mass. As we could find no deed recorded conveying any part of the saw-mill to Clement, we cannot tell whether he got his title from Thomas Cochran, or from Robert and James Cochran 3<sup>d</sup>. Chase deeded the same property to David Cross, and Cross, in 1799, deeded half the property to William Haseltine, and in 1801, deeded the other half to him. Haseltine kept his half of the saw-mill till 1811, when he sold it to the Pembroke Cotton Factory Company.

<sup>1</sup>The fulling-mill stood southerly from the grist-mill, perhaps between the grist-mill and the old bridge, or between the grist-mill and the river, so that to get into it one had to cross the ditch that carried water to the grist-mill.

He kept the fulling-mill, working at his trade as clothier, till 1838, when he sold it, with two carding machines in it, to Charles G. Prescott for ($1,800) eighteen hundred dollars. In 1860, Moses Martin, administrator of the estate of Charles G. Prescott, sold the fulling-mill and privilege to the Pembroke Mills Company. About 1792 or 1793, Robert Cochran, one of the brothers to whom John Cochran had given the mill lot and mill property, died, leaving a widow and one son, Joseph Cochran, Jr., who afterwards settled in Plymouth. The property was divided by a committee between James 3<sup>d</sup>, and Joseph Cochran, Jr. In 1794, Joseph Cochran, Jr., sold to his uncle, James Cochran 3<sup>d</sup>, the part that had been set off to him. At the same time his mother, Anna, who had married James Knox, released her right of dower in the property.

February 2, 1796, James Cochran 3<sup>d</sup> sold to Christopher Osgood all the real estate he owned in Pembroke, which included the grist-mill, half the saw-mill, and all the mill privileges on lot No. 1, except the fulling-mill privilege, and half the saw-mill privilege, both of which were owned by Joshua Clement. In 1801, Mr. Osgood sold to Charles Flanders the land where Flanders's blacksmith shop stood, with the privilege of taking water from the ditch that supplied water to Osgood's grist-mill sufficient to carry a trip hammer and blacksmith's bellows. This shop stood not far from where is now the centre of the Webster mill. In 1809, Flanders sold the shop, land, and privilege, to John Lewis and Leonard Pratt, of Weymouth, Mass. They made some addition to the shop, converted it into a paper mill, buying more land of Osgood and Foster, and manufactured paper in company several years. It was for many years called the Pratt paper mill.

In 1805, Mr. Osgood sold to Joseph Farnum Foster, and William Kimball, both of Concord, land joining Flanders's land on the southeast side, for a tan yard, with the privilege of taking water from the ditch sufficient to grind bark. In 1809, Foster sold this land to Lewis and Pratt. In 1806, Osgood sold to Joel Fox land for a blacksmith shop, with a privilege of taking water from the ditch to carry a trip hammer and bellows. This land was north of and adjoining Flanders's land, and southeast of the old bridge, which was where the first bridge built over Suncook river stood. Fox built the shop, and in 1813, sold shop, land, and privilege to Caleb Stark, who, in 1814, deeded it to the Pembroke Cotton and Woolen Factory Company.

In 1803, Mr. Osgood deeded to John Lewis, Edward Fuller, and, Enoch Wiswell, all of Waltham, Mass., about two acres of land extending northerly and easterly to near, or above, where the Webster dam now is. Upon this land and the land before mentioned, were built all the paper mills afterwards in Suncook, except the "Guinea Mill," which was on the southerly side of the river. Lewis, Fuller, and Wiswall built a paper mill, setting the mill, and putting a dam across the river near where the Webster dam now is. In 1805, Wiswall sold his share of the property to Fuller and Lewis, who carried on paper making in company. Fuller was unfortunate, having been suspected of manufacturing paper for counterfeit money, and the property passed into the hands of Mr. Lewis, who, in 1817, sold one half of the land, including the whole of the paper mill privilege and dam, to Charles K. Williams and Samuel G. Davis, the old paper mill having been burned. Williams and Davis built a paper mill where the old one stood. Davis was unfortunate, and in 1818 the property passed into Williams's hands. In 1828, Williams deeded to Stephen Bates one half of the paper mill and privilege. Bates and Williams then manufactured paper in company. The next year, 1829, Williams mortgaged the other half of the property to Bates, when the whole property passed into Bates's hands. The paper mill was burned soon after. About this time, or soon after, a contract was made, and Samuel Appleton built a mill on, or near, the same spot for manufacturing cotton batting or wadding, and perhaps both. Mr. Appleton was an ingenious mechanic, and is said to have manufactured the first glazed wadding ever made in this country. William Williams was for a time associated with him in the enterprise. The building, however, afterwards passed into Mr. Bates's hands, who in July, 1838, sold the land, mill privilege, dam, and Appleton building, to Joel Fife and John B. Paine. In December following, Fife sold out to Paine, who, in 1843, sold the whole property to Nichols and Brownell, when it was united with the other factory property. Nichols and Brownell put a planer into the building, the first one used in town. It was afterwards used by Joseph Wilson in which he manufactured knives and hammers. The building now stands between the Webster canal and the river, and is used as a boarding house.

About 1830, Henry Todd built on, or moved upon, the Lewis paper mill lot, owned then by Jeremiah H. Wilkins, a building in which he manufactured lead pipe. In 1833, Todd sold it to John B. Paine, who used it for the same purpose till he purchased the Appleton building in 1838. It stood a little east of the Lewis paper mill. It is not now known when Mr. Lewis built the paper mill which bore his name as long as used for a paper mill. It was at one time, for some reason, called the "Old Combine." It stood southeast of the Pratt mill, somewhere near where the southeast end of the Webster mill stands. Mr. Lewis sold the old paper mill privilege to Williams and Davis in 1817, and also the same year sold to Pratt his half of the Pratt mill, hence it is reasonable to suppose that he built this mill about the same time. The mill passed from Lewis by mortgage, or otherwise, to Jeremiah H.

Wilkins. Wilkins sold to John S. Bartlett, Bartlett sold to William Gordon, and Gordon, in 1848, sold it to Charles C. Nichols, who made the upper story into a public hall. He used the lower part several years as a dwelling house. After it came into the factory company's hands, it was moved to where the company's cloth room now is, and part of it used by Charles P. Morse for a tin shop. It has since been moved, and is now used by the company as a tenement house.

The New Hampshire Gazetteer, published in 1815, says there was then a nail factory in Suncook village. We learn that about 1814, Joseph Blanchard hired a portion of William Haseltine's fulling-mill, with water power, and manufactured nails there. We are not informed how extensive were his operations, or how long he continued in business. In 1811, Mr. Osgood sold to the Pembroke Cotton Factory Company about thirteen acres of land on the northerly side of the Suncook river, and extending westerly from the road to the landing near the mouth of the river; also his grist-mill, and his half of the saw-mill, with all the water privileges he then owned, or did own on the ninth day of March, 1809, below Fullers' and Lewis's paper mills. The company built a brick factory building. The property soon passed into the hands of Major Caleb Stark and his son Henry. Major Stark was the son of Gen. John Stark, who was noted for his patriotism and bravery during the Revolution. It appears that Major Stark and his son bought the stock of the Pembroke Cotton Factory Company, Caleb owning seventeen twentieths, and Henry, three twentieths. After the property came into the Starks' hands, the company was called the Pembroke Cotton and Woollen Factory Company. Stark and his son operated the factory several years. They took away the old saw-mill. In 1830, they sold all the factory property, including the land bought of Osgood with the buildings on it, the grist-mill, the saw-mill privilege, and mill yard, and the shop bought of Fox, to Joseph Dykes for $8,000. Mr. Dykes, it appears, had not sufficient capital for the enterprise, hence was not successful. He mortgaged the property back to Stark. The same year he mortgaged the same property to William Whitney, and afterwards gave Whitney a deed of the property to secure him from loss. In 1831, Dykes deeded one half of the property to Benjamin Hall and Walter Greenough, and at the same time gave them a mortgage of the other half, to secure them against loss on account of the mortgage to Stark. In July, 1831, Dykes deeded one half of the property to Elbridge Gerry, subject to the mortgage to Stark, and mortgaged to him the other half to secure the payment of the Stark note. The same day Gerry mortgaged one half of the property to Asa Ward, and assigned Dykes's mortgage to Ward. Gerry and Dykes undertook to operate the factory in company. In April, 1832, Dykes mortgaged one half of the property to Samuel F. Coolidge and Elisha Haskell, and at the same time gave them a bond to secure them from loss. In July, 1832, it appears, the company of Gerry & Dykes failed, and all their property, both real and personal, was attached. There was, however, an agreement made and signed July 20, 1832, between the parties interested, debtors and creditors, by which the property was put into the hands of Mark Healy of Boston, Mass. He was to operate the factory two years, working up the stock on hand for the benefit of the creditors. The persons who signed this agreement were, Elbridge Gerry, Mark Healy, Cooledge & Haskell, Joseph Dykes, Asa Ward, J. T. Austin, Thomas R. Gerry, Ann Gerry, Merchants bank, and C. P. Brooks. From the agreement we learn that Cooledge & Haskell's claim was $17,525, but the amount of other claims is not given, nor do we know how much any of the creditors received. In 1834, Dykes released Healy from all claim for the property. Healy afterwards went into bankruptcy.

May 26, 1843, Augustus H. Fiske, assignee of Mark Healy, deeded to Charles C. Nichols all Healy's right to the property of Joseph Dykes. The same day, Samuel D. Bell deeded to Nichols all the right he had acquired in the factory property by reason of the mortgage from Dykes to Stark. The same year, Charles C. Nichols and George Brownell bought Mr. Paine's building and privilege which he bought of Bates in 1838. They also bought William Haseltine's part of the Osgood saw-mill and also bought of John and Olive G. Lewis the old "Guinea Mill" privilege, with other real estate, not connected with water power. They became joint and equal owners of the factory and factory property, operating the factory in company. In 1844, they foreclosed the old mortgages of the factory property, to which they had acquired a right.

They took away the old factory building and built a larger and more substantial one, which was burned in 1859, after the property came into possession of the Suncook Manufacturing Company. In 1845, Nichols & Brownell mortgaged the property to Jabez Howe, Samuel Johnson, and George O. Hovey. In 1847, Brownell quitclaimed his right to the factory property to John Mixer and Isaac Pitman. Nichols sold half his right to John L. Hadley. The same year, 1847, the Suncook Manufacturing Company was incorporated, and June 21, Mixer, Pitman, Hadley, and Nichols deeded to that company all the property that Dykes bought of Stark, and all that Nichols and Brownell had since bought, with machinery and stock on hand, for $72,000.

The same year, the company bought of Edwin Kimball one fourth of the Osgood grist-mill, and of Edwin Kimball, Herman A. Osgood, and Ira B. Osgood, seven eighths of the Osgood saw-mill, and, in 1849, of John H. Osgood, the other three fourths of the grist-mill. In June, 1855, the Pembroke Mills Company was incorporated, and in September following, the Suncook Manufacturing Company, by trustees, conveyed all its personal and real estate to the Pembroke Mills Company. In 1860, Stephen Bates deeded to the Pembroke mills one half of the Pratt paper-mill, which had come into his hands from Charles C. Nichols to whom it had been deeded, in 1848, by Matthew Sargent, and to Sargent by James T. Gerry, to James T. Gerry by Ann Gerry, to Ann Gerry by Elbridge Gerry, to Elbridge Gerry by Benjamin G. Boardman, in 1831. At the same time he deeded to the company the Lewis paper-mill, which had come into his hands from C. C. Nichols, to whom it had been deeded, in 1848, by William Gordon, and to Gordon by John S. Bartlett, to Bartlett by Jeremiah H. Wilkins into whose hands it came by mortgage from John Lewis. In 1862, the Webster Mill Company was incorporated. Later, the Pembroke Mills Company quitclaimed to the Webster Mills Company certain real estate and water privileges which had been deeded to it, reserving the right to the exclusive control of the water in the Suncook river, excepting the right of drawing whatever amount of water said Webster company may have occasion to use through their canal for driving the machinery in their mill, or mills. The Webster company purchased other real estate, erected boarding-houses and a brick factory building.

In 1867, the China Mills Company was incorporated. In 1870, the Pembroke Mills quitclaimed to the China Mills Company certain real estate, including mills, dams, water privileges and buildings which had been deeded to said Pembroke Mills, making the same reservation as was made in the deed to the Webster Mills. The China Company purchased other real estate and built extensive boarding houses with a substantial brick factory building, all on the south-east side of the Suncook, within the town of Allenstown, but taking the water to drive their water wheel in a canal from the Suncook river which is entirely within the limits of Pembroke. From these facts, and the fact that their dam and business office is in Pembroke, we think this mill deserves, and is entitled to, our notice. In 1876, the three companies purchased Augustus Lord's right to control the water of the little Suncook river in Epsom and Deerfield.

The three companies, "Pembroke Mills," "Webster Manufacturing," and "China Manufacturing," are distinct from each other, each owning one mill, with other necessary buildings and water power. All manufacture print cloth. They are under one management. B. K. Weld of Boston is treasurer, David L. Jewell, agent, and Edmund E. Truesdell, superintendent and paymaster. The Pembroke Mill was built in 1860, after the mill built by Nichols & Brownell was burned. It is 273 feet long, 72 feet wide, has 20,000 spindles, and 422 looms, and is run by two turbine water wheels, aggregating 400 horse power, and for auxiliary power has two Corliss steam engines, aggregating 400 horse power. It employs 175 female and 80 male operatives, and the monthly pay roll is $6,000. It uses 1,000 tons of coal, 2,000 gallons of oil, and 1,200 pounds of starch per annum. It uses 24,000 pounds of cotton, and manufactures 110,000 yards of cloth per week.

The Webster Mill was built in 1865. It is 310 feet long, 72 feet wide, and for power has two turbine water wheels, 800 horse power, and for auxiliary power, two Corliss steam engines, 800 horse power, and employs 350 female and 150 male operatives, with a monthly pay roll of $12,000. It requires 2,000 tons of coal, 4,000 gallons of oil, and 24,000 pounds of starch per annum, and has 36,000 spindles, 900 looms, uses 35,000 pounds of cotton, and makes 225,000 yards of cloth per week.

The China mill was built in 1868, and is 510 feet long and 72 feet wide. The power used is two turbine water wheels, 1,000 horse power, and two Corliss steam engines, 800 horse power. It requires 3,000 tons of coal, 6,000 gallons of oil, and 36,000 pounds of starch per annum. It uses 60,000 pounds of cotton, makes 330,000 yards of cloth per week, and employs 500 female and 300 male operatives, with a monthly pay roll of $17,000. It will be seen that the three mills when in full operation use 119,000 pounds of cotton, and make 665,000 yards of cloth per week, making an approximate total for a year of 6,218,000 pounds, or 3,119 tons, of cotton, and 34,580,000 yards of cloth. The three mills were built under the management of Micajah Pope, agent for the several companies.

In 1800, Dr. John Cochran, James Buntin, and Benjamin Hall made and signed an agreement, which is now in existence, to build a "saw-mill and grist-mill on the south east side of the Suncook river on land the said Buntin sold the before mentioned Cochran and Hall." We find no deed recorded conveying land from Buntin to Cochran and Hall, but do find one, conveying from James Buntin to John Cochran a "mill privilege with one acre of land on the south east side of Suncook river with a privilege to pass and repass to and from the main road," dated December 4, 1801. From this, we infer that the agreement was not put in force, and that Cochran built a saw-mill himself, and that no grist-mill was ever built there. John Cochran built the saw-mill and owned it till 1818, when "John Cochran physician" deeded to John Lewis "a saw-mill and mill privilege in Allenstown on the Suncook river bank, the land extending from where Osgood's Mill dam stood in 1801, to the upper end of the falls proceeding from the lower eddy, so called, with the privilege of a road, also one full acre of land, also the dam which said Cochran built across Suncook river a few rods east of the paper-mill dam, with the privilege of building another dam if the present one is carried away." On, or near, the site of the saw-mill, Mr. Lewis built a paper-mill which was afterwards called the "Guinea Mill." Mr. Lewis, becoming involved in debt, in 1828, mortgaged it to Benjamin G. Boardman. In 1829, he again mortgaged it to Boswell Stevens. The property afterward fell into the hands of Elijah Thayer and Joshua C. Bates, who, in 1839, deeded it to Olive G. Lewis. In 1843, Olive G. and John Lewis deeded the mill privilege, with the right of flowage and right to build a dam, to Charles C. Nichols, when it became merged with other factory property.

OSGOOD'S MILLS.

The first saw-mill here was built on the southeast side of the river, in 1816, by William Kimball and his brother, Eliphalet, on William's land. In 1817, William Kimball deeded to Christopher Osgood three fourths of the saw-mill and privilege, and three fourths of the land and privilege for a grist-mill on the northerly side of the river. Mr. Kimball and Mr. Osgood built the grist-mill together, Mr. Kimball owning one fourth, and Mr. Osgood three fourths of it. In 1822, Eliphalet Kimball sold one eighth of the saw-mill and privilege to William Haseltine, and in 1843, Haseltine sold the same to Nichols & Brownell. In 1847, Edwin Kimball, Herman A. Osgood, and Ira B. Osgood sold the other seven eighths to the Suncook Manufacturing Company. In 1847, Edwin Kimball sold one fourth of the grist-mill to the same company, and in 1849, John H. Osgood sold the other three fourths to the same company. The saw-mill standing there now is owned by the Webster Manufacturing Company, and operated by Addison N. Osgood. The grist-mill there now (1895) is not in use.

BUCKSTREET MILLS.

It is not certain when, or by whom, the first mills at Buckstreet, on the southeast side of the river, were built. It is, however, probable that they were built by Jeremiah Gilman, or his brother, Col. David Gilman, prior to 1767, as at that time, in a deed from James to Thomas Lucas, "Gilman's Mills" are referred to. We have not been able to find any deed recorded conveying the privilege to either of the Gilmans.

In 1779, David Gilman of Pembroke deeded to David Dexter of Haverhill, Mass., what is now known as the Kimball farm (owned by Sarah P. Knox), his grist-mill and privilege, and three quarters of the saw-mill, saying in the deed that he had sold one quarter of the sawmill for twenty years, and that at the expiration of that time the privilege should revert to Dexter, but did not tell to whom he had sold it.

In 1785, Dexter sold one quarter of the saw-mill and privilege to William Knox, Jr., who lived where George B. Colby now resides. The same year, 1785, Dexter deeded one half of the grist-mill, one quarter of the saw-mill, with the farm which had been deeded to him, to Thomas Robinson of Epping, without saying what disposition he had made of the other half of the grist-mill and quarter of the saw-mill, but as we find that, in 1802, Samuel Daniell deeded to Nehemiah Ordway, Jr., one half of the grist-mill and one eighth of the saw-mill, we infer that Dexter had deeded these to Daniell, though there is no such deed recorded. Ordway held his half of the grist-mill till his death, about 1807.

In 1812, Moses Fitts of Candia, administrator of the estate of Nehemiah Ordway, Jr., sold Ordway's half of the grist-mill and privilege to John Bagley of Candia. In 1816, John Bagley sold his half of the grist-mill to Joseph Cochran, who afterward settled in Plymouth. In 1818, Joseph Cochran sold the same to John Carlton. In 1798, Thomas Robinson deeded his half of the grist-mill and quarter of the saw-mill and privileges, with the farm, to Thomas Kimball of Bradford, Mass., who kept his half of the grist-mill till 1827, when he sold it to John Carlton, who then owned the whole grist-mill and privilege.

This old grist-mill stood on the northwest side of the old saw-mill adjoining it. To get into the grist-mill one had to pass through the saw-mill, and step down several steps. In May, 1835, Carlton sold the old grist-mill to William Knox, James Martin, and Norris Cochran. The same year, Knox, Martin, and Cochran bought of Thomas Kimball, John, Daniel, Nehemiah, and Hiram Knox their interest in the island at Buckstreet. They then built a saw-mill practically where the present saw-mill is, putting it on the westerly side of the little stream, using the island for a mill-yard.

In 1837, John, Daniel, Hiram, and Nehemiah Knox, Josiah Richardson, Thomas Kimball, Mark Tilton, Daniel Clifford, and Alexander Salter quitclaimed to Knox, Martin & Cochran all their right and title to the mills and mill privileges in Pembroke and Allentown, called Buckstreet Mills. The new saw-mill was burned, but was soon rebuilt by its enterprising owners.

In 1871, Norris Cochran sold his third of the saw-mill and privilege to John Tennant. In 1874, William Haseltine, administrator of John Tennant's estate, sold Tennant's third of the mill and privilege to Samuel Martin and William Knox, into whose possession the other two thirds of the mill had come after the death of their fathers, James Martin and William Knox.

In 1885, Elizabeth A. and Sarah P. Knox, who, after the death of their brother, William, owned half of the saw-mill and privilege, and a portion of the Robinson fulling-mill privilege, sold the same to Samuel Martin, who then owned all of the mill and privilege. In 1894, Martin sold the mill and privilege to Reuben C. Moulton, who has repaired the saw-mill and made large additions, removed his shop from the Corbin mill, and increased his business.

We now revert to the old saw-mill. The fourths and eighths were divided into smaller parts and sold to different parties. Some of the deeds were recorded, and some were not. In 1815, John Knox, Jr., deeded to Josiah Richardson one-eighth part of the saw-mill and privilege, reserving the privilege for a blacksmith shop and trip hammer; and the same year he deeded to Josiah Richardson and Samuel Wells another eighth part of the mill, making the same reservation as before, saying that the privilege for a blacksmith shop and trip hammer had been bargained and sold. The same year, 1815, James Clark deeded one eighth of the saw-mill to Alexander and Webster Salter, which he says he bought of Nathan Goss. In 1824, Frederick McCutcheon sold to Josiah Richardson one-twenty-fourth part of the saw-mill.

It will be seen that this old saw-mill had a great number of owners, but in 1824, Daniel, Nehemiah, and Hiram Knox, Thomas Kimball, Jr., Josiah Richardson, Ephraim C. Robinson, Mark Tilton, David Clifford, Nehemiah Cochran, and Alexander Salter, into whose hands it had come, gave David Clark a warranty deed of the saw-mill "on the southeast side of Suncook river at Buckstreet with all the privileges belonging thereto."

Clark not only kept a saw-mill there, but built a grist-mill a few feet south of the old saw-mill, taking the water to it in a flume. In 1829, Clark deeded both mills with the house where Retyre M. Davis lives, which Clark had built, to David Clark of Plaistow, John Clark of Chester, and Nathaniel Clark of Sandown. In 1831, John and David Clark deeded the same property to John Richardson of Haverhill, Mass. In August, 1835, Richardson deeded the same to Josiah Rogers, Josiah Rogers, Jr., and Daniel M. Head. They mortgaged the same to the Concord Bank, and in due time it came into the possession of the bank. In 1841, the Concord Bank deeded the property to Joseph Gregg of New Boston, who mortgaged it back to the bank. The mills were burned, and the privilege came back to the bank.

In 1844, the Concord Bank gave Theodore French and Lewis Downing a quit-claim deed of the mill privilege, house, and land. In 1845, French and Downing deeded the same property to William L. Morse and Moses Martin. They built a building there which they used for a bedstead factory, and other purposes.

In 1851, Morse sold half his interest in the Robinson fulling-mill privilege, and the old saw-mill privilege and building on it, to Jacob D. Putnam. The same year he deeded the remainder of his right to Putnam. In 1852, Martin sold his interest in the same property to Putnam. The building was burned, and in 1856, Putnam sold the mill privilege to Charles L. Cofran and Asa Ames. In 1857, Ames sold his interest in the property to Cofran. In 1865, Cofran sold the property to Samuel Martin and Norris Cochran, who built the building now there, which was for some time used by Thomas B. Wattles and Thomas Bond as a twine manufactory. It has since been used for a grist-mill and spoke manufactory.

In 1880, the heirs of Norris Cochran's estate, sold said Cochran's half of the building and privilege to William Knox, and in 1885 Elizabeth A. and Sarah P. Knox, sole heirs of William Knox, sold their interest in the property to Samuel Martin, and in 1891, Martin sold the entire property to Hiram M. Fisher, upon whose death in 1894, it came into the hands of his son, Charles Fisher, who is now operating the same.

ROBINSON'S FULLING-MILL.

In 1809, Ephraim C. Robinson bought of Daniel, William, and John Knox, Jr., and Thomas Kimball, Jr., four sixteenths of a privilege for a fulling-mill on the westerly side of the island at Buckstreet below the bridge. We are not sure he had any title from any of the other mill owners, as we found none recorded. He built the fulling-mill and occupied it, working at his trade as clothier for many years. In 1848, he deeded the mill and privilege to his son, Andrew J. Robinson. In 1849, William Knox, Norris Cochran, and James Martin bought one half of the mill and privilege, and Moses Martin and William L. Morse bought the other half. The mill has been gone many years. The privilege was owned, we think, mainly by Samuel Martin, but in the spring of 1894 it was sold to R. C. Moulton.

MILLS ON THE NORTH-WEST SIDE OF SUNCOOK RIVER AT BUCKSTREET.

About 1786-87, John Ayer, Job Abbott, and James Cochran, Jr., built a saw-mill on the northwest side of Suncook river at Buckstreet, near where Joel M. Corbin's mill stands, occupied by R. C. Moulton. It was built upon Ayer's land, which he bought of Thomas Lucas in 1769. In 1788, Ayer deeded James Cochran, Jr., "one third of a mill-yard on the northwest side of Suncook river called the new mill." In December, 1788, John Ayer, James Cochran, Jr., and Job Abbott gave Thomas Robinson a bond for one hundred pounds, "that they would neither build a grist-mill nor suffer any other person to build one on any of their land so long as said Robinson or any of his heirs shall own or possess the grist-mill near the Buckstreet bridge." We can only infer why this bond was given. As the old mill near the bridge had been built some twenty or thirty years it probably needed repairing, or rebuilding, and it is probable that Robinson hesitated to do it, fearing the persons who had built the new saw-mill, would also build a new grist-mill, hence the bond was given to induce Robinson to repair, or rebuild. In 1789, Job Abbott deeded one third of the saw-mill to Richard Bartlett. We have not found any deed recorded conveying the mill property from Bartlett, nor do we find any deed conveying the interest of James Cochran, Jr., but we find in 1803, Samuel Phelps deeded to Samuel Cochran, Jr., four ninths of the saw-mill on the northwest side of Suncook river, owned in partnership with Timothy Ayer. We find no deed conveying this property from Timothy Ayer, but we find a deed recorded from his brother, John Ayer, 2nd, dated December 29, 1807, by which he conveys to James Parker of Dorchester one quarter of a saw-mill, which he says he bought of Timothy Ayer. We find no deed recorded conveying any of this mill to Nathan Goss, but we find a deed dated January 6, 1808, by which Nathan Goss conveys to James Parker of Dorchester, one quarter of a saw-mill on the west side of Suncook river. The same year, 1808, James Parker of Dorchester deeded to Jacob Norris of Dorchester, one half of a saw-mill and mill-yard on the westerly side of Suncook river at Buckstreet, with a blacksmith shop on the mill-yard, a house lot, and house frame on it. The blacksmith shop is the one now standing near the bridge, and the house lot with house frame is now owned by Isaac G. Russ, where his store is. In 1809, Jacob Norris deeded the same property that Parker deeded to him, to Nehemiah Cochran of Pembroke. We have not been able to find any deed recorded conveying any of this mill or privilege from Nehemiah Cochran, nor any deed conveying any part of the same to Samuel Cochran, Jr., except the four ninths conveyed by Phelps in 1803. There is a tradition that the saw-mill was burned and never rebuilt. We are not sure that Samuel Cochran, Jr., ever had any title to more than four ninths of the mill or mill privilege. About 1850, Mr. Cochran leased the privilege to Jeremiah F. Page for the purpose of erecting a spoke-mill. Mr. Page manufactured spokes there several years, taking water for that purpose.

In 1868, Samuel Q. and Asa F. Cochran, executors of their father's will, sold the privilege and surrounding property to Joseph W. and Thomas B. Wattles. In 1871, Joseph W. Wattles sold the same property to Sarah E. Corbin. Joel S. Corbin built the building lately occupied by R. C. Moulton, and rented it to Mr. Doubleday for the purpose of manufacturing twine. Doubleday put in machinery, and operated it for some time, but the enterprise not proving as profitable as was expected, he took the machinery away, and the building was for several years occupied by R. C. Moulton for manufacturing doors, screens, boxes, trunks, and a variety of other wood work.

MILLS ON THE SOUCOOK RIVER.

But little is known of the early history of the old "Soucook Mills" which were designated at different times by different names as "Foster's Mills," "Clement's Mills," "Heads Mills," etc. Asa Foster bought the land where these mills were afterwards built, of John Noyes in 1756. In 1765, Foster bought of Francis McCoy other land adjoining this, in describing which "Foster's Mills" are spoken of, showing that mills had been built there previous to that date. Foster sold two acres of the land he bought of Noyes to Samuel and Reuben Kimball, as a privilege for a saw-mill. It is not certain that they built a saw-mill, as no deed could be found recorded conveying the property from them. It is, however, evident that Asa Foster built the first grist-mill, and retained the ownership till 1791. We have been able to find no other record in which this mill is mentioned till 1777. Major James Head, who was the father of Nathaniel Head, Jr., who settled in Chester, now Hooksett, and uncle of Gen. Nathaniel Head, came into Pembroke from Bradford, Mass., about 1770, and settled where John Ham, lately deceased, lived. He was mortally wounded at the Battle of Bennington, and died in camp there, August 31, 1777. Three days before his death he made a will, dated Camp Bennington, August 28, 1777. In this will he gave his son Nathaniel, five shillings, his oldest daughter, Betsey, who was married to Francis Kimball, one pound and five shillings, to his second daughter, Sarah, who married William Carlton, twenty pounds, to his youngest daughter and youngest child, Hannah, about fourteen years of age, eighty pounds, and all the rest of his property to his two sons, Richard and James. Among the property specified was "that one half of the saw-mill at Soucook by Asa Foster's with all the privileges appertaining thereto." We find no deed recorded conveying this property to James Head, or conveying it from his sons, Richard and James; hence we get no information in relation to the builders of the saw-mill. In Asa Foster's deed to Frederick Foster in 1791, he conveyed all the land he bought of John Noyes and Francis McCoy, except two acres he sold to Samuel and Reuben Kimball for a privilege for a saw-mill, and included house, barn, and grist-mill. From these facts we conclude that at this time Asa Foster owned the grist-mill, and Frederick Foster owned the whole of the saw-mill.

In 1796, Frederick Foster deeded the whole farm on both sides of the river, with all the mills and privileges, to Gen. Nathaniel Head. The next year, 1797, Head deeded the whole property back to Foster. Two years after, 1799, Frederick Foster deeded to Nathaniel Head twenty-six acres of land, with all mills and mill privileges, he having previously deeded the principal part of the farm and farm buildings to Jonathan Elliot. In 1801, Gen. Head deeded the mills and land to his son-in-law, Joshua Clement. Clement was a clothier and built a fulling-mill, and worked at his trade there several years. In 1809, Clement deeded the land and mills to Oliver Blake of Bridgewater. Soon after Blake deeded the same property to Samuel Dane of New Boston. In 1814, Dane deeded the same property to Reuben Kidder of Bridgewater. The same year, 1814, Kidder deeded to Benjamin Moore the same property, except a privilege for a fulling-mill which had been deeded to Daniel Hadley. In 1815, Moore deeded, what had been deeded him, to Ebenezer and Amos Perry who mortgaged it back to Moore, and he, in 1819, again deeded it to Nathan and Frye Holt, Jr. In 1820, Nathan and Frye Holt, Jr., deeded the same property to Moses Black of Danvers, Mass. In 1824, Moses Black deeded the same land, mills, and privileges, to Moses Holt and Mark Richardson. In 1827, Holt and Richardson deeded the same property to Samuel and David Damon. The Damons mortgaged the property to the Concord Bank. In 1830, Samuel Damon quitclaimed the property to Natt Swain, of Ashby, Mass., for $167. In 1831, Mr. Swain deeded the same property to Charles Hutchins of Concord. In 1832, Mr. Hutchins deeded the same to the Concord Manufacturing Company. Soon after, the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company became the owner of all the stock of the Concord Manufacturing Company, and in that way became the owner of all said company's personal and real estate, the Soucook mills and privileges among the rest. The Amoskeag Company retained the ownership of the land and privileges till 1892, when the property was deeded to William A. Russell, trustee, and in 1893, Russell deeded the same with other property to the Garvins Falls Power Company, which now owns it.

The next mill above "McConnell's, or Clough's," though in Concord, was built to accommodate a portion of Pembroke people, and was owned for many years by a Pembroke man, hence deserves notice. The only saw-mill here was built in the fall and winter of 1832-3 by Joseph Lougee, Joseph Clifford, and Hiram Kimball, who purchased the privilege of Charles Walker. In the spring of 1833, Lougee and Clifford sold their two thirds of the mill to Samuel McConnell, Jr., of Pembroke. In 1835, Kimball sold his part of the mill to McConnell, who retained the ownership and occupancy till his death about 1862. In 1863, John K. McConnell, administrator of Samuel McConnell's estate, sold the mill to Benjamin A. Noyes of Bow. The same year Noyes sold to Charles H. Clough of Concord. Mr. Clough built a spoke-mill and manufactured spokes several years. The dam was carried away by a freshet, and never rebuilt. No business was done here for several years before Mr. Clough's death. The privilege is now owned by Mr. Clough's heirs.

The next above, and the last in Pembroke, on the Soucook, is now known as Richardson's mill. The first mill built here was built by John and Nathaniel Morrill of Chichester, and Benjamin Kimball of Concord. In 1792, John and Nathaniel Morrill bought of John Bryant of Bow fifty acres of land, "with the falls and the privilege for a rolling way on the west side of the river." In 1793, they deeded Benjamin Kimball of Concord, one quarter of the privilege for a saw-mill. The mills, both saw-mill and grist-mill, were built. In 1802, John and Nathaniel Morrill and Hezekiah Young deeded to Enoch Dickerman of Canton, Mass., the fifty acres of land, one quarter of a saw-mill, the whole of a grist-mill, and a privilege for a fulling-mill by the grist-mill. Mr. Dickerman was a clothier. He built a clothing-mill and occupied it, working at his trade as long as he remained on the place. In 1803, Benjamin Kimball deeded his quarter of the saw-mill and privilege to his son Hazen. In 1809, Mr. Dickerman deeded to Samuel Tolman of Stoughton, Mass., the fifty acres of land, a grist-mill, fulling-mill, and one quarter of a saw-mill. In 1810, Mr. Tolman deeded one half of the same property to Moses Dickerman, Enoch's oldest son.

In 1825, Ebenezer Tolman, into whose hands the property had fallen after the death of Samuel Tolman, mortgaged the fifty acres of land, three quarters of a saw-mill,<sup>1</sup> a grist-mill, and privilege for a fulling-mill, to Thomas Tolman of Boston, Mass., who assigned his claim to William D. Austin of Boston, Mass. In 1835, William Austin, guardian of William D. Austin, deeded the same property to Caleb Beede and Hiram Chase of Chichester. The same year, Charles Hutchins of Concord deeded to Chase and Beede one quarter of the saw-mill and privilege, which he had bought of Richard Bradley, administrator of the estate of Hazen Kimball. In 1838, Chase and Beede deeded to John Richardson of Pembroke, the fifty acres of land with a saw-mill, a grist-mill, and a smut-mill, and the privileges. After Mr. Richardson purchased the property, he built a new grist-mill which was in use as long as he lived. In 1879, Edward Langmaid, administrator of the estate of John Richardson, deeded the mills and privileges to Nathaniel P. Richardson. In 1880, Richardson deeded the same to Josiah Lake of Chichester. In 1882, Lake and Richardson deeded the same property to Alfred P. Bickford of Epsom, and George M. Munsey of Chichester. Bickford and Munsey took away the grist-mill and improved the saw-mill, putting in a circular saw. In 1892, they deeded the saw-mill and privilege to Nathaniel P. Richardson. In 1893, Richardson deeded it to George G. Jenness of Concord.

<sup>1</sup>As we find no deed of the half of a saw-mill recorded either to or from any of the parties interested, we conclude there must have been a mistake in deeds to and from Mr. Dickerman, and that they were intended to convey three quarters of the saw-mill instead of one quarter.

Some time between 1775 and 1785, Thomas Baker built a saw-mill on what was then called Hampshire brook, since then known as the Baker brook. Martin H. Cochran now owns the land where it stood. After this saw-mill went down, Mr. Baker built a grist-mill at or near the same place, which was taxed to Thomas Baker, or his son Seth, as late as 1822. After Baker's saw-mill went down, Joseph Baker and Josiah Haggett built a saw-mill on the same stream, above, on land now known as the Haggett place, owned by William Goss. This mill was taxed one third to Baker, and two thirds to Haggett as late as 1810. About 1800, or before, Obediah Shattuck built a grist-mill on the Great Brook, so called, on land now owned by Trueworthy L. Fowler. The mill did not stand long there, probably on account of lack of water to operate it. About the same time, or a little later, Nathan Holt, then Nathan Holt, Jr., built a grist-mill on the same brook lower down the stream. Mrs. Louisa H. Fife now owns the land where it stood. This mill was not used many years.

In 1785, Ebenezer Frye deeded to Ichabod Robie and Jonathan Elliott one half of a new saw-mill standing on Meeting-House brook near Merrimack river. As this deed furnishes all the knowledge we have of this mill, either traditional, or recorded, we are unable to say when, or by whom, it was built, or how long it stood.

There is a well authenticated tradition that there was once a saw-mill on the south side of the Suncook river, near where the China mill is. The only other evidence we have of this mill is a copy of a letter found among the Masonian papers, a copy of which we give, believing it will interest the reader.

Capt Moses Foster

Since our return home from Suncook we have communicated our proceedings to the Proprietors who sent us, and informed them that we had seen and conversed with you and that you neither proposed or offered us any consideration for the use of their mill privilege you improve on Suncook river nor mentioned taking a lease for the same, whereupon it was resolved unanimously at a meeting that you be sued for the same and ejected the Premises at the next term of the Inferior Court of Common Please. We also communicated the inconsiderable terms which Mr Carr your son in law offered for the land he had improved in the Gore and what we offered it to him for per acre and he neglected to comply with the moderate terms offered by us, it was also resolved that he be sued at the next term for the land. This is to inform you of the resolution of the proprietors respecting their affairs as they relate to you and Mr Carr that you may have the opportunity of accomodating the affairs between this and next term and that you will neither of you hear any further before suits will be commenced against both of you unless prevented by your speedy application of a settlement with us in behalf of the proprietors, to inform you thereof this is from your Most hum<sup>l</sup> Servts

Capt. Moses Foster lived near where Moody K. Wilson lives, and from an old plan made by Walter Bryant in 1758, which was also found among the Masonian papers, we learn there was then a road or path leading pretty directly from his place to where this old mill stood, and where there was then a bridge across Suncook river. From all these facts we conclude that Captain Foster built and owned the saw-mill. We are not able to say whether suit was commenced against him and he was ejected from the premises, or not, but think he might have been, and the mill was either torn down or allowed to fall into decay.

The Chelmsford Glass Company was incorporated July 4, 1839, and soon commenced to manufacture window glass in Suncook village. William Parker, Esq., owned a controlling interest in the company, and was its agent. The company purchased land of Mr. Towns, and perhaps of others, on the south side of what is now Glass street, extending from the street to the river upon which a brick building was erected in which to manufacture glass. Other needed buildings were erected, and for several years the business was carried on successfully. A change of the tariff laws by which the duty on foreign glass was removed, rendered it impossible to manufacture glass at a profit. From this cause the company ceased operations, and closed up business. In 1865, the Webster Manufacturing Company purchased all the glass company's real estate in Pembroke, both land and buildings. The brick building has been converted into tenements and another block of tenements built between that and the river by the Factory company. The building occupied by the glass company for a store and counting room, is now used for a bakery. The Factory company has also built other tenement blocks on land purchased of the glass company. All the buildings mentioned stand on the south side of Glass street, which derives its name from the glass factory.

SECRET ORGANIZATIONS—NEWSPAPERS.

Following the prevailing custom of the times, Pembroke has furnished a constituency for the permanent establishment and growth of various secret organizations for the promotion of the social, intellectual, and general interests of their membership, as will be seen by the following record. They seem to meet a public need, and, wisely managed, can but be conducive to the general happiness and welfare. Their ready and efficient care of the sick of their number is deserving of the highest praise.

THE SUNCOOK JOURNAL.

This paper was started about 1874, by Otis S. Eastman, in an office on the Allenstown side of the Suncook River. It was burned out in 1879, its headquarters transferred to William & Hosmer's block on the Pembroke side, where it remained till 1893, when it was removed to the Wilkins block. In April, 1883, Mr. Eugene Lane, the late proprietor, came into possession, and with commendable enterprise and energy, endeavored to give the community a sprightly, newsy, weekly paper, and meet promptly the demands of the public for job work. To furnish greater facilities for increasing business, in June, 1884, he added to the equipment of his office a Potter cylinder printing press.

Mr. Lane sold the paper to the Syndicate Publishing Company of Manchester in October, 1894, and ceased its publication with the issue of October 20, 1894. Since then no paper has been published in town.

THE SUNCOOK BANNER.

This paper was published for a brief period by J. J. Lane. The first issue appeared November 20, 1880, and the last, June 27, 1881. It was established to satisfy certain persons who wished for a paper, giving greater, though not exclusive, prominence to the cause of temperance. The result showed there was not a sufficient local constituency for two papers.

OFFICERS OF ANCIENT SUNCOOK AND PEMBROKE.

We give below the list of officers of "Ancient Suncook" prior to the incorporation of the town of Pembroke in 1759. As best serving the purpose intended, they are given chronologically, rather than alphabetically. No meetings are found recorded during the years, 1753-59, hence the supposition is that officers previously elected nominally continued in office during that period.

OFFICERS OF PEMBROKE.

The following are the various officers of the town of Pembroke, with the years of their service. The loss of records necessitates the omission of some in the years immediately after the incorporation. In 1878, a law was passed creating biennial elections in November for representatives, state and county officers, which accounts for the choice of two sets of representatives for that year.

The foregoing list of officers has been prepared with great pains-taking from the proprietary and town records, and the series of New Hampshire Registers as far back as 1808, and is, we believe, in the main trustworthy. We have aimed to give a complete list of all who have served in the various offices, as far as possible, with full dates of service. The dates, however, may not, in all cases, cover the whole period of service, owing to the insufficiency of record from which the compilation has been made, as, for instance, in regard to some of the old-time physicians and justices of the peace, but they are supposed to have been in service during the time specified. We deem the record sufficiently accurate to subserve the end intended.

As additional information of permanent value, we append the following table of receipts and expenditures of the town since 1829. We regret the incompleteness of the expenditure for schools. Absence of available record is the occasion.

CHAPTER XXXV.

KEY TO THE MAP OF PEMBROKE, 1894.

The map of Pembroke herewith given is designed to show the location of every important house, mill, and bridge ever in Pembroke, outside of Suncook Village, either in the past or at the present time. We cannot be sure that in every case we are correct, for in some instances we have been obliged to rely upon traditionary evidence, which was sometimes contradictory and perhaps, in a few instances, incorrect; but in the main we have obtained our information from records. This mark  on the map with number affixed shows the location or site of a building or other point. The name first following a number in the explanations is the name of the present or last owner or occupant. The next is the name of the next preceding owner or occupant, and so on. The last is the name of first owner or occupant so far as known. Sometimes names of owners or occupants may be left out for lack of correct information, but we think such cases are rare. When this mark † follows a name it may be read, "who built the house or building under consideration." When this mark ‡ follows it may be read, "the first to build or settle here." When a date follows a name it shows the time when such person received a title to the property mentioned.

This was Suncook lot No. 46 (see map No. 2), and was drawn by Noah Johnson, and owned by him in 1748 (see page 63). It is not known when it came into Robertson's hands, but it is probable he was the first settler. John Bragg sold twenty-five acres from the easterly end of this lot to Stephen McConnell, and Stephen, in 1761, sold to his brother, Samuel (Major), the northerly half of the same, which remained in the hands of the McConnell family many years, and was known as the Bragg field.

22. Heirs of Samuel E. Moore, Samuel E. Moore, Daniel M. Moore, Robert Moore, James Moore. Tradition says that part of the house was part of a block house or fort, built by James Moore for protection against the Indians.

23. Charles Swain, Henry L. Richardson, Joseph H. Moore, James Moore, Daniel M. Moore †, site of house, Rev. Daniel Mitchell, 1761. This farm was, in 1761, deeded by Samuel Osgood to Rev. Daniel Mitchell, James Moore, Isaac and Robert White, John Coffrin, or Cochran, and John and William Knox. The farm all came into Mr. Mitchell's hands, and after his death, was divided between his two daughters, one of whom married Robert Moore, the other Samuel Parker of Bow. Tradition says Mr. Parker built a house on his wife's half very near where the school house now stands.

25. Site of house of Mrs. Hepzibath Head, James Head, Dea. Isaac White, 1773, William Moore. The barn stood on the opposite side of Main street.

26. James Dodge, Thomas A. Ambrose, Samuel Brown, Thomas W., and Josiah K. Brickett, Thomas Brickett, Jr., Thomas Brickett, Sr., 1782, John Moore, Lieut. William Moore. The principal part of Mr. Dodge's home farm is made up of two Suncook lots, No. 44, on the east side of Main street, and No. 12, on the west side (see map No. 2). In 1773, William Moore sold the northerly half of both lots divided lengthways, to Dea. Isaac White, with the buildings. In 1782, John Moore sold the southerly half of both lots to Thomas Brickett, with the buildings. In 1808, Reuben Head sold Thomas Brickett, Jr., the northerly half of lot No. 12; and in 1820, David Kimball sold Thomas Brickett the northerly half of lot No. 44. In this way the whole of both lots came into Mr. Brickett's hands.

27. James Dodge, Thomas A. Ambrose, George C. Aiken and Abba S. Aiken, Abba S. Egerton, John E. Kimball, Hubbard Garvin, Plummer W. Dodge and Harriet Dodge, Harriet Gilman, Phebe Bartlett, Thomas Brickett, Jr., 1818, Barnard Brickett, Thomas Brickett. The house was built before Thomas Brickett deeded to his son, Barnard.

29. Site of house of Francis Doyen, supposed to have been the first settler in town. He was one of the original grantees of Suncook, and drew this lot, No. 11. He was one of the only two original grantees who settled in Suncook. Noah Johnson was the other.

30. Site of house, Goin Hemphill.

30½. Site of house of Widow Sarah Hemphill.

This was part of lot No. 43. In 1750, Peter Ayer, of Haverhill, deeded the westerly half of this lot to Francis Doyen. In 1751, Nathan Mann deeded the easterly half to Moses Tyler. 38. Henry T. Simpson †, site of Bartlett tavern stand. Timothy Knox settled here in 1732-33, coming from Lancaster, Mass. About 1748, Timothy Knox died, leaving his farm in the hands of his heirs. In 1772, John Knox, either son or grand son of Timothy, sold the farm to Ebenezer Frye. In 1776, Thomas Morse, trader, sold the farm to Dr. Richard Bartlett, who was long in trade, and kept tavern here till his death, about 1806. After his death the farm came into Solomon Whitehouse's hands, and was rented for a tavern many years. Among the persons who occupied it : s such were : Resolve Sessions, James West, David Ambrose, John Tilton, Rufus Woodbury, and Humphrey Carter.

39. Site of Richard Bartlett's store, afterward occupied by Caleb Bartlett, Richard's only son, for a dwelling house, and later used for a blacksmith shop.

40. Joseph Warren, Calvin Drew, Samuel Gault, Chauncey C. French, James McCutcheon, John M. Stanyan, John Stanyan, Timothy Barnard † †. Mr. Barnard kept store here many years.

44½. Site of barn once owned by Maj. James Head, probably built by Lieut. Benjamin Holt, who owned the lot or farm in 1764.

45. Blacksmith shop of Joseph C. Fowle.

46. David D. Dodge, James Dodge, Asa Moore, Matthias Nutter † †.

47. Mrs. Rand, Capt. William Fife † †. Little west of the house is the site of the first school house in town, according to tradition. In 1785, Ebenezer Frye deeded to "Ichabod Robie and Jonathan Elliot, tanner and shoemaker, one full half of a new saw-mill on meeting-house brook near Merrimack river," "Also a shoemakers shop on Aaron Whittemore's land near the house where I now live." "Also one full third of a new school house standing on Aaron Whittemore's land near Miss Gould's." From this deed we judge that the school house was not built, or owned, by the town, but was private property.

48. Henry T. Simpson's brick yard.

49. Site of first ferry established over Merrimack river in 1737.

50. Edmund Elliott's brick yard.

51. Site of Robinson's ferry, established in 1785.

Gale, Relief Chase, 1816, Thomas Whittemore, 1796, Mrs. Lucy Jewett, James Jewett, 1793, John Calef, 1793, Ichabod Robie, 1771, Nathaniel Thompson, 1764, Benjamin Thompson † ‡.

This house is probably as old as any in town, if not the oldest one, hence deserves special notice. In 1764, Benjamin Thompson deeded to Nathaniel Thompson about one acre of land on the south side of "Meetinghouse brook," where Joseph C. Fowle now lives, which he bought of Lieut. Benjamin Holt, who then owned the lot where David D. Dodge lives. "Also a house standing on the northwest side of the brook." The consideration of the deed was "500 pounds new tenor money." There was then no house on the land south of the brook but a tan yard, or tannery, near the brook. In 1771, Nathaniel Thompson deeded the same property to Ichabod Robie, saying of the house, that it was set there agreeable to a vote of the town. Since the town records for that period were burned, we are unable to verify the statement. Mr. Robie built a house on the south side of the brook near where Mr. Fowle's house is. In 1785, Robie bought of Richard Head, an acre of land north of the brook, where the house stands, and in 1790, deeded the land and house to John Calef. In 1791, Robie deeded the acre of land on the south side of the brook, with house and tannery, to James Jewett, and in 1793, Calef deeded the acre of land and house on the north side of the brook to Jewett, who then owned both places. After Mr. Jewett's death, the Calef house, with a portion of the land was set off to Lucy Jewett, James Jewett's widow, for her dower, leaving the remainder of the land to go with the land on the south side. In 1796, Lucy Jewett sold her house and land to Thomas Whittemore, whose name was afterwards changed to "Happy Thomas." He deeded it to Relief Chase. Since that it has been owned in succession by Joseph W. Gale, John A. Gale, Richard B. Richardson, Oliver Richardson, Joseph C. Fowle, and Mrs. Vesta M. Abbott. In 1795, Lucy Jewett, administratrix of James Jewett's estate, sold the remainder of James Jewett's homestead not set off to her, to Jacob Cummings Jewett, and he, in 1796, deeded to Thomas Whittemore the land where Whittemore's shop stood, just north of the brook, and in 1799, deeded to Jeremiah Doe the remainder of the James Jewett property which had been deeded to him by Lucy Jewett.

55. Joseph C. Fowle, Asa Morrill, site of house of Asa Morrill, 1831, William Bailey, 1818, William Abbott, Jr., 1813, Timothy Darling, Jr., 1811, Timothy Darling, 1807, Jeremiah Doe, 1799, J. Cummings Jewett, 1795, James Jewett, 1791, Ichabod Robie, 1771 † ‡.

56. Fred C. Whittemore, Hon. Aaron Whittemore, Jr., Hon. Aaron Whittemore † ‡. Here Mr. Whittemore kept tavern several years after he built the house.

57. Charles B. Whittemore, Albert Holt, Benjamin R. Dow, Aaron Whittemore, Jr., † ‡. Little north of this house is site of house where Caleb Lovejoy settled, and to which the Suncook proprietors adjourned their meeting in Feb. 1740-1.

58. Cemetery, near the north corner of which is site of first meeting-house built in town. This is the first cemetery established in town, and has been enlarged three times.

After Mr. Stickney's death his widow, Ruth Stickney, in 1831, sold the house to Asa Morrill, who moved it to its present location where it is now occupied by Joseph C. Fowle.

60. House of C. C. French, owner, M. Mitchell, occupant, Dea. Edward Kimball, Robert Fowle, John Vose, Jonas R. Hayward, Caleb Dow, Rev. Abel Manning, Thomas Kimball, Thomas Kent, Ezekiel Kelley, Richard Lakeman, Hugh K. Moore, Robert Moore. The house was formerly a store standing in the corner south of Congregational church. Moved to present location in 1825 by Robert Moore.

61. House owned by heirs of William Fife. Formerly owned by Francis Vose and purchased by him of Richard Whittemore, grandson of Rev. Aaron Whittemore. The place is part of Suncook lot No. 3, which Suncook proprietors deeded to Rev. Aaron Whittemore as the first settled minister in town, agreeable to the provisions of their grant. Here is the site of Mr. Whittemore's house, and site of a garrison house built for protection against Indians. In the old house which took the place of the garrison and which forms part of the present house, the minister's oldest son, Aaron, lived. He divided his farm between his two sons, Aaron and Richard, giving to Richard lot No. 3, which had been deeded to Rev. Aaron, and to Aaron, the parsonage, or lot No. 5, which had been leased to Rev. Aaron so long as he should remain minister of the town. Aaron lived in the old house with Richard, where they were in trade together, till about 1800, when he built a house on the parsonage lot, and resided there till his death in 1864. He kept tavern there several years. Richard lived on the old homestead till he sold to Mr. Vose.

62. Edward P. Kimball, Mrs. Betsey Kimball † ‡.

63. Mrs. Isaac Willey, Rev. Isaac Willey, Duncan Kennedy, Mrs. Smith, Sawyer Blanchard, Charles P. Hayward, James McCutcheons, Daniel Flagg, David Webster. The house was originally a potash manufactory standing on land now owned by John G. Tallant, and moved to present location about 1820, by David Webster.

64. Trueworthy D. Gault, Andrew Gault, William Gault, Andrew Gault. This farm is part of Suncook lot No. 4, which was deeded to Andrew Gault in 1754, by his father, Samuel Gault of Chester, now Hooksett.

64½. Site of house on T. D. Gault's intervale. Mr. Gault has a tradition that a family of Bartletts once lived here. In 1770, Ebenezer Frye deeded Stephen Bartlett two pieces of land, the first being the whole of three intervale lots Nos. 21, 22, and 23, containing 40 acres with the buildings thereon. From the tradition and deed, we conclude that Stephen Bartlett once lived here, but we are unable to say who lived here before or after him.

65. Frank T. Cheney, Fred R. French, Charles L. Dow, George H. Eaton, Jacob Noyes, Jonathan Hamlett, Benjamin G. Boardman, Andrew Robertson, Jr., Andrew Robertson, William Robertson, Noah Johnson. Near the house is the site of the store where B. G. Boardman traded several years. Afterwards his son Moses traded here.

65½. Site of Presbyterian meeting-house, built about 1760, taken down about 1805, and formed part of the Ambrose meeting-house which was taken down about 1840, and formed part of the gymnasium building, now town hall.

66. Ruel L. Cram † ‡.

67. Crosby Knox, Rev. Daniel Goodhue, Henry M. Moore, Samuel Colby, Charles P. Hayward, Jr., Charles P. Hayward, Jacob Sawyer, Isaac Kinsman. 68. Daniel W. Mann, Andrew Gault, Jr. † ‡. This farm constituted part of lot No. 4.

69. Mrs. Sarah C. Fellows, Rev. Rufus Putnam, Isaac N. Bodwell, Mrs. Betsey Cilley † ‡.

70. Charles P. Hayward, Jr., Charles P. Hayward, 1866, Jeremy W. Salter, 1857, Wilson & Gault, 1857, Andrew Ladd, 1852, Mrs. Betsey Fisk, Stark R. Fisk, Mark Fisk, 1839, Henry Moulton, 1837, Joseph Noyes † ‡.

71. Site of house known as the Swett house, owned for many years by Joseph Swett.

72. Heirs of Jacob Sawyer. This house was built by Moses Chamberlain for a store and occupied by him as such. After Chamberlain sold to Daniel Sawyer in 1834, it was occupied by Jacob Sawyer, Sawyer and Noyes, Martin and Noyes, Frederick Seavey, Jonas R. Hayward, Clifton B. Hildreth, Mrs. Betsey Fisk, James Carr, and perhaps others. Just north of this store is the site of house. It was formerly an old store standing on the easterly side of the street. Moved across the street and finished for a dwelling house by Joseph Noyes. Afterward owned by Ruel L. Cram, Daniel Sawyer, Jacob Sawyer, Frederick Seavey, and Jonas R. Hayward, and finally removed to Suncook.

73. Miss Mary Kimball, John E. Kimball †, site of Fisk tavern, site of house built on Thomas Robertson's land by Dr. Henry Dow Banks. Banks sold the house to Nathan Waite. Robertson sold Waite the land where the house stood. Waite sold house and land to Peter Green, and Green in 1792, sold same to Asa Robinson, and Robinson sold to Nathaniel Whittemore. The principal part of two farms now owned by Miss Mary Kimball and Frank T. Cheney, once constituted Suncook lot No. 35. It was drawn by heirs of John Harwood but was purchased by Noah Johnson. It is supposed that Mr. Johnson settled and lived upon it as long as he lived in town. After the commencement of the first French and Indian War, Mr. Johnson left Suncook and returned to Dunstable, where he had formerly lived. We do not learn that he lived in town afterward. The lot was 160 rods long and 70 rods wide, containing 70 acres. In 1748, Mr. Johnson deeded it to William Robertson and he, in 1750, deeded 30 acres from the southerly side of the lot to his son Thomas. He settled upon it, and lived here when his house was burned in 1767, and the parish records with it.

Afterwards William Robertson deeded the remaining 40 acres to his son Andrew, and he again deeded it to his son Andrew, Jr., who, in 1812, deeded it to B. G. Boardman. Thomas Robertson, in 1777, deeded the remainder of his thirty acres to Lemuel Stickney, and Stickney, in 1748, deeded the same to William Carlton, Carlton sold the westerly half, 15 acres, to Jonathan Springer, Springer, in 1793, sold the same to James Jewett, Jewett, in 1794, sold the westerly part of his purchase to Abijah Shedd. Feb. 20, 1794, Asa Robinson deeded the Dr. Banks house and land to Nathaniel Whittemore of Newburyport, Mass., and in May following, Jewett sold Whittemore what remained in his hands. In 1795, Carlton sold Whittemore what remained in his hands, 18 acres, and Shedd what he had bought. In this way the Thomas Robertson farm all came into the hands of Mr. Whittemore, and in 1796, he deeded the farm to Benjamin Fisk of Newbury, Mass.

It is not known whether Whittemore built the tavern, or whether it was built by Mr. Fisk after he purchased the farm. It is thought, however, that whoever built the tavern moved the Banks house from the southerly corner of the farm to the westerly corner, where it remained till the farm came into Mr. Kimball's hands.

The Fisk tavern was noted in its time. Here Benjamin Fisk kept a tavern till his death about 1826, more than twenty-five years. Here General Lafayette passed the night when traveling from Boston to Concord, in 1825. After Mr. Fisk's death it was used many years for a tavern. Among the later occupants were Joseph Seavey, John L. Seavey, Mark Fisk, Joseph Fisk, Jonathan M. Jackson, and Stephen Webster.

74. Postoffice, John B. Doe, Benjamin N. Doe, Joseph Noyes †. Near by is site of Daniel Noyes's house, where to him and his wife were born twelve children.

If the reader will look at map No. 2, he will see that between lot No. 4, first division, and lot No. 62, second division, there is quite a large piece of common or undivided land. He will also note that Daniel W. Mann's farm is the southerly half of lot No. 4, and that Solomon W. Knox's farm contains a part of lot No. 62, the line between No. 62 and the undivided land being just south of Miles L. Spaulding's house. The Suncook proprietors, in 1746, deeded John Noyes eighteen acres of this land adjoining lot No. 4, in consideration of his settling in town as the first blacksmith. It is not known now whether John Noyes first settled on these eighteen acres, or on lot No. 34, which was deeded him in 1749, three years after, nor do we know how far south the eighteen acres extended on the road. John Noyes afterward lived on lot No. 34, the lot on which the meeting-house stands. Daniel Noyes, who lived on the west side of the street, on the eighteen acres deeded to John, was one of John's sons.

75. Mrs. Sarah Blanchard, George S. Blanchard, William Phelps, Jonas R. Hayward, Frederick Seavey, Jacob Sawyer, Daniel Sawyer, Moses Chamberlain † ‡. Just north of this house, is the site of store occupied by different individuals. Moses Chamberlain was last occupant. This was the store Joseph Noyes moved across the street and fitted for a dwelling house. It stood just north of the Chamberlain store.

76. Mrs. Mary Adams, George W. Doe, Moses Martin, Eleazer M. Wilson, Peter Noyes †.

We are not sure that James Gay was the first to own and live on the place, but we found no deed on record conveying it to him. There was but half an acre of land with the house till after John H. Merrill came into possession. He bought of Eunice Carlton, widow John Carlton, four acres from the northerly side of lot No. 52, or John Carlton place.

came from Buckstreet and lived on the farm with his son. They built the tavern house afterward owned and occupied by General Robinson, and also by James Hazeltine. The son kept tavern here several years before the Revolution. He had a colonel's commission in the Continental army, was mortally wounded in the service, and died in October, 1777. After his death the farm, except his widow's dower, came into his father's hands, who, in 1781, after leasing it to his son, Joseph, quitclaimed it to his five living children, viz.: Jeremiah, Eliphalet, and Joseph Connor, Maria Dudley, and Molly Elliott. His daughter Maria had married Gilman Dudley, and then lived in Candia. She afterward lived and died in Sanbornton. Molly had married Jonathan Elliott and lived in Pembroke. After Dr. Connor's death the farm was divided, and for a time, owned by different individuals, but finally all came into Gen. Asa Robinson's hands, who kept tavern many years. The part of lot No. 33, owned by Andrew Gault in 1759, came into Caleb Bartlett's hands, who, it is supposed, built the house where Boswell Stevens lived. About 1800, Mr. Bartlett sold the ten acres of land and buildings, with other property, to Rev. Zaccheus Colby, and he, in 1802, sold the same to Asa Robinson. Mr. Robinson, in 1808, sold the place now owned by Charles P. Hayward, to John Evans, and in 1814, sold to Boswell Stevens the place where George P. Little lives, retaining the remainder of the Gault land and the Connor farm, both of which he sold to James Hazeltine in 1819.

It is not known when Moses Foster purchased the northerly half of the lot. We have an account of five William Knoxes who lived to become active citizens of Pembroke, and two, father and son, who lived in that part of Suncook which is now Allenstown. The first in Pembroke, we think, was the son of Timothy Knox. He settled, we think, near where Norris C. Stevens lives; the second, son of the first, settled where George B. Colby lives; the third, son of the second, settled at Buckstreet as shown above; the fourth, son of the third, lived with his father; and the fifth, William H., son of Hiram Knox, and grandson of the second William, lived where his father Hiram and grandfather William had lived. The four first mentioned in Pembroke, were all in turn called William Knox, Jr., the first being William Knox, Jr., while he claimed to live in Suncook. The first William Knox who settled in Suncook settled in that part of Suncook which is now Allenstown, near where Mrs. Jabez Green lives. The larger part of the farm on which he settled, is now in Hooksett. His son, William, Jr., who married Anna Buntin, lived where his father had lived.

Nehemiah Ordway, Jr., kept tavern here several years while he owned the house. 343. Joel M. Corbin, Samuel Cochran, Jr. † ‡, site of house near by, built and occupied by Samuel Cochran, Jr. Mr. Cochran kept tavern here many years. The house was burned about 1837. To give the reader some idea of the amount of business and travel in town, as well as the habits and customs of the people, ninety years ago, we state that, in 1804, there were ten persons licensed, or approbated, as it was called, to keep tavern in town, two to sell spirituous liquors in their stores, and two in private houses. Richard Bartlett kept tavern where Henry T. Simpson lives, Benjamin Fisk kept tavern where Mary Kimball lives, Capt. Asa Robinson, where John G. Tallant lives, Benjamin Cushing and Josiah Sturtevant, where Miles L. Spaulding lives, Captain or Dea. David Kimball, in the Rice Dudley house, now owned by Harvey Denison, Joseph Blanchard in a house which stood near where Emery Brothers live, Nehemiah Ordway, in a house which stood nearly opposite where Sarah P. Knox lives, Samuel Cochran, Jr., in his house, which stood a little southeast of where Russ's store is, and Amos Carlton, where Hugh T. Warren lives. There was one other person licensed to keep tavern, John Calef or Calfe, as he was called, whose place of business we are not able to locate. We have never learned that he was owner of but one house in town, the one now owned by Mrs. Vasta Abbott, which he sold, in 1793, to James Jewett. He undoubtedly had some place of business or he would not have applied to the selectmen to be approbated. The storekeepers approbated to sell spirituous liquors at their stores were Timothy Barnard, who traded where Joseph Warren's house is, and Richard Whittemore, who traded at the Vose place, so called. The persons approbated to sell spirituous liquors at their private houses were Christopher Osgood, whose house stood a little southeast of where the Methodist church in Suncook village stands, and Jeremiah Fife, who lived on the top of the hill east of the Philip Fife place.

344. Charles W. Goward, occupant, Joel M. Corbin, owner.

Moulton to manufacture trunks, boxes, doors, screens, and other wood-work, also a steam saw-mill, site of spoke-mill, built and occupied by Jeremiah F. Page, site of a saw-mill first built, about 1787, by John Ayer, James Cochran, Jr., and Job Abbott, burned about 1820.

Wattles and Thomas Bond, built by Norris Cochran and Samuel Martin, site of building built by Moses Martin and William L. Moore, and used by them as a bed-tead manufactory, and for other wood-work, burned, site of saw-mill, burned, site of grist-mill, taken down.

Moulton, operated in part by water power and in part by steam power, Samuel Martin, former owner of saw-mill, which had been built by Norris Cochran, James Martin and William Knox. We think, two saw-mills, built and operated by Knox, Martin, and Cochran, were burned on the site of this one.

ADDENDA.

In the account of the growth and progress of the Methodist church in Pembroke, reference was made, on page 263, to the erection of the church edifice on the hill. Since that was in print, the following document has been found, which we here insert as worthy of permanent record :

In all meetings of the subscribers to transact business, each share shall be entitled to one vote.

Recorded March 30th, 1838, by Benj<sup>n</sup>
Cushing Town Clerk

---

Since the statement, on page 285, that Moses Chamberlain was executor of the will of Dr. Abel Blanchard, was printed, an examination of the copy of the will reveals the fact that Hon. Boswell Stevens, and Amos Blanchard of Andover, Mass., were made executors. The records show that Mr. Stevens, certainly, acted in that capacity. After a time, however, Moses Chamberlain was treasurer of the academy, and so continued till he left town.

PEMBROKE ACADEMY.

Since the pages concerning Pembroke Academy were printed, we are glad to chronicle the fact that the trustees have purchased the Emery homestead adjoining the academy property, and will probably use the mansion as a boarding-house for the students of the institution, thereby supplying a great need, till the favorable time comes for the erection of new buildings.

This was the immediate result of an agitation looking to a better equipment of the institution in the shape of a new, more commodious and convenient building, thereby furnishing larger and better facilities for its legitimate work. The purchase marks an important step in the march of progress, to be followed at no distant day, it is hoped, by a new structure of ample accommodations, and furnished with the latest and best appliances for purposes of instruction, to become to future generations a memorial of the zeal of lovers of sound learning, and an attractive home for all who shall gather there for instruction.

We are also permitted to say that the land in the rear of the Emery homestead, now owned by George P. Little, will be deeded to the trustees of the academy as soon as the erection of the new buildings shall begin.

CONGREGATIONAL CHAPEL.

By the will of the late Mrs. Emily P. Eayrs of Boston, Mass., the residue of her estate, after paying legacies, was left in trust to Mrs.

Mary W. Thompson, her sister, the late William Thompson, and George P. Thompson, to be used for religious and educational purposes. In the fulfilment of such trust, they have given to the Congregational church $1,200 for a chapel, to be known as the Emily P. Eays chapel. This donation has been accepted, and it is expected such a chapel will be built the present year (1895), in the rear of the church edifice, to be used for social meetings, and such other purposes as shall subserve the best interests of the parish. When completed it will supply a long felt need, and add greatly to the facilities of the church in doing her appropriate work.

GENEALOGIES.

As lack of space forbade the insertion of every family that has lived in town, or a continuous and complete genealogy of any family, the principles that have been adopted in our selection have been two, namely: first, giving the preference to the early settlers, when the necessary material could be gathered, and the families longest resident in town, and second, after any family has left town to tell where the members go, and then drop them unless settling in surrounding towns, or there is some good reason for following them down to the present time. Accordingly some families, having descendants living in town during nearly its entire history, necessarily occupy considerable space, while others need only a few lines. We are sorry not to be able to give a record of more of the families of the early settlers, especially those who were prominent in the management of the affairs of the town from time to time. But as it was then purely voluntary on the part of families whether or not the family records should be inserted in the books of the town, many neglected to do it, and consequently material for a complete genealogy is wanting.

Limited space has also prevented any going into details in the matter of personal or family history, and therefore we have been content to give concisely and connectedly the links of lineage. As far as it has been possible we have given all names and dates in full. It is a source of regret that this could not be done in every case. Brief biographical sketches of a few will be found in their proper place in volume I, page 267-96.

Every family has been given in alphabetical order, and the members of each have been numbered consecutively from one to the end. Numbers in heavy faced type, as 7, indicate that that person's name is to be found again further on with a record of his family, the same number appearing in parentheses, as (7). Such numbers are also arranged consecutively, as (7), (1 o), (2 o), etc. The different generations are distinguished by "superiors," as James<sup>1</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Peter<sup>3</sup>, etc. The older generations naturally come first in the record, following each other in regular order. The list of abbreviations appended below, with the exception of those representing titles and states, are only used in the genealogies.

The names of members of the families are fully indexed, giving their consecutive number, rendering it easy for the reader to find the particular name desired. All other names, as of husbands, wives, etc., of the different members are also fully indexed, followed by number of family with which connected in Roman letters, and consecutive number of the given family, separated by a period, as LVII. 10. In a few cases, however, notably in the Knox family, the reception of additional information after the indexes of names had been made and verified, and sometimes up to the time of printing, necessitated the use of letters in connection with the usual numbers, to the great saving of unnecessary labor.

Cross references are indicated by the family and "consecutive" number separated by a period in a parenthesis following the name, as (LXXXIX. 17). By referring to the family of such name and the given number, the genealogical status of such individual can readily be found.

In the preparation of these family genealogies no pains has been spared to make the different records authentic. We have availed ourselves of all the sources of information at our command. Town records have been searched, families visited for original information as found in the "Old Family Bible," and reliable memories, and for verification, inscriptions of tombstones copied, published genealogies searched, and many persons interviewed. Where there has been any conflict in records we have endeavored to settle the matter by weight of evidence. That errors in dates, and possibly names, have crept in is almost certain. We have striven to make them as few as possible. Not a little is due to Hon. Trueworthy L. Fowler for the accuracy and completeness of many of the older families, especially the Head and Cochran families. The Lake and Sargent families are chiefly his work. J. B. Haselton, Esq., of Suncook, has given the Haseltine family careful revision. State Assayer S. P. Sharples,* 13 Broad Street, Boston, Mass., has rendered very valuable service for the Kimball family, F. A. Hutchinson, of Suffield, Conn., for the Hutchinson family, Levi Cofren, Esq., of Boston, Mass., for much information respecting his branch of the Cochran family, and Miss Harriet W. Noyes of Hampstead, for the earlier generations of the Noyes family. Others have also rendered valuable assistance. We are also indebted to Dow's History of Hampton for early information of the Dearborn family. For all such favors to one and all we make grateful acknowledgment. We would also express hearty thanks for the uniform courtesy shown by the different families in our personal solicitation for facts of memory and record to give greater completeness to family histories, and for the cheerful readiness to aid as far as in their power. A very few families who failed to furnish the desired information as requested have been necessarily omitted.

* Mr. Sharples, with his co-laborer, Hon. Leonard A. Morrison, has nearly ready for the press an exhaustive genealogy of the Kimball family of New England.

LXXVI. THE KNOX FAMILY.

Robert, Robert, James, and John appended their names to a memorial dated 26 Mar. 1718, addressed to Gov. Shute of Massachusetts from the North of Ireland, asking for encouragement to emigrate.

1. Timothy<sup>1</sup> from whom the Pembroke family traces its descent, was in the direct line of Rev. John Knox, who came to America and settled at Lancaster, Mass. After living there several years, he was the first one of the name to come to ancient Suncook, having bought in 1732 a right in the township, drawing Lot No. 7, first division, and later, Lot No. 4, second division. The next year William, from Haverhill, Mass., bought the right of Solomon Keyes, Lot No. 23, in the south part of Suncook, now mostly in Hooksett, and settled on it. He drew Lot No. 13, second division, and afterwards sold it to John Fife who settled on it. He had two sons, William and David, who after their father's death divided the farm between them. In 1781, David sold out and went to Tunbridge, Vt., and in 1787, William, having previously married Anna Buntin of Allenstown, sold and went away. No descendants of either are now in town. The father was probably brother, or cousin, of Timothy. It is probable that three of Timothy's children were baptized in Lancaster. He d. in 1748. ## II.

This family originated in Andover, Mass., and it is almost certain that it belongs to the same branch as the above, though the connection has not been traced.

When the proprietors of Suncook voted to build a ferry boat in 1737, the boat was to be kept "against Mr. Joseph Parker's house lot." The ferry was established at Lot No. 14, and hence we learn that Joseph Parker owned and probably lived on Lot No. 14 in that year. About 1760, Eleazer Allen deeded to Joseph Parker, probably the same man, Lot No. 20 in the fourth range. Joseph Parker, 8 May 1776, deeded the land bought of Allen to James Knox. About 1791, his son John bought wild land at North Pembroke on the seventh range, built a log house on it, and lived in it with his father, till he afterwards built part of the house where Thomas R. Holt now lives. Joseph came to Pembroke from Andover, Mass., and was one of the earliest settlers. He may have had other children besides John, Molly, and Dorcas. The Joseph<sup>1</sup> and Joseph<sup>2</sup> given below were probably his grandfather and father, though the fact is not established to a certainty.

CXIV. THE ROBERTSON FAMILY.

The first of the family of which we have any knowledge is William. In 1748, Noah Johnson deeded to him the land now owned by Frank P. Cheney and Mary Kimball. In 1750, William deeded the part now owned by Mary Kimball to his son Thomas. In 1764, he deeded half of the remainder to his son Andrew, and in 1787, the rest of it to Andrew. In 1777, Thomas deeded all his land to Lemuel Stickney. In 1810, Andrew deeded his farm to his son Andrew. In 1812, Andrew Jr. deeded the same farm to Benjamin G. Boardman. In 1760, John deeded to John Bragg a farm now owned in part by Mr. Swain, the same lot that Noah Johnson deeded away in 1750. This John might have been a brother of William, or a son, and brother of Thomas and Andrew. Dea. James was probably a brother also.

CXXXII. THE TYLER FAMILY.

This seems to have been a prominent family, but the records are meagre. Moses settled on Lot No. 56, now occupied by G. W. Stone. Nov. 1745, at a proprietors' meeting, he was chosen a member of the proprietors' and auditing committee; 20 Nov. 1746, moderator, and one of the proprietors' committee; was one of the petitioners to the Governor of Massachusetts, and a few years later, to the Governor of New Hampshire, for protection from the Indians. Mar. 1769, he deeded to Joshua Tyler Lots Nos. 56 and 57, deeded to him by Job Abbott, 11 June 1751. On 7 Feb. 1781, he deeded to Thomas Brickett "one third part of the land on which I now liveth," which was one third of 30 acres from the easterly end of Lot No. 43, first division of Suncook lots, deeded to him in 1751 by Nathan Mann. This deed was signed by Moses Tyler and Miriam Tyler, his wife, both making their mark, and witnessed by Richard Bartlett, justice of the peace, and Moses Tyler, Jr., and duly acknowledged before Mr. Bartlett. The price paid for this land was 240 "silver dollars." On 19 Apr. 1775, Joshua and Reuben Tyler deeded to James Head 23 acres bought of Ebenezer Frye, and Apr. 1772, Nehemiah McNeal deeded to Moses Tyler, Jr., probably, 10 acres of intervale land. * In 1779, Moses Tyler, Jr., recorded a cattle mark. In 1767, 1769, 1771, 1772, 1773, and 1778, are entries respecting Joshua. ## V. THE MCFARLAND FAMILY.

1. Andrew<sup>1</sup> was b. in Scotland, but owing to troubles there fled to Londonderry, Ireland, whence he emigrated to America, landing at Boston, Mass., ab. 1718-22; m. ab. 1722, Bettie Christy; res. Rowley, Mass., and Concord, Mass., as early as 1729, as shown by the following evidence: Josiah Jones of Concord, Mass., "husbandman," 9 Dec. 1729 in consideration of "£25 passable money" deeded to "Andrew McFarland of said Concord, husbandman," all his right, etc., in the Suncook land grant of the "Great and General Court" of Massachusetts, on both sides of the Merrimack river, "to the men of Capt. Lovel's command on his march to Pigwaket (Me.), said Josiah being one of these men."

Later he went to Londonderry, and afterwards to Suncook as early as 1737. He voted there on the right of Josiah Jones in the matter of settling Rev. Aaron Whittemore, and the controversy with the town of Bow. By a deed dated 27 Apr. 1745, "Andrew McFarland of Bow" conveyed to "Moses Tyler of Chester" his "house lot of 40 acres in the Right of Josiah Jones laid out by name of Suncook, with all the fences and improvements" and that on the same day "Moses Tyler of Chester" conveyed to "Andrew McFarland formerly of Bow" a tract of 80 acres of land in Chester "situated S. E. of Great Massebesic Pond in the Right of Col. Richard Kent." This was evidently an exchange of farms. Other deeds, 1754-66, show land transactions in Chester of Andrew McFarland, and his sons, Jesse and John, situated at or near Massabesic brook, one of them where "it empties into the Great Pond."

On 25 Feb. 1768, Andrew and his wife Margaret deeded to Stephen Merrill 50 acres of land in Chester. In 1778, "Andrew McFarland of Chester, N. H., Yeoman," conveyed to "Samuel Allison of Londonderry, gentleman," a tract of 60 acres in Chester for £150, with warranty, no wife signing, she presumably having previously died.

Andrew McFarland was moderator of a church meeting in Chester, 12 Mar. 1750. The names of four of his sons, Jesse, Moses, John, and James, are appended to various petitions in Chester, 1764, 1771, 1773, 1796, respectively. His wife came to America with him on the same ship, and they were married soon after their arrival. Ch last five b. in Suncook:

MARRIAGES IN PEMBROKE, 1739—1895.

We have sought to make the list of marriages more valuable, by giving as far as possible the name of the person solemnizing them, arranging chronologically under each, and generally, so far as practicable. We are unable to verify the fact as to Rev. Messrs. Whittemore and Emery, as they left no list, so we say probably, because they occurred during their pastorates.
